BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At 1 o'clock this morning the supporters of Vahey and Foss in the democratic state convention agreed to select a compromise candidate.

The nomination was offered to Dist. Atty. Pelletier, and Mr. Pelletier refused it absolutely, although he could have had it by acclamation.

Efforts were made to get in touch with Col. William Gaston, to whom it was planned to offer the nomination.

At the conference Foss was represented by John F. McDonald, Martin Lomasney, Joseph A. Maynard, Malachi Jennings and William F. Murray.

Vahey attended himself and had with him Congressman Kelher, Senator Doyle, Maj. Crowley, Daniel W. Conley and Thomas F. Vahey.

The conference followed a disturbance resembling the riot at the Springfield convention three years ago. As a result of the trouble, the candidates felt the nomination of either one would be of little value to the party.

Joshua Quincy, who had been strongly with Foss, expressed the opinion before the conference that the only way to assure a democratic victory at the polls would be to select a compromise candidate.

Mayor Fitzgerald is keeping in close touch with his friends in the convention, and may decide to become a candidate himself unless some other strong man can be agreed on.

Eugene N. Foss lacked six votes of being nominated on the second ballot. The first ballot stood:

Number of votes	890
Necessary for choice	446
Foss	295
Vahey	383
Scattering	10

Mr. Hamlin then authorized his lieutenants to withdraw his candidacy and throw his strength to Vahey.

On the second ballot the vote was:

Number of votes	886
Necessary to nominate	444
Foss	438
Vahey	425
Scattering	3

The convention was in tumult when the result of the second ballot was announced, and an effort was made by the Vahey supporters to secure an adjournment, but without success. A third ballot was ordered.

Mr. Hamlin's withdrawal in favor of Vahey was the result of an agreement entered into before the convention, "to the effect that whichever of these two candidates proved the stronger on the first ballot should give his support to the other."

On the second ballot, however, some of his supporters still stuck to him, and this prevented the nomination of Foss.

The Hamlin Shift

The announcement of Hamlin's shift to Vahey came as the climax of an episode which threatened to embroil the Kelher and Lomasney factions in a miniature riot.

Martin Lomasney had just intimated that the Boston machine would support Vahey rather than see Hamlin nominated, and when Senator Doyle took the platform and asked his friends to vote for Vahey it looked like a shrewd play to get the better of the ward's chieftain.

Lomasney was plainly taken aback by the unexpected development, but at once gathered his forces and proceeded to collect Hamlin credentials.

Some of the Hamlin men were indignant at the manner of their candidate's withdrawal. They felt that he should have taken the platform and withdrawn himself, instead of leaving it to someone else.

Quite a number of them left for home, leaving their credentials with ward leaders. Some of Vahey's supporters, angered by what they regarded as a trick on the part of the Hamlin-Vahey leaders, also deserted to the Foss cause.

The most exciting moment of the convention, which has been in session with one 20-minute recess since 11 a. m. yesterday, occurred when the result of the second ballot was announced.

President Joseph A. Maynard of the city committee moved that a third ballot be taken. A motion to adjourn until a call from the chairman was made by McGillivray, a Hamlin supporter, and the shouts of "No! No!" from all over the hall.

The motion started an uproar that resembled a riot, almost a duplication of the famous Springfield convention of three years ago. Chairman Thayer announced that, although the motion to adjourn was in order, in view of the fact that the nominations must be filed on Friday, he would refuse to entertain it, and then called for a ye and nay vote on Maynard's motion.

Mr. Thayer immediately declared the motion was passed, upon which there was a mad rush to the platform by a number of Boston delegates. Thayer pounded with his gavel until quiet was resumed, when someone doubted the ballot. "You cannot speak until I recognize you," was Thayer's cry.

Immediately Martin Lomasney jumped upon the platform, but the chairman pushed him back to the press tables with his gavel. "Then, put 'at man off the platform, too," shouted Lomasney, pointing at Congressman Kelher, who stood upon the press tables. Thomas Vahey, a brother of Candidate Vahey, was compelled by the police to leave the platform.

Kelher Threatens Trouble

Standing on the press tables, Kelher shouted: "Give us 20 minutes, and we will straighten this thing out. If you want trouble we will give it to you." He then moved for a 20-minute recess, which was carried.

The representatives of Foss and Vahey then gathered in the anterooms, a most stormy session began. At this time it began to look as though an entirely new name would be presented to the convention for the nomination.

The doors had been left open, and outsiders were pouring in. It was necessary for Lieut. Frohawk of station 2, a sergeant and ten patrolmen to clear the platform of the excited delegates, who were now at fever heat, the entire Boston delegation trying to mount the platform at the same time.

Balloting Proceeds Slowly

Balloting for a nominee for governor was begun at 1:30 o'clock. Beside the single ballot box on the platform stood the officers of the convention, and two representatives of each candidate.

There was a great deal of pushing as the delegates slowly made their way toward the box. Several lines of delegates converged into one at the narrow steps to the platform. Action by the police in response to appeals from the crowd expedited matters.

The balloting proceeded very slowly. Each delegate's credential was examined closely, then checked on a list. Many were without coats and vests, and scores left the building for a few minutes' respite in the cool air of the street.

At 6:30 the balloting was still in progress, but the band had come from supper and was cheered by the sweet, lingering and impatient delegates. The musicians played "We Won't Go Home Till Morning," but refused to respond to demands for "Sweet Adeline," and the crowd cheered the refusal.

The balloting ended at 8:35, and the committee retired to count the votes.

Then came a long wait. Mr. Thayer suggested that the time might be taken up by nominations for lieutenant governor, but no one made a motion to that effect, and the crowd waited, listening to the band. At 8:35 the committee filed into the hall and made its report.

Kelher and Lomasney Differ

As soon as the result of the first ballot was announced and the cheering had subsided, Congressman Kelher was recognized and said:

"In view of the fact that the first ballot discloses that no nomination has been made, I move that we proceed to another ballot, that the several candidates duplicate their credentials and counters, and that we have two ballot boxes and two lines of voters, in order to facilitate the taking of the vote."

Martin M. Lomasney jumped to his feet the moment Mr. Kelher had concluded and objected strenuously to any change in the system of voting.

"Every one knows," he said, "that the system proposed by Mr. Kelher has always resulted in trouble in Boston. Stay here a little while longer and nominate the next governor of Massachusetts, whether it is James H. Vahey or Eugene N. Foss."

Mr. Lomasney's mention of these two names in the order given was taken as an intimation that the Lomasney-Fitzgerald forces had decided to throw their strength to Vahey in order to prevent Mr. Hamlin's nomination.

Immediately the convention was in an uproar. Amid the excitement Mr. Kelher secured the floor. The disturbance was so great that at first he could not be heard, but when partial quiet had been restored he said:

"We must congratulate ourselves that we have held a convention. I advocated the idea that gave us this splendid convention. But if we have not confidence enough in ourselves to duplicate what we have done this convention will not be a deliberative convention. I do not care whether we have one box or two boxes, for under this system of voting when we get through we will not have a riot, such as we had at Springfield."

Something Like Springfield Scenes

The mention of the Springfield riot so aroused a certain element of the Boston delegates that for a time it looked as if that historic episode might be duplicated in some of its features. The chairman was powerless to quiet the excited delegates, many of whom surged forward as if they intended to drag Mr. Kelher from the platform.

"It makes no difference except this," continued the congressman, lifting his voice so that it could be heard above the angry roar of his opponents. "If you want to spend the night here balloting, I am willing to stay. But you know that the forces of corruption will stay all night, when honest men have got to go home."

This created another uproar, and while delegates surged upon the platform from either side, Mr. Lomasney was recognized again and shouted above the din:

"The first Boston man to take the platform was the gentleman who has just spoken. What did he say? He said it made no difference."

That was as far as the ward's chieftain got for the time. Mr. Kelher's friends took a turn at noisemaking and succeeded in drowning the speaker's voice.

Mr. Lomasney's supporters were packed in behind him like so many bodyguards. Chairman Maynard and Joseph A. Maynard were among them, trying to aid the chairman in preserving order, and Councillor W. F. Murray was there waiting his turn to speak.

"The result of this convention," thundered Mr. Lomasney, when the shouters had tired themselves out, "shows that Mr. Foss and Mr. Vahey are in the lead. The friends of Mr. Hamlin want to give you two lines."

Gentlemen, the friends of Mr. Foss would rather see Mr. Vahey nominated than Mr. Hamlin.

Police Called to Platform

Mr. Lomasney did not finish his statement, or if he did he could not be heard. Councillor Murray tried to get recognition, but the chairman was too busy wielding his gavel to pay much attention. The police were called and succeeded in driving from the platform most of those who did not belong there.

Mr. Murray then spoke along the same line as Mr. Lomasney, reiterating the assertion that, whether it was Vahey or Foss, the convention would nominate the next governor of Massachusetts.

Dr. Sullivan of Fall River, got the floor for a moment and told the delegates it was time for them to stop their nonsense and get down to business.

Mr. Kelher asked again that his motion be considered and requested the chairman to corroborate him in saying that he had suggested, before the result of the first ballot was known, that something be done to facilitate the voting.

Mr. Thayer said the congressman had stated the facts correctly.

Doyle Calls for Aid

Senator Doyle then jumped upon the platform and, amid shrieks, cheers, hisses and other manifestations of approval and disapproval, said:

"I have been a lifelong friend of one of the candidates before this convention, but for reasons of political expediency I did not think it was wise to nominate that candidate. But, my friends, I desire to announce now, as an ardent supporter and admirer of Mr. Hamlin, that I and the other Hamlin men want you to vote for James H. Vahey."

The demonstration that followed this announcement kept the convention in an uproar for several minutes. When the noise subsided, Mr. Doyle continued:

"Vahey is not a democrat, of 12 months' experience. He has been a lifelong democrat. Vote for Vahey!"

The Vahey men and many of those who had voted for Mr. Hamlin cheered themselves hoarse, while the anti-Hamlin crowd was completely taken aback.

The previous question was moved and carried, although few in the hall knew what was going on, and at nine o'clock the convention proceeded to a second ballot.

NEW EQUIPMENT
For the Boston & Maine
Road

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—President Charles Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. and lately elected president of the Boston & Maine, will take the full duties of the presidency of the latter corporation.

It is stated here authoritatively, and exercise the functions of former President Tuttle in solving the important problems ahead in improving the Boston & Maine system. An important branch of those problems is the re-laying of a large part of the system with new rails, the purchase of new equipment and particularly of heavy locomotives for service upon the northern part of the system and the Fitchburg line. Another important branch of the improvements proposed is the electrification of service through the Hoosac tunnel which it will take several years to complete. The ten million dollars lately voted by the directors will be used largely for these improvements and is in addition to a large sum expended in the same general directions during the past year. Another very serious problem imposed on the company, it is said, will be the maintaining of dividends in the face of the large increase of wages lately made by the Boston & Maine corporation.

Mr. Mayberry was asked if he had ever received complaints from the employees who had previously testified, and he replied negatively.

"Did you make any change after August 7?"

"I don't remember any except putting more butter in the hospital at the request of the mayor."

"Did you ever have any complaint from Thomas Welch or his sister?"

"His sister wanted him placed outside. But we didn't have sole jurisdiction as he was a board of health case."

"The inmates were of what classes?"

"I don't understand the question—of course they were the poverty-stricken classes. The people who came and went were mostly alcoholic cases. The greater majority of those who are there are addicted to that habit."

"Did you give any instructions to the employees on assuming charge?"

"I told them I wanted them to give the inmates all they wanted to eat, but stop the waste."

"That was my slogan the year through. I also told that to the inmates."

Cross-examined:

"What was your business before you became superintendent?"

"Superintendent of cemeteries."

"And before that?"

"Overseer in Fitchburg's hospital."

"You knew nothing about running a charitable institution when you were elected?"

"Nothing."

"You allowed the head of each department to manage his or her own department?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then isn't it true that these people of all people are the most familiar with conditions in the different departments?"

"It is true."

"And there is no one who is better able to describe the conditions there than these people? Isn't that a fact?"

"It is a fact."

"Will you swear that there were not periods of a week at a time that you weren't in the men's hospital or in Miss McAdams' department at all?"

"I think I was. I'm positive I must have been."

BEATEN TO DEATH

Mysterious Murder of a Woman in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The mysterious murder of an unidentified woman of refined appearance in a fashionable apartment house on Riverside drive today is puzzling the police as few recent crimes have done. The woman's body was found in the court yard of the house and gave every indication that the victim had been literally beaten en to death. The face and body were covered with bruises and one thumb was bitten nearly off. Her clothing was of the best quality and markings upon it showed that it had been purchased at fashionable shops, but there was nothing to give a clue to her identity.

The negro elevator boy of the apartment house, Clarence Holcomb, who said he had admitted the woman to the building at an early hour today, was arrested and held as a suspicious person. The police believe the woman was murdered in the bathroom of a vacant apartment on the ground floor and her body pushed from the window into the court yard.

THE ARGUMENTS

In the Brown-Harrington Case to be Made MondayFormer Supt. Mayberry Was Recalled This Morning—The Court Adjourned at Noon Today—The Judge Will Charge the Jury
Monday

Solomon S. Mayberry, former superintendent of charities, was recalled to the witness stand at the opening of court this morning, in the fifth day in the Brown-Harrington case.

Mr. Mayberry was asked if he had ever received complaints from the employees who had previously testified, and he replied negatively.

"Did you make any change after August 7?"

"I don't remember any except putting more butter in the hospital at the request of the mayor."

"Did you ever have any complaint from Thomas Welch or his sister?"

"His sister wanted him placed outside. But we didn't have sole jurisdiction as he was a board of health case."

"Did you give any instructions to the employees on assuming charge?"

"I told them I wanted them to give the inmates all they wanted to eat, but stop the waste."

"That was my slogan the year through. I also told that to the inmates."

Cross-examined:

"What was your business before you became superintendent?"

"Superintendent of cemeteries."

"And before that?"

"Overseer in Fitchburg's hospital."

"You knew nothing about running a charitable institution when you were elected?"

"Nothing."

"You allowed the head of each department to manage his or her own department?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then isn't it true that these people of all people are the most familiar with conditions in the different departments?"

"It is true."

"And there is no one who is better able to describe the conditions there than these people? Isn't that a fact?"

"It is a fact."

"I think I was. I'm positive I must have been."

"Isn't it a fact that there were periods of a week at a time when you weren't in the nursery at all?"

"I think there were."

"Weren't there periods of two weeks?"

"I wouldn't say two weeks."

"You were interested in farming, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"And often you have spent a whole day pitching hay?"

"No, not over two hours."

"You went to city hall nearly every day?"

"Every day but one. I went there morning and afternoon."

"You spent practically the entire day in your office at city hall and going to and from?"

"That part of the day from 10 in the morning to 5 at night."

"When you left office did you leave the storehouse at the farm well stocked?"

"What do you mean by well stocked?"

"Didn't you make large purchases of supplies in December?"

"I don't know what you mean by big purchases."

"Did you purchase as much in December as any other month while you were there?"

"I don't know. I'd have to look it up."

"Did you ask the charity board for money?"

"No."

"Did you feel yourself cramped for want of money?"

"I didn't hesitate to buy what I needed."

"And you had money enough?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did Mayor Brown ever dictate to you how to run the farm?"

"Not about running the farm."

"About what?"

"I don't remember that he dictated to me."

"Did he ever attempt to dictate to you in the matter of employing nurses and help?"

"I don't think he dictated to me."

"Did he make any suggestions about employing anyone?"

"I believe he mentioned someone that someone had talked to him about, and we talked it over."

"And you acted upon his intimation?"

"Not until I saw the other party."

"Didn't you want to employ a party as a nurse and then you told her that you couldn't hire her because the mayor wanted someone else?"

"I can't remember. I don't know."

"There was just one position in the early part of the year. The mayor spoke to me and then I hired the man after I spoke to Mr. Howe," said the witness.

"Were there inmates who refused to work?"

"Yes, some of them as soon as they got a pair of shoes and were asked to go to work, they left."

"Some stayed after refusing, did they not?"

"They did. I wouldn't put anyone out for not working."

"Didn't some of them tell you to go to a certain hot place, that the mayor was running the place?"

"They did not."

"You said there was no change in the food after August?"

"No."

"And if Mr. Donlin, Miss Kelly and others say that there was a change would you still adhere to that statement?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you make out the requisitions for city hall?"

"Mr. Mahoney made out most of them and I looked them over and signed them."

By Mr. Hill: "Did Commissioner Howe recommend or endorse the appointment of Mr. Hough?"

"He certainly did."

By Mr. Quinn: "You're not superintendent now?"

"No."

THIRD ANNUAL

Middlesex Social Club
Round Festive Board

The Middlesex Social Club, a popular social organization, that listens to the political arguments of both parties, held its third annual banquet at its comfortable quarters last evening. There were present, in addition to about 100 members, Mayor McManus, Purchasing Agent Mackenzie, Senator Hibbard, Reps. Barlow and Marchand and several candidates for municipal offices. Many well known Middlesex street business men are members of the club and all were present. The banquet was called at 10 o'clock and for half an hour preceding it Clark's orchestra gave a delightful concert program while a reception was held.

An excellent menu was provided. The orchestra kept busy while the guests discussed the menu.

The speaking which followed was opened with an address of welcome by Mr. Eddie Charron, president of the club, who also introduced Rep. George E. Marchand as the toastmaster of the occasion. Mr. Marchand made a witty speech, in which he declared an embargo on political speeches for the evening.

Mayor McManus was the first speaker and he spoke thoughtfully on the subject of "Good Citizenship."

Other speakers were Senator Hibbard, Rep. Barlow, Purchasing Agent Mackenzie, President Victor Jewett of the common council, Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Fred Harris, William Renaud, Henry Charron, Ad. Berard, and several others, while the speeches were interspersed with music and song.

The officers of the club are as follows:

Ex-presidents—Henry J. Charron, William Renaud, Adolphe Berard.
Officers—Eddie Charron, president; Sidney Laflamme, vice president; Fred Droin, treasurer; Henry Berard, financial secretary; Ralph Sawyer, recording secretary; Charles Varum, board of directors; Joseph Brodeur, board of directors; Donald Sawyer, board of directors; E. Lizzotte, sergeant-at-arms.

LOWER PRICES

IN THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN MARKETS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Lower prices both at home and abroad are a characteristic of the latest price figures of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. In the monthly summary of commerce and finance issued by that bureau are presented weekly price quotations of certain articles in the leading markets of the United States and the average monthly export and import prices of the leading articles exported and imported. These quotations are especially interesting because they show not only the current wholesale prices in the leading domestic markets and the average monthly export prices of leading articles, but also prices in foreign countries of the principal articles imported into the United States. The valuation of each article imported represents its actual market value, or wholesale price as bought and sold in usual quantities at the time of exportation to the United States in the principal markets of the countries whence exported. This makes the monthly and annual import quotations a fair index of the prices and trend of prices in other parts of the world with reference to the principal articles imported.

A study of the prices quoted by the bureau of statistics, shows for the latest available date a definitely marked downward movement in recent months. While there are, of course, exceptions and a few articles in which the latest prices are higher, a very large proportion of the articles imported, exported, or sold in the domestic markets show lower prices in August than those of earlier months.

Taking first the prices of imports, the figures show the average price per pound of raw wool of class one, imported in August 21.2c, against 27.7c in July, 24.1c in June, and 20.8c in May, 1910; boards, planks, etc., 18.6c in July, in August, against 18.8c in July, and 20.0c in January of the current year.

MAKE YOUR OWN
HAIR TONIC

A Specialist's Advice

In a recent issue the New York Herald published a special article on the care of the hair, in which was given the formula for a home-made Hair Tonic, which was highly recommended for its remarkable hair-growing properties, as well as for stopping falling hair, revitalizing the hair roots, and destroying the dandruff germ. This article was of special interest to me, as the formula was one which I myself have seen used in countless cases with most astonishing benefit. Thus confirming my belief that home-made preparations are the best for the benefit of those who have not seen it before, I give the formula herewith.

Procure from your druggist an eight ounce bottle containing six ounces of Bay Rum, also purchase a two-ounce bottle of Lavona de Composee (Smith's) and a half dozen of the Crystal. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and then add the Lavona de Composee; shake thoroughly and apply night and morning to the roots of the hair, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips. This preparation contains no coloring matter, and will not stain the hair. For the natural color by its action on the hair roots. If you desire it performed add one teaspoonful of To-Ka-Ton Perfume, which combines perfectly with the other ingredients and imparts a most pleasing scent. Be sure to get all enclosures in the Lavona de Composee package, as they give much valuable advice on care of the hair and besides entitle you to a sprinkler top for your bottle, free of charge. Do not apply where the hair is not desired.

In a few articles, including flax, jute and hemp, other than manilla the August import prices are higher than in the immediately preceding months, while pig iron averaged $34.09 per ton in August, against $27.81 in July, and $29.56 in June of the present year.

On the export side of the August prices, which are based upon the current market quotations at the place of exportation, are, in most cases, lower than in recent months. Corn exports averaged 70.5c per bushel in August, against 73.7c in July. Wheat, while higher in August than in May, June or July, was materially lower than in the earlier months of the current year. Flour exports averaged $5.04 per barrel in August, against $4.90 in July, $5.42 in May, and $5.13 to $5.32 in the earlier months of the year. Copper pigs averaged 12.7c per lb., against 12.6c in July, 13c in May, and 13.4c in April. Unbleached cotton cloths 6.8c per yard in August, against 7.1c in July, 7.5c in June, and 8.1c in March. Lumber, the class averaged $20.90 per thousand feet in August, against $21.01 in July, $22.50 in May, and $22.87 in April. A few articles, however, have advanced somewhat in price. Cotton exports in July and August averaged 15c per lb., against 14.6c in April, May and June, and $22.15 per ton in August, against $18.83 in July, and $20.43 in May; canned beef, 11.8c per lb. in August, against 11.8c in June and July and 12.1c in May; and hams, 15c per lb. in August, against 14.7c in June and July.

Latest quotations of wholesale prices in the domestic markets are, in most cases, lower now than a few months ago. Washed XX Ohio wool on Sept. 20 was quoted at 30c per lb., against 32c in June, and 35c in March; Bessemer pig iron at Pittsburgh on October 1 was quoted at $15.90 per ton, against $18.65 in March; steel bars, $28 per ton on Oct. 1, against $29 in the earlier part of the year; crude Pennsylvania petroleum on Oct. 1, $1.30 per barrel, against $1.40 in March; and refined petroleum in casks, 9.9c per gallon on Oct. 1, against 10.0c in August; hides, No. 1, packers' heavy Texas steers, in the Chicago market, 14.4c per lb. on Sept. 1, against $2.00 in July, 1.8c in June and 17c in April; Para rubber, $1.65 per lb. on Oct. 1, against $1.85 on Sept. 3, and $2.75 on April 2; red winter wheat, No. 2, $1.01 1/2 per bushel on Sept. 29, against $1.11 on July 25, and $1.25 on March 31; corn, 61 1/2c per bushel, on Sept. 23, against 73 1/2c in July 23, and 80c on April 23, 23c per barrel on Sept. 25, against 25.5 on July 25 and $27.50 on March 31.

COLUMBUS DAY

Question Whether Saloons Must Close

Next Wednesday will be Columbus day, and inasmuch as it is a legal holiday, the board of police is anxious to learn if the saloons must remain closed on that day like on other legal holidays. The following letter has been sent to City Solicitor W. W. Duncan, asking him to express his opinion:

William W. Duncan, Esq., City Solicitor, Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sir:—The board of police of the city of Lowell respectfully requests your opinion on the following:

Does chapter 473 of the acts and resolves of 1910, which makes the 12th day of October a legal holiday, to be called Columbus Day, mean that persons licensed to sell intoxicating liquors under a first class or first and fourth class license as common victuallers and retail dealers must not sell, or give away said liquors on their licensed premises?

Does it also mean that persons licensed as innholders, to sell intoxicating liquors, may sell said liquors to bona fide guests only?

A prompt answer will be appreciated by the board of police of the city of Lowell.

WATER CONTAMINATED

Engineer Warns Palmer People to Boil It

PALMER, Oct. 7.—Such water as remains in one of the reservoirs of the Palmer water company is contaminated, in the opinion of the chief engineer of the state board of health.

The engineer examined the conditions about the reservoir now in use yesterday afternoon, in company with Dr. J. P. Schneider of the local board of health. There are three reservoirs, one above the other. The upper two are empty and the lower one nearly so. In the latter are dead and dying fish, and the state engineer issued a warning last evening that water used for domestic purposes must first be boiled.

The engineers of the fire district have established an extra fire patrol, and will continue this precaution so long as there is lack of water.

Manager Gamwell of the water company has stopped all waste within his power. Consumers have been cautioned to use as little water as possible.

The only water supply here, except private springs, is that of the Palmer water company. Most houses in the village of Palmer are supplied by the company. Some householders will buy water from private springs and others will boil the water of the water company while it lasts.

There is some water constantly running into the reservoir. Unless this falls there will be sufficient water for domestic purposes, after boiling, for some time. The district is helpless in this case.

case of fire, however, as all the water now stored would be drawn out in a short time through three or four lines of hose.

The only relief possible is from rain. The inhabitants are greatly disturbed and it is freely predicted that at the next town meeting the town will vote to establish an adequate water system.

Similar conditions prevailed some years ago and there was agitation for a municipal system. The water company enlarged its capacity, but it is said its plant is incapable of further development.

The state board of health will make a further investigation and advise as to the wisest course.

LOSS IS $3,500

HOME OF JOHN M. WALSH WAS DESTROYED

AMHERST, Oct. 7.—The house of John M. Walsh, valued at $3,500, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. His farm buildings were burned Saturday. He and his family were in Northampton. Smoke was discovered by a man working in a field near by.

Melrose Paige responded to the alarm, speeding his auto car a mile to the house with chemical extinguishers, but a strong wind and no water prevented putting out the fire. The furniture was partially saved and the loss is partially covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is uncertain, but may have been an incendiary's work.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN THE WOODS

CONWAY, Mass., Oct. 7.—The body of Frederick Cousins, aged 37, was found yesterday by Alvin Boice in woods near the grist mill of Mr. Boice.

Mr. Cousins had been employed in a local shoe factory. He left the boarding house of Mrs. Clara Eldridge on Tuesday, feeling somewhat discouraged. He evidently shot himself in the woods.

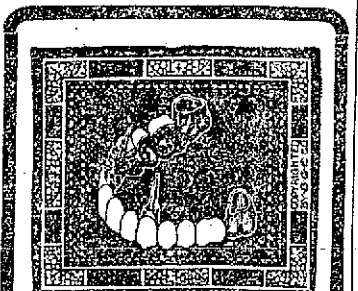

He was missed but it was thought he might have gone out of town. He was unmarried. His mother lives in North Adams and the body will be taken there today. A brother lives in Lynn, another in Troy and a sister lives in Boston.

BILLS APPROVED THE CELEBRATION

By the Committee on At Tewksbury Congregational Church Closed

Alderman Qua, chairman of the committee on accounts, at a meeting of that committee last night, called attention to an old ordinance holding that all articles bought for the city and weighing over 100 pounds must be weighed on city scales. The ordinance was passed in 1896. The provision of this ordinance has not been carried out for years and the chairman thought it would be a good idea to ask the city solicitor for an opinion as to whether the ordinance was still in effect. If the city solicitor says the ordinance is still in effect the purchasing agent will be instructed to comply with the ordinance.

No bills were held up at last night's meeting and a bill held up at the last meeting was approved, the bill having been investigated and found to be all right.

The second and last day of the celebration of the 175th anniversary of the Tewksbury Congregational church closed last night with a banquet, speeches and music. The exercises yesterday opened at 3 p. m. with a large attendance. The pulpit was resplendent with beautiful floral decorations. Rev. Sarah A. Dixon presided, and the speakers were Rev. T. C. Langdale of Salem, Rev. Harvey H. Bishop of North Andover, Prof. William H. Ryder of Andover, Rev. Samuel French of Londonderry, Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., of Lowell, and Rev. Lyman B. Rutledge of Billerica. The celebration, as a whole, was a big success from start to finish.

FATALLY INJURED

MAN CAUGHT BETWEEN CARS IN WILLIAMSTOWN

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 7.—Cyrus W. Wheeler, aged 34, a brakeman on the B. & M. railroad, was caught between two cars in the railroad yard yesterday afternoon and fatally injured.

He attempted to pass between two cars, one of which was moving, when he was pinned between the cars and his right side crushed, every rib in it being broken. He was taken to the North Adams hospital.

He has a wife and one child. He has worked on the railroad only a short time.

DEFECTIVE LIGHT

GAVE THE POLICEMEN A BURGULAR SCARE

The flashing of a light for several minutes early this morning in the store of the Kennedy Biscuit Co. in Appleton street caused several patrolmen to believe they were about to capture a burglar.

The light in the store was discovered about 1:30 o'clock this morning by Patrolman J. T. Kelly. He immediately summoned several fellow patrolmen and they surrounded the place. Then one of the patrolmen entered the store. An investigation showed that a defective light in the place had been the cause of the unnecessary trouble.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

James A. Garfield, W. R. C., held its regular meeting last evening. Considerable routine business was disposed of during the evening. Mrs. Mira Kilpatrick presided. One application for membership was acted upon. The annual inspection of the boys will be held on the evening of Nov. 3. Mrs. Mary Landt of Hyde Park will be the inspecting officer.

Knights of Pythias

At the regular meeting of Lowell Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held last night, the rank of page was worked on one candidate. It was announced that a number of candidates will be initiated in the rank of esquire next Tuesday night. Next Thursday night the deputy past chancellor, Alvin E. Joy, will be present and a reception in his honor will be in order.

Div. 1, A. O. H.

Division 1, A. O. H., held a well attended meeting in Hibernian hall last night and transacted a large amount of routine business. Ten candidates were initiated, and five propositions were received. At the social hour following the business meeting, there were remarks by President McMullen, John O'Hair, Terence Gray and Thomas McCann; songs by James E. Burns; readings by John O'Laughlin, and other numbers. Light refreshments were served.

DRACUT

The "Old Liners," an organization made up of residents of Dracut, held the first of their bi-monthly socials of the season in Grange hall last night. The attendance was very large, demonstrating the fact that the enthusiasm in these events did not lessen any during the summer season. The affair was also an enjoyable one, both from a social as well as a financial standpoint.

Hilbard's orchestra furnished music for the dancing and the program was a most satisfactory one judging from the encores given.

Ice cream and cake were served at intermission after which dancing was resumed and continued until midnight.

The socials are under the direction of the following committee: Frank Hunsley, Fred P. Vinal, Bert A. Cluff, Asa Stickney, William Johnstone.

WANDERERS VS. Y. M. C. A.

The Wanderers, champions of the Lowell & Suburban league, and the Y. M. C. A. team will clash at Washington park on Saturday afternoon. These two teams are considered the strongest in the city and a good fast contest is assured.

The Wanderers will present the same lineup which defeated the Cadets on Saturday last, and with Sharkey, who has been pitching for semi-pro teams in New Brunswick and Maine, on the mound, they are quite confident of taking the game. The Y. M. C. A. will have the same line-up which has been so successful of late in taking ten straight games. Doyle will twirl for the Y. M. C. A. team, with Manning on the receiving end.

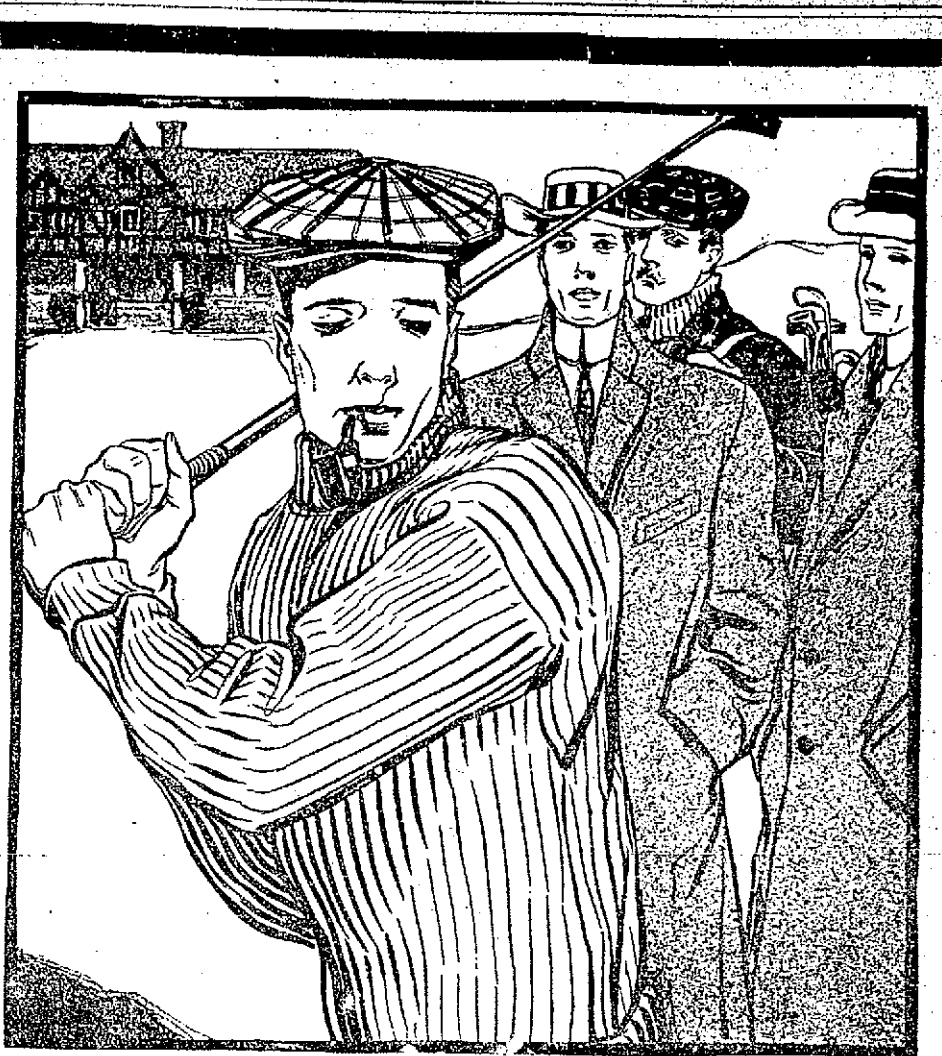

The lineup for the game: Wanderers—Sharkey p., Burke c., O'Brien or Godfrey 1b., Cashman 2b., Harris 3b., Donnellan ss., O'Day ss., White lf., Buckley cf., Allen rf.

For the Y. M. C. A.—Fahy 3b., Scott cf., Grant ss., Manning c., Law 1b., McVoy 2b., Jordan lf., Doyle p., Swan and Campbell rf.

McGreavey will umpire the game, which will start at 3 o'clock.

POLLING PLACES CHANGED

The list of polling places is advertised and it will be noticed that there are changes in three wards. In precinct 3 of ward 1 the booth is changed from the corner of Bridge and Jewett streets to the corner of Bridge and Ninth streets. In ward 3 the booth for precinct 3 will be located on Pine street, between numbers 12 and 20, instead of opposite the Highland school. In ward 8, precinct 3, the booth will be on the southerly corner of Lincoln and Main streets, instead of the northerly corner.

PEACE REIGNS

Trouble in Portugal is About at an End

LISBON, Oct. 7.—The new ministers of the provisional republican government took effective possession of the ministries at 5 o'clock last night, all the citizens have returned to their normal duties and a semblance of order is being rapidly restored to the official routine. Nearly all the banks and commercial offices, together with the customs houses, have reopened in response to a request by the military governor.

The large force of volunteer soldiers which was recruited at the beginning of the uprising and furnished with arms from the government's reserve supplies is being disbanded. The volunteers are returning the weapons which were served out to them. It is reported that Admiral Candido

Reyes, one of the leaders of the revolution, has committed suicide, but no details of his rumored death are available.

THE FOSS MEN

Not Pleased With Action of Ex-Congressman Thayer

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At a brief meeting this morning the committee appointed to name the substitute candidate for governor decided to select a fifth member and then adjourned until noon.

Joseph A. Maynard of Boston said

STOPS ITCHING AT ONCE

A chemist recently discovered that an extract from a particular tree possesses such soothing and curative properties that when applied to eczema and similar diseases it stopped the itching at once. Sufferers who use it are amazed at the quickness of the relief which follows its use. It heals the skin and removes all traces of the disease. The name of this new remedy is Cadum. It is sold by all druggists at the 10c and 25c a box. Cadum is equally good for sores, scaly skin, chafings, psoriasis, pimples, itching piles, etc. People who have been afflicted for years with skin troubles, and who have tried everything without being relieved, should take fresh courage because this new remedy differs from anything else.

that the members of the committee confidently expected Mr. Mansfield to withdraw, although under the law he cannot be compelled to do so by reason of the agreement made at the convention conference early today.

Republican leaders professed this morning to feel extremely jubilant at the outcome of the democratic convention. They made no secret of the fact that yesterday they felt some apprehensions over republican success in the November election, but they said today that the democratic convention by its action had removed every obstacle to Gov. Draper's reelection.

Eugene Foss and Martin Lomasney refused absolutely today to discuss or comment on the action of the convention. Mr. Lomasney said he had no idea as to the candidate upon whom the committee would agree nor had he any suggestions to make concerning a candidate.

Other Foss supporters, however, were not so uncommunicative as Mr. Lomasney. These men criticised the action of Chairman Thayer, who, they claim, lost control of the convention.

Shortly before the convention adjourned this morning Chairman Thayer, in addressing the delegates, admitted that he erred in entertaining a motion to proceed with the balloting, whereas the rules provided that the balloting be continued until a nominee was selected. The Foss supporters, who were outspoken in their criticism of the chairman, contended that Mr. Thayer had no right to address the convention when he withdrew his candidacy and offered a compromise although this compromise was the result of a conference participated in by an equal representation of the Foss and Thayer factions. The Foss men declared today that their candidate would have been elected on the third ballot. Temporary Candidate Mansfield in a statement today left no doubt as to his intention to withdraw within the 72 hours provided by law. He said:

"I positively will withdraw just as soon as the sub-committee appointed by the convention selects a candidate to take my place. I will withdraw only when this happens and at the request of no other person or body of men. There is very little that can be added to the statement made by Mr. Thayer in the convention when he placed my name in nomination. Solely for the good of his party and in the interests of harmony he made the great sacrifice which is recorded in the newspapers of today. This sacrifice and the manly attitude which he took before the convention make him the first and biggest man in the democratic party in Massachusetts."

One of the developments of today was the fact that the time for filing convention nominations for state officers does not expire at 5 p. m. today, as was stated in the convention early today. One of the principal reasons advanced for the compromise candidacy of Mr. Mansfield was the claim that unless the nominations were filed by 5 p. m. today they would not appear on the ballot for the November election. At the office of the secretary of state it was said today that the time for filing nominations does not expire until Monday, Oct. 10.

A provisional candidate for lieutenant governor, who, like Mr. Mansfield will withdraw later, was selected by the committee of five in the person of the Clifton Loring of Medford. For two years Mr. Loring has been executive secretary of the democratic state committee.

The nominations of Mr. Mansfield and Mr. Loring, it was arranged, were to be filed at the office of the secretary of state during the afternoon.

After electing Mr. Loring as stop-gap for the second place nomination, the committee adjourned, probably until tomorrow.

SUPT. THOMAS

Says That the Cook-Well Water is Pure

There are people in Lowell who do not like the Cook well water as well as the boulevard water. Its purity seems to be under suspicion, but there isn't any reason for suspicion. Speaking of the Cook well water as compared with the boulevard water, Supt. Thomas of the water department said: "The Cook well water is a little harder and a little colder than the boulevard water, but we have no reason to believe that it isn't just as pure."

The Cook wells are running at the present time and will continue in active operation until the 12 inch pipe removed in Lincoln street because of the grade crossing work there has been replaced. It is necessary to do this in order to afford the necessary pressure for the Highlands.

The conduit carrying the water from the boulevard has been given a thorough cleaning and the water department has men working for the gas company and the textile school. The department is also putting in a new

Elevator All Right Again

After a "lay off" of about four weeks the elevator at city hall is doing business again at the old stand. A simple little cylinder was responsible for the long spell of idleness on the part of the elevator. The elevator man had such a long rest that he developed rheumatism. City Messenger Pattee had his first ride on the elevator this forenoon; that is, his first ride since the elevator was fixed. Mr. Pattee is somewhat under the weather. He is suffering from a severe cold. The school department has offices on both the top and lower floors at city hall and the attaches of that department are among those who are sincerely glad that the elevator has renewed its ups and downs.

Worthing Street Baptist Observes AnniversarySUPPER SERVED BY MEMBERS OF CONGREGATION

Men of the Round Table Meet and Discussed Plans for Winter Season—Coffee Party at Grace Universalist Church

The vestry of the Worthing Street Baptist church was the scene of a very pleasant gathering last night. The event was the 15th anniversary of the organization of the church. Previous to the anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Bohannon observed their 52d marriage anniversary. They had a reception previous to the supper.

The supper was given by the members of the congregation and the women of the church had general supervision of affairs. Rev. A. P. Wedge, the pastor, called to order, and talked on the anniversary.

A duet by George E. Drew and Harry Hopkins, with Mrs. Geo. E. Drew as accompanist, was so well given that an encore was demanded. Albert Wilson entertained with a concert selection and he was followed by Mr. Bennett, who spoke on "Home Work." He said, in part: "In a way I am an optimist when it comes to the work of the Christian church. Some might call me a dreamer. I believe that there is work for the church, a lot of work. This talk that one hears on all sides, that there are too many churches, is all folly. A man ought to be ashamed to make such a statement. The intelligence and good of a community is generally judged by the number of churches and institutions it contains."

"I see many possibilities for the church to accomplish. First, the church should be full of hearers on Sabbath morning and should also have a large Sunday school membership. The Friday night meetings should have an encouraging attendance. With these conditions the finances of a church come easy. To accomplish such results the members of a church should co-operate with its pastor, listen to his advice and follow as he would have you follow."

"These are the possibilities, I say, that I see about me, and may we all live to see a realization of them in the near future. They can come, and will, if each one does his or her part."

A song by Mr. Hopkins followed, and after him, Rev. J. A. Francis, D. D., of Boston, spoke on "Christ's Way of Doing Things." He said, in part: "I have come to know your pastor well of late and, as a result, I have come to like him well. On this occasion, however, I will not divert from my subject to congratulate you on your pastor, but more to congratulate your pastor on his congregation."

"Christ possessed that irresistible power to convert to his fold many who were thought to be beyond all redemption. The same power he vests in you all. This church could be an irresistible power in the city, if its every member developed in him that power granted him. Religion is a personal acquaintance with Christ and is therefore necessary, if one is to accomplish things in this life. If you have a true friend, you can save a soul. You can wield power over others by your example. What Christ has done for us has mortgaged us for life. Take up the work, then, and do something by displaying some personal interest in the work that Christ would have you do. If you do this, the world will be better for it and your church will benefit likewise."

The supper committee of the evening consisted of Mrs. G. D. Farley, chairman; Mrs. G. R. Myers, Mrs. Geo. Harris, Mrs. G. E. Brock, Mrs. W. N. Burke, Mrs. K. Gardner, Mrs. Burton H. Wiggin, Mrs. A. B. Wilson, Mrs. O. C. Ledbetter, Mrs. Albert McQuestion, Mrs. John Dunn, Miss Annie Kimball, Miss Jones and Miss A. Gertrude Stiles.

The matrons of the tables were Mrs. Findley Stevenson, Mrs. E. S. Dieckford, Mrs. O. C. Dodge, Mrs. A. B. Wilson, Mrs. John McQuestion, Mrs. Nutting, Mrs. Barter, Mrs. Frank Prescott, Mrs. George Hutton, Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. George L. Myers, Mrs. Garvis and Miss Ryan.

The young women who acted as waitresses were Misses Marion Farley, Emily Wiggin, Mildred McQuestion, Alberta McQuestion, Gladys Arnold, Lillian Arnold, Fanny Morrison, Alice Tabor, Lillian Swanson, Delsie Hutton, Lillian Dunn and Irene Walsh.

The young men who assisted were Messrs. Carl Mason, William Leggat, Horatius Leggat, Harold Shaw, William Wiggin and Ira Goldthwaite.

Men of the Round Table

A meeting of the Men of the Round Table, of the First Baptist church, was held last night. Alvin Sturges, president, spoke of the plans for the coming season. Snapper was served and there were several speakers.

A. G. Walsh spoke on "The High Cost of Living." Others who spoke, and their subjects, were: Albion F. Swanton, "The Object of the Men of the Round Table"; Edward W. Trull, "Twenty Years Ago and Today"; Benjamin O. Pillsbury, "The Social Gospel"; Rev. S. W. Cummings, "The Value of the Men of the Round Table

Livingston; "Mrs. Beauchamp," Miss Ruth Crawford; and "Nina," Miss Hazel Brainerd. Incidental music was furnished by Miss Eva Cruikshank.

$1000 IN GEMS

GANZEL HAD POCKET FULL OF DIAMONDS

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Diamonds valued at about $1000 were carried loosely in the pocket of Jacob Ganzel, one of the sailors passengers on the Leyland line steamer Bohemian, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool.

There was nothing on the declaration handed to the customs about the diamonds, and when the man was questioned he pulled them out of his pocket.

Questioned by acting Deputy Darling he said that they should be appraised as unset stones. A careful inspection of the gems by one of the experts showed that they had been mounted, and the man finally admitted that they had been and he pulled out a handful of rings. The diamonds were sent to the appraiser's stores for appraisal.

Two days ago one of the passengers of the steamer received a wireless message from a friend stating that the customs officials were unusually vigilant, and it was absolutely necessary that everything dutiable should be declared. This message was posted in a conspicuous place where all the passengers could see it.

The literary subject was in charge of Mrs. Cheney and consisted of vocal solos by Miss Margaret Sloan, accompanied by Miss Harriet Manaur, Mrs. Ellen M. Wheeler read an original poem entitled "Gleanings to the Club," which was enthusiastically received. ACTRESS FOUND DEAD

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—With a man's necktie knotted about her neck and the ends clutched in her hands, Katherine Primrose, an actress, 24 years old, was found dead in her room in a boarding house in West 44th street yesterday. On the dresser was a bowl containing poison.

Edward Starr, an actor living at the same house, who discovered the body, was held pending investigation of the case, although the police are inclined to the theory of suicide.

COLLEGE
BRAND
SUITS $15

One evening last week we overheard this remark made by a young man who was looking in our suit window: "Well, I never knew they carried $15.00 Suits here before."

That remark got us thinking. It showed two things clearly: that that young man didn't read our ads, and that the showing of $15.00 Suits wasn't made often enough, or long enough to leave an impression.

Then we wondered: how many more men are there in Lowell who don't know our strength in $15.00 Suits and Overcoats?

So we're devoting another week and another ad. to the $15.00 men—and we'd like to see them all—we'd just like them to compare our standard of $15.00 Suits with all the others in town. It would be absurd to claim to show as many styles—we DON'T—but we do claim a higher standard—a cleverer selection of models and fabrics—and better tailoring than any of the big stores.

We don't cover as MUCH ground, but we think that on the ground we do cover—the $15.00, $20.00 and $25.00 prices—we're "it."

You young men who have worn or heard of College Brand Clothes—what do you think of College Brand Suits at $15.00? Do you know any other store that sells as good suits at the price?

But, perhaps, you haven't seen them? Better do so this week while we've got them.

CONVICTS ESCAPE

Men Made Their Way Out of Sing Sing Prison

OSSEING, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Five convicts escaped from Sing Sing prison early today by sawing the bars off a window on the second floor of the chapel dormitory and letting themselves down on ropes made by tearing portions of their clothing into strips. The men dropped into the Hudson river and swam down stream.

The men who escaped are Isador Bloom, Joseph White, Robert Boylan, Walter Branigan and William Green.

They were serving short terms for lesser offenses and were confined in the chapel dormitory, which although not so strong as the prison proper, has been forced into use by the crowded state of the institution. It developed that in the breakaway the two keepers in the dormitory were attacked by the desperate men, one keeper being wounded into insensibility and the other bound hand and foot and rendered helpless.

play as "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" (in which he has appeared some 200 times in England) is likely to engender added interest in both personality and play. The Forbes-Robertson brothers early and appropriately divided their family name for stage purposes, though Ian Robertson did not quit the school room for the stage. He first underwent what he now described as "seven years' penal servitude" in the form of an apprenticeship to a famous firm of shipbuilders, burning his boats behind him, however, as soon as his articles had expired. He will be supported by an entirely English company, who have come over with him. The engagement here at the Opera House is for Oct. 10 and 11. Seats are now on sale.

THE SMART SET

S. H. Dudley, one of the best known and without honor except in his own country, on the stage, will head the famous "Smart Set" Company at the Opera House Wednesday, Oct. 11 next, week with a matinee. The organization will present that laughable three act musical comedy entitled "His Honor the Barber." The offering is said to be the best in which this remarkable troupe has appeared in years. Edwin Hanford wrote the book, Messrs. Brynm, Smith and Burris furnished the music and lyrics. All the songs possess a happy and catchy swing and several of the numbers are certain to be whistled before the engagement is half over. In the cast are S. H. Dudley, Ella Anderson, Lottis Grady, Andrew Tribble and last but not least, Alda, Overton Walker, who will offer an entirely original specialty.

"BINGVILLE BUGLE FOLKS"

"Bingville Bugle Folks" a beautiful rural comedy drama by Newton Newkirk and founded on the comic feature of the same name in the Boston Sunday Post, will be seen at the Opera House Oct. 13th. The play has already had an extended run in Boston, and was there pronounced by press and public as the best rural drama of the past decade.

A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI

Rarely indeed have Lowell playgoers been permitted to watch a performance in which every role is enacted in such an eminently satisfactory manner as will be the case when Thomas A. Wise and his supporting company will be seen in "A Gentleman from Mississippi" at the Opera House Oct. 14 and 15. Such a performance as will be given by Wm. A. Brady's original company in support of his jolly star, Thos. A. Wise as Senator Langdon, would carry even a poor play to success, and when material of such inherent strength and such absorbing interest as is in "A Gentleman from Mississippi" is placed at the disposal of Mr. Wise and a company of such gifted players, the result is exceptional. "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will be presented here exactly as it was seen for thirteen months in New York and for sixteen consecutive weeks at the Park theatre, Boston, last season.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

The striking third act of "The Tales of Hoffman," which is being sung at Hathaway's theatre this week, bears a resemblance to "Faust" in some of its essentials. Its music, however, is entirely different in character, and possesses a charm which is compelling. Homer Lind has given the production an excellent cast, and the work is conventionally played. Miss Helena Frederick, a good looking, competent soprano, has the role of "Antonia." George Crampton's "Dr. Miracle" is a well acted part.

The other acts are all good. Barnes & Robinson distribute a few songs, and Charles Montrell is far better than the average juggler. Kersey's myriophones is a novel musical machine, while Helen Carmen justifies the title of "the girl with the smile." Ruby Raymond and her boy dancers are exceedingly agile. The City Comedy Four supply music and create laughter. Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week, with special seats at the matinees for women.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Hallet & Stack are a hit at the Academy in their skit, "The Maid and the Mutt." It certainly is to laugh. Miss Stack sings a laughing song that gets every one started and they find it hard to stop. The Brucers are a lively pair of colored entertainers, and Mlle. Chester and her dog are well named as "the act beautiful." New moving pictures complete the bill. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

THEATRE VOYONS

"The human mind is a great study and eminent surgeons have devoted years to its study only to admit that there are things that are inexplicable. Today the Theatre Voyons shows a picture "A Home Melody" which tells a pathetic story of a mother and the recovery of her senses. The mother loses her mind when she hears that her only child has been drowned and for years is mildly insane. The playing of an old melody such as she and her daughter played together, lets in the first ray of light and she eventually recovers her mind. "Betty is Still at Her Old Tricks" is a roaring comedy with plenty of funny incidents and clever work. A scenic subject of the Molucca Islands is of great interest and a sterling Biograph dramatic subject completes a very fine bill.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

One of the best bills imaginable is on the program at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Bruce Morgan and his Pizzadilly Johnnies, head the list in an entertaining specialty in which catchy songs and some wonderful dancing prevail.

Then there is Danny Simmons—everybody knows Danny. He presents an intensely amusing sketch of imitations and parodies which keeps audiences in rows from curtain to curtain. The Aerial Magicians have a startling trapeze act, and Miss Mild Almond appears in unusual vocal imitations. The Scenic Stock company presents a laughable one act farce called "Mr. Muttie," which gives full play to the amusing.

BILLERICA

The winter arrangement of trains on the Boston & Maine railroad will go into effect next Monday. The changes are rather slight and will have no effect on the regular users of the trains. There will be the same number of branch trains, four southward and three northward daily. Where the changes occur, they only amount to a few minutes' difference. The branch trains that stop at Billerica Centre are as follows: To Boston: 6:50, 9:26 a. m., 4:22 p. m.; from Boston: 10:47 a. m., 4:47, 6:03, 6:48 p. m. From North Billerica to Boston: 5:54, 6:52, 9:19, 9:53, 10:08 a. m., 12:19, 2:49, 4:37, 6:18 p. m. From Boston: 7:01, 9:48, 10:55 a. m., 12:51, 2:33, 4:53, 6:16, 6:53, 11:25, 11:56 p. m.

OAKLANDS LINE

THE RUNNING TIME DURING THE BREAK BY SEWER WORK

There seems to be some misunderstanding relative to the running time of the Oakland car since the line has been "broken" as a result of the building of the new sewer in East Merrimack street. The following is the correct running schedule:

Leave "break" in East Merrimack street for Oakland—5:45, 6:16 a. m. and every 20 minutes until 7:36 a. m. then 8:00 a. m. and every 20 minutes until 11:30 a. m. then 11:52 a. m. and every 15 minutes until 3:05 p. m. then 3:30 p. m. and every 20 minutes until 12:30 p. m.

Return—Leave Oakland, 6:00, 6:28 a. m. and every 20 minutes, until 7:48 a. m. then 8:15 a. m. and every 30 minutes until 11:15 a. m. then 11:40 a. m., 12:05 p. m. and every 15 minutes until 3:23 p. m. then 3:45 p. m. and every 20 minutes until 12:45 a. m.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. John J. Nelson and Miss Della T. Slatery were united in marriage at the parochial residence of the humane Congregational church, Wednesday, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O. M. I., performed the ceremony. The bridegroom was Miss Catherine F. Slatery, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Thomas McCann. A reception was held at the home of Mr. John Starkham, 31 Floyd street, in the evening. Miss Marietta Marchant and Miss Annie F. Crowe assisted Mr. and Mrs. Nelson.

Atlas Tack Company Manager's Secret Bared By Death

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 7.—A short-notice of $130,000 and $150,000 was announced yesterday in the books of the late George W. Weymouth, president and general manager of the Atlas Tack company, controlled by the estate of the late Henry H. Rogers, Mr. Weymouth, who resigned from Congress, where he represented the 4th Massachusetts district from 1887 to 1901, to accept the position, was killed in an automobile accident in Brigham, Me., a month ago.

The examination of the president's books was made at the instance of Urban H. Broughton of New York, son-in-law of the late Mr. Rogers, who since Mr. Weymouth's death has been in temporary charge of affairs. It is understood that the accounting was made not from any suspicion of a defalcation, but merely in the regular course of business, to learn just where the affairs of the firm stood. The shortage, it is expected, will have no effect upon the continuance of the company's business.

Charges Create Sensation.

President and general manager of the Atlas Tack company, widely interested in business and banking in New England, an ex-congressman from the 4th district, and to every outward appearance an exemplary man and universally respected as a citizen, the charges against Mr. Weymouth's name have brought the flush of regret to the faces of his friends and created one of the greatest sensations recently uncovered in this section of Massachusetts.

The Atlas Tack company from which, according to the charges, the funds

SIX DAY RACE

Despite the reports to the contrary, Boston is to have a six-day bicycle race this fall. The new Boston Arena, Massachusetts avenue and St. Botolph street, has been leased by Alec McLennan, for many years manager of the Revere bicycle track, and promoter of the six-day races at the Park Square Garden, for the week of Oct. 31 to Nov. 5, inclusive.

Work upon the new track, which is to be a 10-lap one, has been started. It is one of the finest buildings in the country in which to hold a six-day race, and I have seen the best of them from coast to coast. The arena is one of the largest I ever saw, and will easily hold 4000 people.

McLennan has already signed up 24 men to ride in the long kind, and they will ride 10 hours each day. The arena will be thrown open to the public for the first time on Oct. 23, when a series of professional sprint races will take place.

WHERE SURGERY FAILS CUTTING WON'T REMOVE THE CAUSE OF PILES

Piles mean more than merely the pain of the stubborn little tumors. There is a condition inside that must be dealt with. Cutting is usually followed with later and worse attacks. A permanent cure can only be made by bettering the condition of the parts and getting a free circulation of the blood.

Hem-Roid cures all kinds of piles by internal action right on the cause. Sold by Carter & Sherburne, Lowell, Mass., and money back if it fails. $1 per bottle. Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B, Buffalo, N. Y.

works by half. This has been in operation for several months. Meanwhile Mr. Weymouth had been living modestly in a house rented from Jos. N. Nye on Main street, north of the bridge, on the east shore of the river. His establishment was very modest for a man of his supposed means, drawing a salary of about $12,000 a year. His wife was an invalid and the family did no entertaining. They kept one maid, but Mr. Weymouth apparently indulged in no extravagances. He rode to and from his office in a trolley car and was seldom seen in places of amusement. He was a member of the society of the Unitarian church, took some interest in the 32d degree of the Masons, and belonged to the Village Improvement society.

Killed in Auto Wreck

Early in September Mr. Weymouth went to Birmingham, Me., on a business trip to one of the factories of the American Shoe Finding company, of which he was president. On Wednesday, Sept. 7, he went out for an automobile ride with J. J. Landers to visit a piece of property in which Mr. Landers desired to interest him, accompanied by Percy Glass and F. A. Dineen, business men of Boston. In descending a steep hill outside the town Mr. Landers lost control and turned turtle. Mr. Weymouth was instantly killed and Mr. Glass and Mr. Dineen were seriously injured.

At the time of his death no soul had doubted the integrity of Mr. Weymouth, and prominent manufacturers and business men came from distant points to join with the leading citizens of Fairhaven in paying the last token of honor and respect.

Then came the astounding development that Mr. Weymouth had stolen thousands of dollars from the corporation. The surplus funds in the Washington bank had been drawn from time to time and it is estimated that the shortage is somewhere between $130,000 and $150,000. The accounts of the corporation are in such a tangled mess that it is impossible to accurately estimate the aggregate of Mr. Weymouth's shortcomings, but the amount will not be less than the minimum here stated.

AN AUTO BURNED

As a Result of Leaking Gasoline

An automobile belonging to Thomas Liegakis of a Cottage street was badly damaged by fire in Westford street shortly before 2:30 o'clock this morning. Mr. Liegakis was driving his car through the street when the gasoline started to leak and the latter following along the frame work became ignited and in a short time the automobile was one mass of flames.

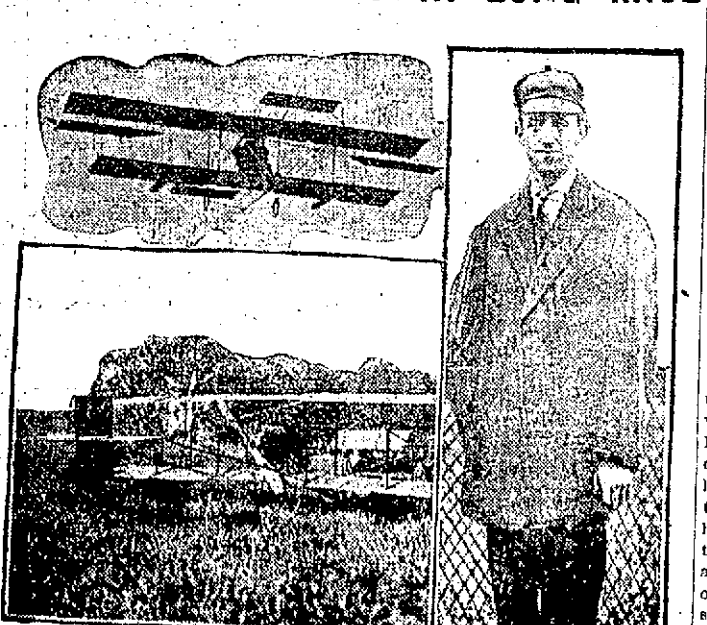

An alarm from box 135 was sent in and the chemical from Westford street was soon on the scene and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before heavy damage was done.

The machine was insured through the agency of Fred C. Church.

KING COLE, CUBS' PITCHER, MAY BE HERO OF WORLD'S SERIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Will Leonard Cole, the sensational young pitcher of the Cubs, proves to be the hero of the world's series? This question is being asked by every baseball fan here. In every series played for the premier baseball honors of the country one player has shone more brilliantly than all others. Last year it was Babe Adams of the Pittsburghs. Who it will be this season can be answered only after the games have been played. King Cole is the sensation of the National League, having led the twirlers of the older organization in number of games won. On account of his great work it is natural to expect that Cole will be a factor in the coming series. This is his first season in the big leagues. Chance secured him from the Hay City (Mich.) team, where he had divided his time between barbering and twirling. Cole is the youngest member of the Cubs' crew, being just twenty-four years old. He weighs 180 pounds and is six feet one and one-half inches in height. He was born at Toledo, Ia. Cole is a right hand heaver and also bats right handed.

MASSACHUSETTS MILLS

Made Third Payment on New $1,200,000 Stock

The third payment of 25 per cent on the new $1,200,000 stock of the Massachusetts cotton mills, says American Wool and Cotton Reporter, was made on Saturday last, the total amount involved in the payment being $300,000. The next and final payment is payable on Feb. 11, 1911, when the new stock will be issued, making the total capitalization of $3,000,000 all one stock. We cannot help again calling the attention of our readers to this stock, which, when compared with a number of other corporations, the Arlington, for instance, is now quoted ridiculously low. As a matter of fact, we doubt if the price, 115, at which the last public sale was made, would bring out any money which is being received from the recent increase in capital, the company is making improvements and additions, which will make its plant thoroughly up to date and modern, and the operation of which, in all likelihood, will enable the management to continue the same rate of dividends on a capitalization of $3,000,000 as it has been paying on its former capital of $1,500,000.

The management rightly stands high in the textile manufacturing industry, and Treasurer Edward Lovering is going to get only the best out of any property in which he has a predominant influence, and the manufacturing end of the concern is in the hands of capable, experienced, practical men. Moreover, this corporation has an option on the Massachusetts cotton mills of Georgia, a corporation which is an asset which is by no means to be passed aside in making an analysis of the parent company in Lowell. From the fact that it has done a lot of government contract work, nothing in addition need be said of the quality of its product. The selling end is in the hands of the well known selling house of Smith, Hogg & Company of Boston and New York, and is all that can be desired. The stock is now paying at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, and at 120, the investor gets a yield of 6 2/3 per cent. If Arlington mills, with a capitalization of $1,000,000, is worth $123 per share, then Massachusetts shares are easily worth 130.

During the afternoon session of the court yesterday, several witnesses were heard.

Winfred C. MacBrayne, former secretary to Mayor Brown, testified to a visit to the city farm with Mr. Howe. He was present at the meeting of the overseers in his office. Mayor Brown, he said, after introducing Mr. Draper, told the board that he had heard that banquets were held at the superintendent's house and that if there were any banquets he wanted the inmates in on them. He did not hear the mayor say that Mr. Courtney must be removed, or that he looked like a bartender. He heard him say something about the lady clerk getting too much money, but did not hear him say anything about her brother being in the liquor business.

Mr. MacBrayne recalled the regulation for the charity department held up by the mayor. It was the first regulation held up by the mayor.

Cross examined by Mr. S. K. Qua: "From that visit of yours to the farm, could you say what conditions existed there as to food?"

"No, I could only say what I saw in the kitchen that day. They were preparing potatoes for supper."

"Were you present all the time on the occasion of the meeting of the board in the mayor's office?"

"I went out twice, but I was present most of the time. I asked to be relieved but the mayor requested me to stay. I remained standing while they were present and I took no notes."

"You said that the mayor said Mr. Courtney had a banquet at his house?"

"Yes."

"Then Mr. Courtney was the subject of conversation?"

"As I recall it."

"What did he say about Mr. Courtney?"

"He said that certain cronies of Mr. Courtney were having banquets at Mr. Courtney's house and they were coming away on the last car. There seemed to be a little coldness on the part of Mr. Courtney and Mr. Pratt toward the mayor and they went away without saying good-night."

"What was the mayor's manner?"

"Well, when he talked about the graft he was quite aggressive and his voice is naturally loud. He used his arms and pounded the desk to emphasize his statements. When he spoke of the banquets he showed considerable feeling."

"Did the mayor discuss his appointments with you?"

"I believe he did."

"Did you advise him not to appoint

Mr. Dacey?"

"I did. There were many people coming to him, including Mrs. Dacey, to have Mr. Dacey appointed to the farm."

"Before this meeting of January 18 you had urged the mayor not to appoint Dacey?"

"I urged upon him not to consider Dacey as it would defeat him for reelection. After the new board came in several members discussed candidates who had come to them with the mayor's recommendation. The mayor denied having authorized anyone to use his name."

"On one occasion," continued Mr. MacBrayne, "I told the mayor that if he appointed Dacey I should tender my resignation."

"Was there any talk between you and the mayor about a superintendent before Mr. Courtney's removal?"

"No, there was none."

"Did you know that Courtney's removal was contemplated?"

"The mayor had exploited the city farm in his campaign speeches and had promised better conditions there."

"At this point four more witnesses were sworn by the plaintiff."

Malcolm T. Brown

Malcolm T. Brown, a hosiery man residing in Plain street, was the next witness.

He testified: "I made several visits to the city farm in 1909. I was there at meal times, mostly at dinner time. I went there for various reasons. I went there to buy pigs, to see the superintendent as a matter of courtesy and to see if the reports in the daily newspapers were true. I went there for dinner one Sunday. I never heard any complaints."

The witness was going along finely when the court suddenly interrupted with the remark that the trial was being prolonged as the witness was not an official visitor.

"What were those matters of courtesy?" asked Mr. Qua. "Did you pass your cow on the city farm land?"

"No sir," said the witness, emphatically.

"That's all," said Mr. Qua.

"But what made you draw that inference?" demanded Mr. Brown as he left the stand indignantly.

Charles O. Wing, a grocer, stated that he tested the tea and found it good.

"We are not contending that the tea was not good. We claim that they didn't give it to the inmates."

A Miss Esterbrook testified that she visited the hospital at the farm several times in 1909. She went there to visit a woman who had worked for her. She found everything all right there.

On cross examination Miss Esterbrook stated in response to Mr. Qua's questions that she was employed in Mayor Brown's office at city hall in 1909, during which period she made most of her visits to the farm. She admitted that she had no personal knowledge of the food or clothing at the establishment except when she visited there.

Mary Ellen Costello

Mary Ellen Costello testified that she was employed at the city farm in 1909. She had charge of a dining room. They had plenty of food in her dining room at all times.

"If they'd eat what was there," said Miss Costello, "they'd have enough. But you can't please some people."

"As there was clothing enough?"

"It was hard to get women enough to supply the demand for clothing. We had inmates in the sewing room rather than paid help."

Cross examined:

"Weren't there complaints when you couldn't turn out clothing enough?"

"They had no right to complain to me. One woman couldn't turn out clothing for 600 people."

"And there was food enough at all times?"

"There was food enough if they wanted to eat it."

"You know the McAdams sisters and Miss Keely?"

"And they are truthful women, are they not?"

"Well, I don't express my private opinion of people in public."

Miss Brodley's Testimony

A Miss Brodley, who assisted Mr. Donlon with the cooking, testified that she had heard no complaints about the food. She had heard complaints about clothing from women who wanted new dresses. She said she tasted the tea and at one time when the water was bad the tea was muddy.

Cross examined:

"Did you hear any complaints about the butter?"

"Yes, I heard the inmates say it was rancid."

"Did you hear any complaints about the tea?"

"At the time I referred to there was much complaint."

"Wasn't it a fact that after Mr. Howe made his report that gingerbread and prunes were served and not bread?"

"Yes."

"Wasn't it a fact, Miss Brodley, that you bought things out of your own pockets to put in the soup for the patients in the hospital?"

"Yes," said Miss Brodley quietly, continuing she said: "I bought onions to put in the soup when there was none at the farm. I thought they were needed."

"Did you tell Mr. Mayberry?"

"I didn't."

Walter W. Hartwell

Walter W. Hartwell, campaign manager, testified that he accompanied Harry Howe to the city farm in August.

"Did you hear the inmates talk to Mr. Howe?"

"Yes, I heard him ask them if they had enough food and they said 'yes.'"

"Did you taste the oleo?"

"Yes. It was kind of salty. It seemed all right."

Ex-Mayor Brown Again

Mayor Brown was recalled at this time.

"Did you say that you were prejudiced against Courtney and that he looked like a bartender?"

"I did not."

"Tell us about your talk with Mr. Pratt."

"Mr. Pratt came to my office and said he was going to resign. He said he was going on a long trip and asked me for a letter of introduction. I told Mr. Brown that Courtney looked like a bartender. I never told Mr. Brown to fire Courtney, and I never spoke to him about Dacey."

"Did Mr. Howe make any complaint against the farm?"

"Mr. Howe came to my house and told my wife and I that in past years at the farm 400 pounds of meat were charged up and only 150 people to eat it."

"Did Mr. Howe make any complaint during that year?"

"He brought some oleo to my house and said that while the money was low we might strain a point and get creamery butter for the hospital. I told him that I would tell Mayberry to send in a requisition for some creamery butter."

"Did Mr. Howe ever tell you that the inmates weren't receiving proper food?"

"No, he never did, and I never said that I would fire Mayberry and put back Courtney."

Mr. Brown was then asked about his visit to the farm at 4 o'clock in the morning.

"I went up there at 4 o'clock when all were in bed. I met an inmate named William F. Sullivan going into the barn and I asked him how he was being treated. He replied: 'As how do you suppose I'm being treated. The same as I ever was.' Just then another inmate said: 'You shouldn't talk that way before the mayor.' That was all the conversation."

"Did you go before the appropriations committee?"

"I went to the appropriations committee and asked them to give as much money to that board as to the former board. I begged and pleaded with them and they finally gave $75,000 while the year before they gave $85,000."

Cross-examined:

"Were the bad conditions at the city farm due to their limited appropriations?" asked Mr. Qua.

"Yes. That's a fact."

Mr. Qua had to appeal to the court to keep the witness to the questions as he insisted on branching forth beyond the limits of the question.

"The day you went to the farm at 4 o'clock was the day before the primaries, wasn't it?"

"I had no opposition. I got a unanimous nomination."

"Was it the day before the primaries?"

"I don't know."

"Wasn't it because it was the day before the primaries that you went to the farm?"

"My election had nothing to do with my duty," began the mayor.

"The question can be answered 'yes' or 'no,'" said the court.

"No," said the mayor.

"Did you go later in the year to the appropriations committee?"

"No, I did not."

"Wasn't it a fact that in the latter part of 1909 large purchases were made by the charity board for the city farm?"

"No sir. It was not."

Solomon S. Mayberry

Solomon S. Mayberry, formerly superintendent of the charity department, was called.

"Did you have many inmates there at the city farm when you went there?" asked Mr. Hill.

"There were about 400 and about 11 employees. Some of the inmates work."

"Did Mr. Howe ever complain to you about the conditions at the farm?"

"Did he ever complain to you of the poor quality of the food?"

"Not until the latter part of the year."

"Did he ever make complaints earlier?"

"He complained about the molasses cake in the year and I changed it."

"What was his complaint?"

"He said he thought it was unfit for people to eat it and I said I thought so."

"It was molasses that had been in the house and I suppose it had been served to them in the past," added Mr. Mayberry.

"Did you have a conversation with Mr. Howe in August?"

"He never made any complaint to me until after he had unfurled his banner to the breeze. I met Mr. Howe on the day he made his investigation. He greeted me cordially and said everything was looking well."

"How often did you go to the kitchen?"

"As often as I was needed."

"How often was that, once a week?"

"Yes, whenever I was needed."

"Did you ever sample the food?"

"Yes."

"How was the chowder?"

"It was fish chowder. I couldn't say why it wasn't good."

"Did you ever find any food not of proper quality?"

"No, I did not."

"Did any of them ever complain?"

"No."

"Did you ever see the old men wearing woolen caps in summer?"

"Yes."

"Were there straw hats there for those who wanted them?"

"There were. I didn't go out and protest on them. They knew if they wanted they could have them."

"Did you eat the same beef that was served to the inmates?"

"I did, all year."

"How was it that the butter was put on the bread in some cases?"

"We did it because the inmates would hide it under the bed and in corners."

"Did you ever have any complaints of rancid butter?"

"I never had any such complaints."

"Was there any time that the children were fed only on crackers and milk?"

"I don't know. I gave the nurse full charge and told her to go ahead and feed them as she saw fit."

"Did Mary G. Kelly ever complain to you?"

"Only on blankets."

"Did the McAdams sisters ever complain to you?"

"Never to me."

Three Men Charged With a Serious Offense

Almed Mohammed, Mohammed Shuckey and Mostafa Soolayman, who were arrested a few days ago, charged with assaulting Arthur J. Dennome, Joseph Ponetean and Joseph Champagne, were arraigned in police court this morning and charged with having committed a very serious offense. Through their counsel pleas of not guilty were entered.

The testimony of the complainants was held in an undertone and after the government had rested its case probable cause was found and each of the defendants was held under $1000 bonds for appearance before the November sitting of the grand jury.

Robbed His Employer

Daniel McGregor was charged with the larceny of six pounds of rubber, each pound of the value of 70 cents, the property of Earl P. Bryant. He admitted his guilt and though given a chance to speak said he had nothing to say in his own behalf. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $15 within three days or be committed to jail for two months.

Mr. Bryant conducts a carriage building establishment in West Third street and McGregor had been in his employ for the past four months. From time to time Mr. Bryant missed rubber and in all claims that 250 pounds was stolen from him. The day before yesterday he went to a box which contained tools belonging to McGregor and therein found nearly six pounds of rubber used in tires. He immediately reported the matter to the police with the result that McGregor was placed under arrest.

The case of Nicholas Sopronas, charged with failing to provide proper support for his wife, Georganna, was continued till tomorrow morning at the request of the government.

Failed to Appear

Louis Montferland was charged with failing to remove a vault, complaint having been made by the board of health. He was not present in court, however, and the case was continued.

Illegal Keeping of Pigs

Eddie L. Gray was charged with keeping swine within the city limits without permission from the board of health. At the request of his counsel the matter was continued till next Friday.

THE DEFALCATION

Not So Large as at First Expected

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 7.—The following statement relative to the defalcation of the late George Weymouth, president of the Atlas Tack company, was issued to the Associated Press today from the office of Crapo, Clifford & Prescott: "The statement in relation to the defalcation of funds of the Atlas Tack company by its late president which appeared in the morning papers is substantially correct. The sum taken is over-stated. The amount which it is absolutely known that Mr. Weymouth misappropriated is considerably less than the figure given. How much more is to be added depends upon certain investigations which are not yet completed.

"The statement that the books and accounts of the company are in confusion is absolutely incorrect. The books and accounts are in no confusion whatever as the defalcation was so managed as to have no connection whatever with the book entries.

"The statement also that the accounts were manipulated in order to warrant the declaration of larger dividends is also entirely incorrect. It also should be stated that the company is in no wise financially embarrassed by the loss due to the defalcation."

PLEADED GUILTY

Woman Failed to Declare Goods

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Mrs. Adrian Adriance, wife of I. Reynolds Adriance of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., pleaded guilty today before Judge Hand in the United States circuit court, criminal branch, to the charge of failing to declare $20,500 worth of jewelry and merchandise which she brought into this country when she arrived here on the Baltic on August 28 last and was sentenced to pay a fine of $500. The fine was paid. Judge Hand said that the imposing of jail sentences in smuggling cases, which was announced yesterday, applied only to cases developing after Oct. 5.

CUBAN REVOLT

MAN TOLD OF PLAN TO ARM INSURGENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Charged with forgery of a draft for $125,000 presented to the Savoy Trust company, and a check for $1000 in favor of the Hotel Martinique, a Cuban, who gave his name as Manuel Alvarez, but who later admitted that his real name was B. Aldomero Mendez, revealed to the court an attempt to arm Cuban insurgents. Mendez was indicted Sept. 27, on the charges of forgery, which is alleged to have been committed Sept. 19.

On the stand Mendez said he had gone from Havana to Maracaibo and then to Porto Cabello and Willemstad, and from the latter port to New York. After he came here, he said, he had been approached by Manuel Alvarez Garcia, the agent of the Cuban revolutionary junta, and commissioned to buy arms and ammunition. This agent he declared had assured him that $2,000,000 had been deposited in the Cuban bank, and had instructed him to draw upon the fund as he found necessary. This was July 22.

He testified that he had completed one deal for arms and war supplies to be delivered Sept. 1, and had paid for them with a draft similar to the one he gave to the Savoy Trust company, where his adventure was abruptly ended.

BROCKTON FAIR

Three Governors at the Show Today

BROCKTON, Oct. 7.—Executives of three states, Gov. Draper of Massachusetts, Gov. Quinn of New Hampshire, and Gov. Weeks of Connecticut, attended the Brockton fair today as guests of the Brockton Agricultural society.

Ex-Governors William L. Douglas and John D. Long of Massachusetts, Senator Lodge and Lieut. Gov. Louis A. Frothingham were also in attendance.

A heavy rainstorm failed to dampen the ardor of the visitors.

A firemen's muster and Marathon run from Boston were features of the day. In spite of the storm the attendance at one o'clock was estimated at 35,000, the largest last day the fair has ever known.

BURNED TO DEATH

Woburn Child Perished in a Fire

WOBBURN, Oct. 7.—Eleven-months-old David Lundin was burned to death yesterday afternoon after his brother John, three years old, had set fire to a tent made of boughs in which their mother had left them when she came to work in town here earlier in the day.

The tent had been constructed as a sort of playhouse for the youngsters. It was located close to the Lundin house, a story and a half cabin in an isolated part of North Woburn. The nearest neighbor is a mile away.

The baby had been strapped in his carriage by Mrs. Lundin and then wheeled out into the tent. She had then told John to look out for him and came into town, where she works, to help her husband, David Lundin.

John played around contentedly enough until he found some matches. These he lighted and with one of them he set fire to the tent, which was constructed early this summer. It was dry as tinder. The fire simply flared up before the boy's startled eye, consumed the tent and most of the wood-work on the baby carriage and then died out.

The tragedy was discovered by the mother. She is prostrated.

LIEUT.-GOVERNOR

CANDIDATES WILL BE SELECTED BY THE COMMITTEE

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The withdrawal of the three candidates and the active participation of a formidable squad of blue coated policemen, enabled the democratic state convention which convened at noon yesterday to adjourn at 1:30 today after nominating Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston as a compromise candidate for governor with an agreement on his part that some other name shall be substituted for his within 72 hours. The convention appointed a committee to make this substitution and to select a candidate for lieutenant governor. The balance of the state ticket is as follows:

Secretary of State—A. Z. F. Charost of Holyoke.
Treasurer—General B. F. Peach of Lynn.
Auditor—C. P. Paine of Barnstable.
Attorney general—John Ratigan of Worcester.

The convention was in session in the Faneuil hall for thirteen hours and the "crisis of liberty" shook with eloquent addresses and cheers which turned into jeers as the contest for governor became intensified until the climax was reached shortly after midnight, when half a dozen fist fights took place on the floor of the convention and flying wedges of delegates charged the stage. It required a rush line of twenty policemen to hurl back the invaders and obtain a semblance of quietness. It was then that the party leaders began to realize the danger of the situation, and the necessity of eliminating all personal ambitions as well as animosities.

The convention started shortly after noon yesterday with three candidates Eugene N. Foss of Boston; former Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown, twice the party standard bearer and former assistant secretary of the treasury Charles Hamlin of Boston, all confident of winning the principal prize.

It took four hours and a half to organize, adopt a platform that denounced republicanism and republican principles and hear three nominating speeches. James B. Carroll of Springfield presented Mr. Hamlin's name, Frank Richardson of Essex placed that of Mr. Foss before the convention while former State Senator Cusidy of North Adams in a speech which appeared to have a marked influence on the convention gave to the delegates the name of Mr. Vahey. A cumbersome method of balloting consumed four hours and it was 3:30 in the evening before the delegates found that none of the three candidates had a majority but that Mr. Foss led Mr. Vahey by 81 votes and later was seven votes ahead of Mr. Hamlin.

That the feeling among the delegates was unusually intense was shown immediately when Congressman John A. Kollier's effort to expedite the voting was vigorously attacked by Martin Lomasney, an ardent Foss supporter. The delegates were almost frantic at the venomous argument, an outcome of the ninth congressional district feud but quiet was finally restored.

Then Mr. Hamlin's name was practically withdrawn and a second ballot was ordered. This consumed three hours more and it was midnight when the convention found that although the fight was practically between Foss and Vahey the race was so close that the twenty delegates who still clung to Mr. Hamlin had prevented by four votes a victory for Mr. Foss.

During the period following the announcement of the result of the second ballot the proceedings in the exhibition of physical force, rivaled the famous convention at Springfield in 1907. Mr. Kollier and Mr. Lomasney attempted to renew their debate amid the howls of their supporters, who made them roughshod over the press box and the reporters, only to be thrown back by the strong arms of twenty policemen. Incipient fights started in various parts of the hall and for a few minutes the convention was of a most turbulent character.

Fortunately, Chairman John R. Thayer of Worcester was able to finally obtain a semblance of order long enough to entertain and declare carried a motion for a brief recess.

Realizing that to prolong the fight would engender lasting bitterness and endanger party success, the Foss and Vahey leaders at once held a conference, and at 1:15 a. m. Mr. Vahey presented the conference solution of the difficulty. This involved, first and foremost, the elimination of both himself and Mr. Foss, Mr. Hamlin having retired three hours before. Secondly, it gave the convention a chance to comply with the law in filing a state ticket before 5 p. m. today with Frederick Mansfield, a labor lawyer, as a temporary candidate for governor. The law permits any candidate for a state office to withdraw in favor of someone else within 72 hours after the filing of the papers. The third article of the compromise was that Mr. Mansfield was within that time and that a committee, consisting of Robert J. Crowley of Lowell and William B. Hayes of Springfield, two Vahey supporters; John A. Maynard of Boston and State Com. Chairman Frederick McLeod of Cambridge, two Foss men, choose a permanent candidate for governor to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Mansfield's withdrawal. The committee also will select a candidate for lieutenant governor. If this committee, after a conference today with the state committee, cannot agree upon a candidate it will select a fifth member to break the tie.

The compromise did not meet a unanimous approval, but the cheering shouts and yells of "no" were unheeded by the chairman and after the balance of the ticket had been completed the convention was hurriedly adjourned at 1:30 a. m.

The special committee went into session with the state committee nine hours later today. Mayor Fitzgerald does not agree with the representatives of the press who attended the convention, that the proceedings were conducted with difficulty because of disorder. The mayor in a statement issued today says that except on one or two occasions the convention was orderly and that these outbreaks were not of a serious nature. Mr. Fitzgerald praised the conduct of Messrs. Foss, Vahey and Hamlin.

LOSS IS $10,000

Fire at the Trull Farm in Tewksbury

THE TRULL HOMESTEAD IN RUINS.

One of the Most Spectacular for Years—Eight Horses and Other Live Stock Lost—The Dwelling and Barn a Total Loss

One of the most spectacular fires, which has illuminated the skies in this vicinity for years, destroyed the old Trull homestead and all of the adjoining farm buildings on the estate of the Lawrence road in North Tewksbury early this morning. The place was occupied by Frank B. Trull, thousands saw the reflection of the blaze in the flames for a distance of several miles from the scene of the fire.

The buildings were located on the summit of a hill and the blaze could be seen for miles around. The fire had not been burning long before it was discovered, but the flames, fanned by a stiff breeze, made such rapid headway that the efforts of those who were attached to the scene proved to be without avail.

The fire started shortly after 12:30 o'clock and was discovered by the members of the Frank B. Trull household. At that time the fire was in the barn and was burning in a lively manner. Neighbors in the vicinity did everything in their power to stay the progress of the flames, but finding this to be useless they then directed their attention to the saving of the house and outbuildings.

Attempts to save the furniture from the dwelling resulted in getting some valuables from the house. There were eight horses and some other live stock burned. The dwelling was connected with the barn and a shed. It was a big two story house. Only one chimney and the foundation remain. There was but a slight wind blowing at the time, and the house and barn burned as if of tinder. For a time, considerable alarm was felt because of the proximity to the burned buildings of the row barn and creamery buildings belonging to C. L. Wood. However, what slight wind there was took the flames and immense pieces of burning sticks in a northwesterly direction, away from those buildings.

The barn, which was a large structure, was filled with hay and that and all of the farm machinery were burned. The buildings, which were located near together, were valuable and it is probable that the property loss will approach between $8000 and $10,000. Mr. Trull carried insurance.

The buildings constituted the old Nathaniel Trull homestead, and were very solidly built, in the early part of the last century.

Word was telephoned to this city and Chief Hosmer sent Assistant Chief Norton and several pieces of apparatus to the scene, but when they arrived the fire was too far advanced.

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was 16,828

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Plottie, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

SENATOR LODGE ENDORSED

It is rather slight comfort for Butler Ames in his fight against Senator Lodge to find the latter praised in the party platform. When in addition to this Col. Roosevelt comes to Massachusetts to see that Senator Lodge shall be retained, there will be still less consideration for Mr. Ames. This endorsement of Lodge shows that the latter is afraid of Ames' opposition.

THE EAST MERRIMACK STREET JOB

Sewer work has been started on East Merrimack street, thus blocking street car traffic to a considerable extent. There are four car lines blocked by this sewer work and for that reason, Supt. Putnam should endeavor to rush the job as quickly as possible. There should be a large gang of men put on the work and a new gang should be ready to start when the first completes its eight hour day. The great inconvenience caused by the stoppage of such an important street should be sufficient to cause all concerned to push the work along.

THE COMMON DRINKING CUP ABOLISHED

The common drinking cup must go. It was outlawed in this state on October 1, although in a great many places no proper substitute has been provided. This is why Supt. Whitecomb appeals for a proper observance of this law.

The new law will remove one great danger of the communication of deadly diseases through the mouth. It is well that the young people should understand just why the common drinking cup has been abolished. The bubbling fountain will take the place of the cup but in its most common form the fountain is not as convenient or as serviceable as it might be. Time will doubtless bring improvements.

DISCUSSING THE NEW YORK BUDGET

The taxpayers of New York are hereafter to have an opportunity of judging of the department work and helping to decide upon the necessary expenditures. Each department asking for money is to present an exhibit of what it has accomplished, what it purposes to accomplish in the ensuing year and how much money is needed for that purpose. The heads of departments are required to show good cause before any money is appropriated and the taxpayers are free to oppose any expenditure they may see fit. The citizens in general are invited to offer suggestions or criticism of the work of any department, or of the amount of money sought to keep it going for another year. In this way the gathering purtaks in some degree the character of the town meeting. The idea is a good one and will probably be widely copied.

THE PORTUGUESE REVOLUTION

It seems that a revolution has been effected in Portugal, overthrowing the monarchy and establishing a republic with an unusually small destruction of life and property.

The revolution has been predicted for some time past and the movement has been growing steadily since the tragedy of two years ago when King Carlos and his oldest son were assassinated. Since that time the movement for a republic has been gradually undermining the monarchy. So effectively has it worked that the army and navy turned with the revolutionists and thus deprived the king of his only source of defense.

Nothing was left for the king but to seek safety in flight. Had he been able to resist for a time he might have called for assistance from England, but his defeat was absolute, and the victory of the republicans so complete that it would be hard for any European power at the present time to find a pretext for intervention.

The republicans had openly announced their intentions, and as recently as last August when they scored a complete victory throughout the country in the elections.

Dr. Alfonso Costa, the republican leader, announced the program without the slightest appearance of dread, saying: "We have given King Manuel notice to quit. The coming revolution will be a kindly affair. We shall kill the least possible number of persons."

It appears that the king is but a mere youth, having been prematurely brought to the throne by the assassination of his father. His inexperience must have weakened the monarchy so that control of the kingdom had slipped away and the power was eventually in the hands of the revolutionists. As soon as they found themselves well prepared they proceeded to strike the final blow which sent the king to flight and brought about the establishment of the republic.

We do not see how any of the other European countries can interpose now to stop this revolution unless a reign of terror be inaugurated which appears improbable.

The example of Portugal may stir up some disturbance in Spain, but the government of Spain is prepared to handle any uprising of the kind in an effective manner. Otherwise we should see a republic in Spain as well as in Portugal. The king and the government, however, are not so easily overcome, nor are the republicans so strong, or so well organized in Spain as they are in Portugal.

King Manuel will prove a pusillanimous monarch if he does not make some effort to recover his lost power. The history of Portugal holds out more examples of a monarch recovering power after a much worse revolution.

SEEN AND HEARD

Marshmallows or dividends, they just get eaten up.

A bald head will go around pluming himself that he isn't bowlegged.

A wife will stand more fault finding than the cook, because she is more used to it.

If a woman's mother comes to tea on Sunday evening, she can call it a week end house party.

A few men are so lucky that when they ask a girl to marry them she rejects them.

If a man hasn't any morals, he'd better have a tidy sum of money if he wants a good reputation.

There may be red headed angels in heaven, but how does it help things to have such tempers there?

The trouble with getting your salary raised by any amount is you raise your expense twice as much.

The negro boy was up for the fifth time on a charge of chicken stealing. This time the magistrate decided to appeal to the boy's father.

"Now see here, Abe," said he to the darky, "this boy of yours has been up in court so many times for stealing chickens that I'm tired of seeing him here."

"Ah don't blame you, sah," returned the father. "Ah's tired o' seeing him here, too."

"Then why don't you teach him how to act? Show him the right way, and he won't be coming here."

"Ah has showed 'im de right way, sah," declared the old man earnestly. "Ah has suttionly showed 'im de right way, but he somehow keeps getting caught comin' way wid dose chickens!"

Anderson C. Mott, the southern sociologist, discussed in a lecture in Andersonville the divorce problem.

"Woman should stand up for herself," he said. "I know a woman whose husband decided one lovely spring evening to take a night off at a pleasure park. So he rang for a messenger and wrote his wife a little message to the effect that his work would keep him at the office until midnight or thereabout."

"The messenger boy in delivering this message called attention to a slight limp."

"I got kicked across the street there, nunn," he whined. "I mistook the number and delivered your letter to the wrong house. The man was so mad he kicked me."

"The wife looked up from her husband's message absently. There was a hard glitter in her eye. Suddenly she smiled."

"Boy," she said, "here's a dime for you. Take this note back to my husband and tell him about that man who kicked you. But don't mention the mistake you made and don't let on you saw me at all."

"So the boy with the message returned to the husband, who was shining his boots for the pleasure park."

"Well," he said, "why did you bring this back?"

"Because they wouldn't take it," said the boy. "A gent came to the door and he was furious. He told me if I didn't get it he'd break my neck."

"Humph," said the husband. He closed the blacking box suddenly. He bit his lip and frowned. He was rather pale.

"He didn't go to the pleasure park after all. He changed his mind and hurried home. Entering the house softly he stole upstairs on tiptoe. His wife was reading. She gave a faint scream when he burst like a catapult into the room and glared about him wildly."

"Why, George," she said, "how late you are. Dinner's been over an hour."

"I sent you a note," he said, "but" the boy must have taken it to the wrong house."

"His eyes searched hers suspiciously. 'I suppose so,' she said. 'I haven't got it.'"

"He looked at her again. Anybody called," he asked very carefully. "No," she said.

"He exhaled, sighing breath. Then he went down to his cold, dry dinner."

LITTLE BALLADS OF WARNING. (On Malignant Cruelty to Harmless Creatures.)

The cruelty of P. L. Brown— (He had ten toes as good as mine) Was known to every one in town. And, if he never harmed a noun, He loved to make words shriek and whine.

The "To be" family's just complaints— (Brown had ten toes as good as mine) Made Brown cast off the last re- strain: He smashed the "is notes" into "Aints" and "supples."

Infinitives were Brown's dislike— (Brown, as I said, had ten good toes) And he would pinch and shake and strike.

Infinitives, or, with a pike, Prod them and then laugh at their woes.

At length this Brown more cruel grew— (Ten toes, all good ones, then had Brown) And to his woodshed door he drew A young infinitive and threw The poor, meek creature roughly down.

And while the poor thing weakly sloped, Brown (ten good toes he had, the brute) Got out his chopping block and dropped The martyr on it and then propped His victim firmly with his boot.

He raised his axe! He brandished it! (Ye gods of grammar, interpose!) He brought it down full force all fit.

The poor infinitive to split, (Brown after that had but six toes!) Warned.

Infinitives, by this, we see, Should not be split too recklessly. —Ellis Parker Butler in the Bookman.

"Saved My Baby"

Mother and Child Owe Life to Dr. Greene's Nervura.

How many precious young lives are lost each year through nervous diseases in childhood? Is your little one weak and puny? Does it grow tired quickly when at play? Is it troubled with poor appetite or irregular bowels? If these derangements of the blood and nerves are not overcome at once the child will be hampered through life. Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy is perfectly adapted for successful treatment of children's diseases.

Mrs. Wm. F. Robinson, 206 West 41st street, New York City, says: "My baby is now seventeen months old. Last summer, his first summer, he was terribly sick, and the doctors said he couldn't live. I gave him Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and anyone who doesn't know what a wonderful medicine that is, would be surprised how much good it did him. He plays with the other children all the time and is never sick."

"I was nursing him and doing my own work and taking care of all the other children. So before he was better my health broke down. But I thought that if Dr. Greene's Nervura helped the baby it would help me too, so I began to take it myself. From the very first spoonful it helped me. It is a splendid tonic for young and old, and I recommend it to all who are sick. Any woman who has a case of sickness in the house and is up night and day and never gets the rest she needs, ought to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will help her over any trouble of that kind."

Dr. Greene is the well known public medical lecturer and specialist in treatment of all nervous and chronic diseases, and can be personally consulted at his office, 34 Temple place, Boston, Mass., or by mail free.

NEW REPUBLIC

Proclaimed by Army, Navy and the People

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Associated Press this morning received direct from Lisbon a dispatch from Senhor Bernardo Machado, the minister of foreign affairs in the newly constituted provisional government of Portugal, in which the republican leader sets forth the purpose and aims of the present government.

Senhor Machado, who speaks at the request of Theophile Braga, the provisional president of the new republic, cabled as follows:

"The republic of Portugal has been proclaimed by the army, the navy and the people. The maintenance of order is completely assured. There is general adhesion to the government and the provinces. The enthusiasm of the public is unparalleled. The provisional government has before it a great duty. The financial budget is to be equal to a country to make over. Concerning our program I can say we will endeavor to put in operation the program of the republican party. This includes a policy of decentralization both in the local administration and in the government of the colonies.

"The financial budget is to be equalized in the general interests of the country and it will be made up with honesty and firmness. The natural wealth will be developed.

"All national alliances now existing will be respected and friendly relations with all other states are desired. "Freedom of the press will be assured and all star-chamber methods and opportunities will be abolished. Public instruction will be completely secularized, relieved from religious control and the religious congregations will be suppressed. We plan the establishment of a broad system of public instruction, both primary and advanced under government endorsement.

"The reorganization of the army and navy whose patriotic services have been beyond all praise will be proceeded with.

Interests of the country. The foregoing sets forth in a few words the purposes, the aims and the earnest endeavors in these moments of anxious labor of the members of the provisional government of Portugal. "I send the above at the request of the president of the provisional government, Theophile Braga. (Signed) 'Bernardo Machado, Minister of Foreign Affairs.'

INSURRECTION AT SETUBAL IS THE LATEST REPORT

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A special despatch to the Temps from Madrid says that it is reported that an insurrection has occurred in Setubal, Portugal, where many troops are quartered. The insurrectionists engaged the royalist cavalry. The casualties are estimated at 600. In Llandjose cannonading was heard from the direction of El Vas, where there is a fortress.

CASUALTIES IN FIGHTING ARE PLACED AT 3000

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The censorship at Lisbon has been relaxed somewhat and despatches are coming more freely from the scene of the revolution today. All confirm early reports that the revolutionists are in complete control of the capital and that the infant republic is making progress. The republic has been proclaimed also at many points in the provinces. Three regiments deserted the colors and joined the revolutionists. The casualties in the recent fighting are placed at 3000.

King Manuel is the guest of Great Britain. He remains on board the imperial yacht Amelie, which arrived off Gibraltar last night. The British officials paid visits of respect to the Portuguese monarch today and surrounded his yacht with patrol boats to safeguard the royal family.

There are rumors of fighting between loyalists and revolutionists at Setubal and some anxiety is felt lest a civil war develop in north Portugal, where the monarchy has a stronger hold upon the people.

Bernardo Machado, minister of foreign affairs in the provisional government of Portugal, cabled today to the Associated Press at the request of provisional President Braga, announcing that order has been restored at Lisbon and that the new republican government will immediately organize general reforms in the interest of all the people.

CAR TRACKS UNDERMINED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 7.—Thousands of gallons of water escaping from the watermain of the East Providence Water Co. on Riverside square shortly before noon today undermined the north-bound tracks of the trolley company and tied up the service for several hours. When the big main gave way the water forced its way up through the ground and washed out the streets about the square, causing considerable damage.

36 ballots were cast and that John J. Higgins received 36.

John J. Devine arose and said: "Gentlemen, I don't often speak at conventions but I cast a ballot for James J. Irwin and I would like to be so recorded."

Mr. Gallagher of the ballot committee looked over the ballots and discovered the Irwin ballot. Mr. Cummings announced that he had voted for Higgins.

Mr. Devine then made the nomination unanimous.

The usual formalities were then gone through and the convention dissolved.

The ballot committee reported that

The Famous Rayo

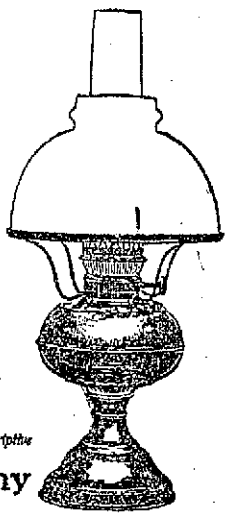

Is the Lamp of Real Beauty

because it gives the best light of all lamps. The Rayo gives a white, soft, mellow, diffused light—easy on the eye because it cannot flicker. You can use your eyes as long as you wish under the Rayo light without strain.

The Rayo Lamp is low-priced, and even though you pay $5, $10 or $20 for other lamps, you may get more expensive decorations but you cannot get a better light than the low-priced Rayo gives. A strong, durable shade-holder holds the shade on firm and true. This season's new burner adds strength and appearance.

THE DEMOCRATS

Nominated John J. Higgins for District Attorney

Three democratic conventions were held in democratic headquarters with a fair sized attendance.

WANTS LETTER PUBLISHED

For the Benefit of Women Who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JONAS G. MOLDEN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

We never publish a testimonial letter without the special permission of the writer, and then only when we know it is genuine.

The first called was the district attorney convention so-called, and it was called to order by William J. McCuskey, who on motion of Robert E. Crowley became temporary chairman.

John G. Gordon was nominated as temporary secretary. Edward Gallagher moved the appointment of a committee of five on credentials.

At this point Lawrence Cummings arose and said: "Before you go any further I'd like to know what notice was sent out for this convention."

"Legal notice was given," said Mr. McCuskey. "I notified all delegates that I knew of."

"There are only Lowell delegates here," said Mr. Cummings.

"I don't know that officially," said Chairman McCuskey.

"When does the time expire for naming names of candidates?" asked Mr. Cummings.

"The statutes provide for that," said the chairman.

"When is it?" demanded Mr. Cummings.

"I said the statutes provide for it," replied Mr. McCuskey.

"Mr. Chairman, I think this discussion is out of order," said Lawyer D. J. Donahue.

"I know it," said Mr. McCuskey, "but I allowed it to go along."

"Mr. Chairman, I make a motion that this convention be adjourned until Monday night," said Mr. Cummings.

"The motion is out of order," said the chairman.

"This convention is all out and dried for some purpose," said Mr. Cummings, "and I refuse to be delivered, I want the southern end of the county represented here."

Mr. McCuskey appointed his credentials committee and they in due time reported 41 delegates.

"The temporary organization was then made permanent."

"Nominations are now in order," said Chairman McCuskey.

John W. McElroy then arose and after endorsing District Attorney John J. Higgins, the present republican incumbent, placed his name in nomination.

And Daniel J. Donahue seconded the nomination in remarks equally eloquent.

Mr. Cummings was on his feet in an instant and he said he could agree with all the eulogies poured out on Mr. Higgins, but a democratic candidate has sent a letter to the delegates and he desired that the convention be adjourned until Monday and that the city committee of all the cities and towns in the county be notified that a convention is to be held.

John J. McCarthy of Somerville arose and said that the delegates in his end of the county are unanimous for Higgins. He said he knew that the democrats of Cambridge were unan-course of events in Portugal is being followed with the keenest interest in the clubs and cafes of Barcelona and every piece of news that is allowed to filter through the rigorous Spanish censorship is eagerly discussed. Several of the newspapers, in response to the public demand for information, installed screens on the fronts of their buildings on which they intended to throw intern slide dispatches. Their plans were set at naught by the authorities and in several instances they were forced to charge mules which gathered at the newspaper offices.

The official information of the Spanish officials here declares that the old government still exists in Portugal, despite the formation of the provisional government by the republicans.

THE REVOLUTIONARY LEADERS

ASK SUPPORT OF PEOPLE

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Despatches received here from various towns in the outlying provinces indicate that the revolutionary leaders in Lisbon are doing their utmost to secure the support of people in all sections of the kingdom. One of the first acts of the central committee which was constituted at the beginning of the outbreak was to send out trustworthy emissaries by automobile to various distant points where it was hoped a sympathetic uprising could be produced.

The republicans appear to be masters thus far of a section within a radius of about 50 miles from Lisbon. In this district they are in absolute control and will not allow monarchist sympathizers so much as to stir from their home towns. The railroads are at a standstill and in the neighborhood of Lisbon most of the highways are rendered impassable.

The consensus of opinion in Lisbon appears to be that the final success of the revolutionary movement is still in doubt, depending on the attitude of the provinces.

REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT

ESTABLISHED IN OPORTO

OPORTO, Oct. 7.—The republican government has been definitely established here without a struggle. The people with unanimity received the proclamation.

The general commanding the local division of the troops obeyed the instructions of the provisional government.

THE JESUIT CONVENT

ATTACKED BY REVOLUTIONISTS

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A special to the Journal says that a party of Portuguese revolutionaries yesterday attacked the Jesuit convent at Camillo, and that several of the priests were killed. Telegraphic service remains interrupted. The customs officials at the points of collection along the frontier continue at their posts and are collecting the usual duties but without knowing for which regime they are acting. The officials and the soldiers at these frontier posts maintain for the most part a discreet neutral attitude, awaiting the notification of the new government to the provincial authorities.

THE PORTUGUESE AFFAIR

WILL AFFECT ALL EUROPE

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The course of affairs in Portugal is destined to have a far-reaching effect on all Europe. In the opinion of Count de Sausse, the Portuguese minister to France, the count, who takes a pessimistic view of the revolutionary movement, declares that he no longer considers himself the minister of Portugal, regarding the proclamation of a republic as a formal severance of his obligations. "It will not serve this republican government," he said. "Not because my opinions are retrograde—I lived too long in the United States for that—but because I do not believe that Portugal is ripe for the application of such liberal ideas. The population is ignorant and exposed to all kinds of political temptations."

"A republican government in Portugal would be composed of men of untested views, unprepared for the power entrusted to them, divided over questions of doctrine as well as by personal rivalry."

"Frankly, I consider the revolution a great misfortune. The establishment of a republic will give birth to the gravest problems, chiefly because of the juxtaposition of monarchist Spain. The result may be either that Spain will become a republic, too, or that she will be forced in self protection to intervene."

"The triumph of republican ideas in Spain probably would result in the establishment of an Iberian republic which would introduce a new and grave factor in the European concert question."

"The question of the Portuguese colonies is still more important. Every one knows that these have already formed the subject of diplomatic exchanges of view between Germany and England and in this connection the words 'secret understanding' have even been pronounced. Recent events bring this matter to a head. Unquestionably the new rivalries aroused by the opening of such a question and by the result of the transactions which would follow would be unfavorable to the maintenance of peace in Europe."

"Incidentally it is not hard to guess at whose expense any such transaction over the Portuguese colonies would be carried out."

DESCRIPTION OF FLIGHT

OF THE ROYAL FAMILY

LISBON, Oct. 7.—The Capital, a republican newspaper, gives the following description of the flight of the royal family:

Between 5 and 5 o'clock Wednesday morning the Duke of Oporto embarked on the yacht Amelle and sailed for Ericeira, a fishing town on the Atlantic coast 22 miles northwest of Lisbon. At the same time the queen mother Amelle left Cintra by automobile for Ericeira. She was followed an hour later by Dowager Queen Maria Pia, King Manuel, after escaping by a rear door of the palace, during the bombardment, went to Cintra and thence to Mafrá.

At 10 o'clock the royal yacht arrived at Ericeira. In the meantime the royal family had completed the preparations for flight and escorted by 20 horsemen from the Mafrá cavalry school proceeded to Ericeira. At 11 p. m. they embarked on fishing boats accompanied by two attendants and two ladies of the yacht and carrying their personal baggage. The fishing boats put out to sea and at some distance from the harbor transferred their royal passengers to the yacht Amelle.

"WE ARE ALL WELL,"

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A member of the Portuguese court now in Paris received today the following telegram from Queen Mother Amelle, dated at Gibraltar: "We are all here and well."

MARATHON RACE

Was Won by William Hackett

BROCKTON, Oct. 7.—William J. Hackett of the Brookline Gymnasium association won the third annual Marathon run from Boston to Brockton today, finishing at the Brockton fair grounds after covering the 23 miles in 2 hours, 27 minutes and 9 seconds. R. C. Piggott of the Cambridgeport Gym was second, and Clarence Demar of Melrose, third.

Demar led the field of thirty runners until within about three miles of the finish, when Hackett and Piggott passed him. Piggott's time, 2:32:30 2-6. Hackett won last year's Marathon in 2:36:24 4-5. Today's time was faster than in either of the two previous years of the event.

All of the runners finished in excellent condition.

THE ANNE STREET PARK FRONTING ON THE CANAL

While the Anne street park is not yet quite completed it is being used more or less, especially by pupils of the High School. Anne street park will be one of Lowell's beauty spots next summer. Hundreds of tulip bulbs were set out a few days ago, and next spring the park stretching along the canal will take on a velvet coat of green decorated with carefully selected shrubbery and beautiful flowers. In the Anne street park work the park commission was hampered because of lack of funds. The city council was slow in voting the necessary money and but for this fact the park would have been completed earlier. Next spring, however, it will blossom forth in all its glory. Then seats will be placed along the canal front and also along the sidewalk on Anne street.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Despatches to R. G. Dun & Co. indicate that business is less satisfactory in the east than in other sections of the country, although the situation as a whole reflects some gain. Irregular conditions prevail in Boston, where colder weather is needed to start fall activity, especially in retail lines.

Reports from dry goods jobbing houses indicate an uneven trade during September and cotton mills are still curtailing production. Men's wear manufacturers are receiving more orders for prompt delivery and footwear sales slowly increase.

Bank exchanges this week from all leading cities in the United States aggregate $2,886,126,557, a loss of 18.2 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

EXTRA BEATEN TO DEATH GEN. MILES

HEARING HELD

On the Workingmen's Compensation Act

The state commission on compensation for workingmen receiving injuries in employment gave a public hearing at city hall this afternoon.

This commission consists of James A. Lowell, Amos T. Sanders, Magnus V. Alexander, Henry Howard, Joseph A. Parks and Carroll W. Doten. Mr. Parks is a member of the legislature and a recognized friend of labor.

Mr. Doten presided and the meeting was called to order shortly after three o'clock.

Agent Thomas of the Boott mills asked what the present law is.

He was told that under the present law an employee can recover for injuries due to the carelessness of his employer or his agents, if he can prove it was due to their carelessness and not to his own, but experience had gone to show that it was rather difficult to procure the necessary evidence.

Michael A. Lee of the organized carpenters of Lowell said he had seen a great many accidents in mills and said he had suffered a few himself.

He said he thought there was great need of a law protecting the employee. He is not sufficiently protected at the present time, he said.

Mr. Lee told the story of the accident at the Hatch building in Church street in 1907. The falling of a heavy stone resulted in the death of two men; one was killed instantly and the other died shortly after reaching the hospital. Another man sustained a broken leg. The relatives of the men who were killed or the men who sustained a broken leg were not compensated. The claim was that the men themselves were to blame, but Mr. Lee said the men were handling stones with hands and ropes that should have been handled by aid of a derrick. Mr. Lee cited many other cases where injuries were sustained and no compensation received.

President Regan of the Trades and Labor Council said the laboring people are anxious to have established a law that will properly protect the employee.

Mr. Regan, too, referred to the Church street job and how it was fought in the courts. He said that one of the men injured on the job would appear before the commission and tell how it happened.

Mysterious Murder of a Woman in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The mysterious murder of an unidentified woman of refined appearance in a fashionable apartment house on Riverside drive today is puzzling the police as few recent crimes have done. The woman's body was found in the court yard of the house and gave every indication that the victim had been literally beaten to death. This face and body were covered with bruises and one thumb was bitten nearly off. Her clothing was of the best quality and markings upon it showed that it had been purchased at fashionable shops, but there was nothing to give a clue to her identity.

The negro elevator boy of the apartment house, Clarence Holcomb, who said he had admitted the woman to the building at an early hour today, was arrested and held as a suspicious person. The police believe the woman was murdered in the bathroom of a vacant apartment on the ground floor and her body pushed from the window into the court yard.

Mentioned as the Democratic Nominee For Governor

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The democratic leaders spent the hours succeeding the turbulent convention of yesterday and early today in hunting the state over for ticket leaders and in trying to think that the convention itself was not quite so disruptive to the party success next November as they feared earlier in the day.

The ticket, which was partially selected at the convention, was completed today with the placing of Clifford Loring of Medford, a clerk of the state committee, on the lieutenant governor vacancy. Mr. Loring and Frederick Mansfield, who was nominated for governor during the closing minutes of the convention, have agreed to withdraw before next Wednesday afternoon when the time limit for such action by candidates expires. The special committee of four members representing the Foss and Vahey factions in the convention will canvass the state in the meantime in the hope of finding someone who will accept the nomination for governor and lieutenant governor. The committee under the law has until Oct. 15 to make the substitutions.

In the meantime a score of names have been suggested to the committee and tomorrow's meeting. Among those spoken of are Col. William A. Gaston of Boston, John C. Crosby of Pittsfield and Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

Up-state members before leaving for their homes today declared that the trouble in the convention was wholly due to a factional fight among Boston democrats, principally between leaders in wards 8 and 9. They also declared that the convention would have been orderly and would have completed its work had it not been for the actions of those leaders. The republicans were overjoyed today at the outcome of the democratic convention, declaring that it assured the re-election of Governor Draper.

THE ARGUMENTS

In the Brown-Harrington Case to be Made Monday

Former Supt. Mayberry Was Recalled This Morning—The Court Adjourned at Noon Today—The Judge Will Charge the Jury Monday

Solomon S. Mayberry, former superintendent of charities, was recalled to the witness stand at the opening of court this morning, in the fifth day in the Brown-Harrington case.

Mr. Mayberry was asked if he had ever received complaints from the employees who had previously testified and he replied negatively.

"Did you make any change after August 1?"

"I don't remember any except putting more butter in the hospital at the request of the mayor."

"Did you ever have any complaint from Thomas Welch or his sister?"

"His sister wanted him placed outside. But we didn't have sole jurisdiction as he was a board of health case."

"The inmates were of what classes?"

"I don't understand the question—of course they were the poverty-stricken classes. The people who came and went were mostly alcoholic cases. The greater majority of those who are there are addicted to that habit."

"Did you give any instructions to the employees on assuming charge?"

"I told them I wanted them to give the inmates all they wanted to eat, but stop the waste."

"That was my slogan the year through. I also told that to the inmates."

Cross-examined:

"What was your business before you became superintendent?"

"Superintendent of cemeteries."

"And before that?"

"Overseer in Pickering's hosiery."

"You knew nothing about running a charitable institution when you were elected?"

"Nothing."

"You allowed the head of each department to manage his or her own department?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then isn't it true that these people of all people are the most familiar with conditions in the different departments?"

"It is true."

"Is a fact."

"Will you swear that there were not periods of a week at a time when you weren't in the men's hospital or in Miss McAdams' department at all?"

"I think I was. I'm positive I must have been."

"Isn't it a fact that there were periods of a week at a time when you weren't in the nursery at all?"

"I think there were."

"I wouldn't say two weeks."

"You were interested in farming, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"And often you have spent a whole day pitching hay?"

"No, not over two hours."

"You went to city hall nearly every day?"

"Every day but one. I went there morning and afternoon."

the food after August?"

"I did."

"And if Mr. Donlin, Miss Kelly and others say that there was a change would you still adhere to that statement?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you make out the requisitions for city hall?"

"Mr. Mahoney made out most of them and I looked them over and signed them."

By Mr. Hill: "Did Commissioner Howe recommend or endorse the appointment of Mr. Hough?"

"He certainly did."

By Mr. Qua: "You're not superintendent now?"

"No."

By Mr. Hill: "When did you leave?"

"I think I was elected out of office in March."

This closed the testimony. An intermission of 10 minutes was taken before the arguments.

Arguments on Monday

During the recess counsel on both sides conferred with Judge Fox and it was decided to postpone the arguments and charge until Monday. Counsel on both sides then presented requests for rulings on certain disputed matters in the case.

After counsel had finished, the jury was called back and excused until Monday. Judge Fox cautioned them against listening to street comment or newspaper comment on it.

"The newspapers have behaved very nicely as far as I know in this case," said the court. "I have not seen any of them and have not heard of any comment. You must judge this case solely on the evidence heard here in court." Court adjourned.

Hill Will Case Settled

The contested Wright L. Hill will case which has been through the probate and supreme judicial courts was settled in the superior court, this forenoon. The case was appealed from the probate to the supreme court and then sent back to the superior court on three issues: "Was the last will and testament of Wright L. Hill duly executed?" "Was said Wright L. Hill of sound and disposing mind when the will was executed?" and "Was the execution of the will procured through fraud or undue influence of Edward E. Hill, or his wife?"

A settlement was agreed upon and after a jury had been empaneled Judge Fox instructed them to answer the first two questions affirmatively and the third negatively and it was done. William A. Hogan appeared for Edward E. Hill, the petitioner, and Messrs Dunbar and Rogers for Clara B. Hill et al, the other parties in the case.

NEW EQUIPMENT

For the Boston & Maine Road

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—President Charles Mollen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. and lately elected president of the Boston & Maine, will take the full duties of the presidency of the latter corporation, it is stated here authoritatively, and exercise the functions of former President Tuttle in solving the important problems ahead in improving the Boston & Maine system. An important branch of those problems is the relaying of a large part of the system with new rails, the purchase of new equipment and particularly of heavy locomotives for service upon the northern part of the system and the Northburg line. Another important branch of the improvements proposed is the electrification of service through the Hoosac tunnel which it will take several years to complete. The ten million dollars lately voted by the directors will be used largely for these improvements and is in addition to a large sum expended in the same general directions during the past year. Another very serious problem imposed on the company, it is said, will be the maintaining of dividends in the face of the large increase of wages lately made by the Boston & Maine corporation.

EX-JUDGE PARKER

Files Brief in Case Against the Labor Leaders

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A brief was filed in the supreme court of the United States today by ex-Judge Alton Parker and associate counsel in the contempt proceedings against Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, officials of the American Federation of Labor, who were sentenced to imprisonment on a charge of disobeying a decree of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, forbidding references in the official organ to the Buck Stove & Range Co. of St. Louis, being on the unfair list of the federation.

The principal defense set forth in today's brief was that the reference in the official organ of the federation did not contain contempt for the court because its decree was beyond the power of the court to declare as had been shown by a modification of the decree in the court of appeals.

"In no sentence now in all of the matter quoted from its columns is there anything alleged which violated the injunction as modified by the court of appeals," says the brief.

PLAINTIFF WON AN AUTO BURNED

In an Action of Contract

As a Result of Leaking Gasoline

In the case of John O'Brien against Michael F. O'Brien, an action of contract, scheduled to take place this afternoon before Judge Hadley in the civil session of the police court, the defendant failed to put in an appearance and the court found for the plaintiff.

This is a case where, it is alleged, the son borrowed $100 from the father and failed to repay it. Finding that it was impossible to have the money returned, the father entered suit and the failure of the defendant to put in an appearance this afternoon caused the court to find for the plaintiff.

J. J. and W. A. Hogan appeared for the plaintiff, and J. E. O'Donnell for the defendant.

TWO ACCIDENTS

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL PLAYER MET WITH INJURY

Russell Coggeswell, a member of the Lowell high school football team, while practicing yesterday tore a ligament of the right shoulder. He was taken to the Emergency hospital where he received treatment. Coggeswell is 17 years of age and resides at 319 Westford street.

FINGER INJURED

Alice Porter, aged 14 years, and residing at 11 Pleasant street, while at work at the plant of the Lowell Insulated Wire Co., this morning had the middle finger of the left hand caught in a machine, lacerating it so badly that it was found necessary to amputate the top of the finger. She received treatment at the Emergency hospital.

DIVISION 2, A. O. H.

At the last meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., five candidates were initiated and ten propositions for membership were received. The division has expected to have two or three other companies organized within a few weeks. Dennis Lynch presided over the meeting and it was decided to support Daniel E. Hogan, who is a candidate for county vice-president at the convention to be held in Cambridge next Sunday.

An automobile belonging to Thomas Liegakis, of 9 Coolidge street, was badly damaged by fire in Westford street shortly before 2.30 o'clock this morning. Mr. Liegakis was driving his car through the street when the gasoline started to leak and the latter following along the frame work became ignited and in a short time the automobile was one mass of flames.

An alarm from box 135 was sent in and the chemical from Westford street was soon on the scene and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before heavy damage was done.

The machine was insured through the agency of Fred C. Church.

SHERIFF FAIRBAIRN

Was Nominated By the Democrats This Afternoon

William J. McCluskey called the democratic county convention to order in democratic city committee headquarters this afternoon and on motion of Robert E. Crowley the same officers who presided at the district attorney convention officiated. A committee of five on credentials was appointed on motion and they reported in due time.

Mr. Cummings protested against the failure to send out credentials and Mr. Gallagher said that the credentials were to be had at headquarters.

The committee reported 33 delegates. George M. Harrigan nominated John Mr. Fairbairn for sheriff stating that there was no chance for a democratic candidate and hence the advisability of endorsing a good man in office.

While Mr. Harrigan was speaking Cornelius F. Cronin of ward 7 approached the chairman and demanded a credential but did not interrupt the proceedings.

D. J. Donahue seconded the nomination. Mr. Cronin then arose and protested against any ballot being taken until he got his credential. He said he was regularly elected a delegate and no ballot could be legally cast until he got his.

He said he was not properly notified and he refused to be sold out or delivered.

Mr. Cronin stood in the centre of the floor and in loud tones demanded his rights.

Mr. Donahue made a reference to rowdiness and Mr. Cronin said there'd be no ballot until he got his credential.

Mr. Gallagher suggested that a credential be made out for Mr. Cronin, but the latter indignantly protested that he wanted no fake credential but wanted the original credential.

Mr. Gallagher said that there was no credential in Mr. Cronin's name.

While Mr. Cronin was protesting, Chairman McCluskey declared Mr. Fairbairn nominated.

Mr. Cronin then took the papers off the chairman's desk and defied anyone to take them away from him.

Mr. Cronin said: "We are all democrats today, tomorrow and every day, and if we want to become republicans we can go to city hall and change our politics. We are not going to be sold out year after year to republican candidates."

Mr. Cronin then attacked Mr. Gallagher relative to the last congressional convention, and Mr. Gallagher replied calmly.

"The next business—" began the chairman.

"The next business is my credential. When the voters of ward seven elected me they elected a democrat, cried Mr. Cronin.

With Mr. Cronin still protesting, James T. O'Hearn was unanimously nominated for county commissioner.

Charles H. Burns and George D. Wilkins were nominated as special commissioners and the convention dissolved.

Round Feste Board

The Middlesex Social club, a popular social organization, that listens to the political arguments of both parties, held its third annual banquet at its comfortable quarters last evening. There were present, in addition to about 100 members, Mayor Meahan, Purchasing Agent Mackenzie, Senator Hubbard, Reps. Barlow and Marchand and several candidates for municipal offices. Many well known Middlesex street business men are members of the club and all were present. The banquet was called at 10 o'clock and for half an hour preceding it Clark's orchestra gave a delightful concert program while a reception was held. An excellent menu was provided. The orchestra kept busy while the guests discussed the menu.

The speaking program followed was opened with an address of welcome by E. J. Charron, president of the club, who also introduced Rep. George E. Marchand as the toastmaster of the occasion. Mr. Marchand made a witty speech, in which he declared an embargo on political speeches for the evening.

Mayor Meahan was the first speaker and he spoke thoughtfully on the subject of "Good Citizenship."

Other speakers were Senator Hubbard, Rep. Barlow, Purchasing Agent Mackenzie, President Victor J. Pitts, Fred Harris, William Renard, Henry Charron, A. D. Bernard and several others, while the speeches were interspersed with music and song. The officers of the club are as follows: Ex-presidents—Henry J. Charron, William Renard, Adelard Bernard. Officers—Eddie Charron, president; Sidney Lafamme, vice president; Fred Droin, treasurer; Henry Bechar, financial secretary; Ralph Sawyer, recording secretary; Charles Brodeur, board of directors; Joseph Brodeur, board of directors; Donald Sawyer, board of directors; E. Lizzotte, secretary-at-large.

LOWER PRICES IN THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN MARKETS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Lower prices both at home and abroad are a characteristic of the latest price figures of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. The monthly summary of commerce and finance issued by that bureau are presented weekly price quotations of certain articles in the leading markets of the United States and the average monthly export and import prices of the leading articles exported and imported. These quotations are especially interesting because they show not only the current wholesale prices in the leading domestic markets and the average monthly export prices of leading articles, but also prices in foreign countries of the principal articles imported into the United States. The valuation of each article imported represents its actual market value, or wholesale price as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation to the United States in the principal markets of the countries whence exported. This makes the monthly and annual import quotations a fair index of the prices and trend of prices in other parts of the world with reference to the principal articles imported.

A study of the prices quoted by the bureau of statistics, shows for the latest available date a definitely marked downward movement in recent months. While there are, of course, exceptions and a few articles in which the latest prices are higher, a very large proportion of the articles imported, exported, or sold in the domestic markets show lower prices in August than those of earlier months.

Taking first the prices of imports, the figures show the average price per pound of raw wool, of class one, imported in August 21.2c, against 27.7c in July, 24.1c in June, and 26.9c in May, 1910; boards, planks, etc., 18.65c per M. ft. in August, against 18.85c in July, and 22.02c in January of the current year.

On the export side of the August prices, which are based upon the current market quotations at the place of exportation, are, in most cases, lower than in recent months. Corn exports averaged 70.5c per bushel in August, against 73.7c in July. Wheat, while higher in August than in May, June or July, was materially lower than in the earlier months of the current year. Flour exports averaged $5.04 per barrel in August, against $4.96 in July, $5.42 in May, and $5.13 to $5.32 in the earlier months of the year. Copper pigs averaged 12.7c per lb., against 12.8c in July, 12.7c in May, and 12.4c in April. March, unbleached cotton cloth 6.8c per yard in August, against 7.1c in July, 7.2c in June, and 8.1c in March. Steel billets in August $22.88 per ton, against $23.07 in July, and $27.72 in June; steel rails, $28 per ton in August, against $27.80 in July, $29.04 in June, and $29.29 in February. Paraffin averaged 3.3c per lb., against 3.2c in April, May, and June, and 4.4c in March. Lumber of the class designated "boards, planks, etc.," averaged $20.99 per thousand feet in August, against $21.91 in July, $22.70 in May, and $22.87 in April. A few articles, however, have advanced somewhat in price. Cotton exports in July and August averaged 15c per lb., against 14.5c in April, May and June; hay, $22.15 per ton in August, against $16.83 in July, and $20.43 in May; canned beef, 11.9c per lb. in August, against 11.8c in June and July and 12.1c in May; and hams, 15c per lb. in August, against 14.7c in June and July.

Latest quotations of wholesale prices in the domestic markets are, in most cases, lower now than a few months ago. Washed XX wool on Sept. 30 was quoted at 30c per lb., against 32c in June, and 36c in March; Bessemer pig iron at Pittsburgh on October 1 was quoted at $18.90 per ton, against $18.65 in March; steel cars, $23 per ton on Oct. 1, against $20 in the earlier part of the year; crude Pennsylvania petroleum on Oct. 1, $1.30 per bbl., against $1.40 in March; and refined petroleum in cases, 9.9c per gallon on Oct. 1, against 10.06c in August; hides, No. 1, packers' heavy Texas steers, in the Chicago market, 147c per lb., on Sept. 1, against 14c in July, 16c in June and 17c in April; Para rubber $1.85 per lb. on Oct. 1, against $1.85 in April, and $2.18 on April 21; red winter wheat, No. 2, $1.01½ per bushel on Sept. 29, against $1.11 on July 29, and $1.25 on March 31; corn, 61½c per bushel on Sept. 23, against 73½c on July 29, and mess pork, $23 per barrel on Sept. 23, against $25.50 on July 28 and $27.60 on March 31.

Next Wednesday will be Columbus day, and inasmuch as it is a legal holiday, the board of police is anxious to learn if the saloons must remain closed on that day like on other legal holidays. The following letter has been sent to City Solicitor W. W. Duncan, asking him to express his opinion: William W. Duncan, Esq., City Solicitor, Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sir:—The board of police of the city of Lowell respectfully requests your opinion on the following: Does chapter 473 of the acts and resolves of 1910, which makes the 12th day of October a legal holiday, to be called Columbus Day, mean that persons licensed to sell intoxicating liquors under a first class or first and fourth class licenses as common victuallers and retail dealers, must not, on or give away said liquors on their licensed premises?

Does it also mean that persons licensed as innkeepers, to sell intoxicating liquors, may sell said liquors to bona fide guests only?

A prompt answer will be appreciated by Very respectfully yours, The Board of Police of the City of Lowell.

HAIR TONIC

A Specialist's Advice

In a recent issue the New York Herald published a special article on the "hair tonic" which was the formula for a home-made Hair Tonic, which was highly recommended for its remarkable hair-growing properties. The formula for this hair tonic, revivifying the hair roots, and destroying the dandruff germ. This article was of special interest to me, as the formula was one which I myself have seen used in countless cases with most astonishing results, thus confirming my belief that home-made preparations are the best for the benefit of those who have not seen it before. I give the formula herewith.

Procure from your druggist an eight ounce bottle containing six ounces of Bay Rum, also purchase a two-ounce sealed bottle of Lavona de Composee (Strive), and one ounce of Menthyl Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and then add the Lavona de Composee; shake thoroughly and apply night and morning to the roots of the hair, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips. This preparation contains no coloring matter, but restores gray hair to its natural color by its action on the hair roots. If you desire it perfumed add one teaspoonful of To-Ka-Ton Perfume, which combines perfectly with the other ingredients and imparts a most pleasing scent. Be sure to get all enclosures in the Lavona de Composee package, as they give much valuable advice on the care of the hair and besides entitle you to a sprinkler top for your bottle, free of charge. Do not apply where the hair is not desired.

year: crude India rubber in August, $1.30 per lb., against $1.33 in July; still wine in cases, $45.40 per gallon in August, against $45.80 in July; copper pigs, ingots, etc., 12c per lb., against 11.9c in July, and 12.5c to 12.4c in earlier months; raw cotton, 18.6c per lb. in August, against 21.0c in July; manilla hemp, $18.55 per ton in August, against $18.17 in July, and $17.43 in April; sisal, $104.18 per ton in August, against $111.09 in July and $125.13 in February; tea, 18.8c per lb. in August, against 20.5c in July, and 22.5c in May; wool carpets and carpeting, $3.47 per square yard in August, against $3.58 in July, and $4.04 in April; and hops, 35.5c per lb. in August, against 43.4c in July, 40.8c in May, and 53.8c in April. In a few articles, including flax, lute and hemp, other than manilla, the August import prices are higher than in the immediately preceding months, while pig iron averaged $18.90 per ton in August, against $27.81 in July, and $29.55 in June of the present year.

WATER CONTAMINATED

Engineer Warns Palmer People to Boil It

PALMER, Oct. 7.—Such water as remains in one of the reservoirs of the Palmer water company is contaminated, in the opinion of the chief engineer of the state board of health.

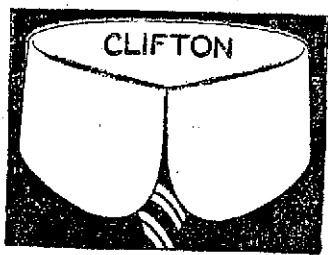

The engineer examined the conditions about the reservoir now in use yesterday afternoon, in company with Dr. J. P. Schneider of the local board of health. There are three reservoirs, one above the other. The upper two are empty and the lower one nearly so. In the latter are dead and dying fish, and the state engineer issued a warning last evening that water used for domestic purposes must first be boiled.

The engineers of the fire district have established an extra fire patrol, and will continue this precaution so long as there is lack of water.

Manager Gamwell of the water company has stopped all waste within his power. Consumers have been cautioned to use as little water as possible.

The only water supply here, except private springs, is that of the Palmer water company. Most houses in the village of Palmer are supplied by the company. Some householders will buy water from private springs and others will boil the water of the water company while it lasts.

There is some water constantly running into the reservoir. Unless this falls there will be sufficient water for domestic purposes, after boiling, for some time. The district is helpless in case of fire, however, as all the water now stored would be drawn out in a short time through three or four lines of hose.

The only relief possible is from rain. The inhabitants are greatly disturbed and it is freely predicted that at the next town meeting the town will vote to establish an adequate water system.

Similar conditions prevailed some years ago and there was agitation for a municipal system. The water company enlarged its capacity, but it is said its plant is incapable of further development.

The state board of health will make a further investigation and advise as to the wisest course.

HOME OF JOHN M. WALSH WAS DESTROYED

AMHERST, Oct. 6.—The house of John M. Walsh, valued at $3,500, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. His farm buildings were burned Saturday. He and his family were in Northampton. Smoke was discovered by a man working in a field near by.

Melrose Paige responded to the alarm, speeding his auto car a mile to the house with chemical extinguishers, but a strong wind and no water prevented putting out the fire. The furniture was partially saved and the loss is partially covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is uncertain, but may have been an incendiary's work.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN THE WOODS

CONWAY, Mass., Oct. 7.—The body of Frederick Cousins, aged 37, was found yesterday by Alvin Boice in woods near the grist mill of Mr. Boice.

Mr. Cousins had been employed in a local shoe factory. He left the boarding house of Mrs. Clara Eldridge on Tuesday, feeling somewhat discouraged. He evidently shot himself in the woods.

He was missed but it was thought he might have gone out of town. He was unmarried. His mother lives in North Adams and the body will be taken there today. A brother lives in Lynn, another in Troy and a sister lives in Boston.

BILLS APPROVED

By the Committee on Accounts

Alderman Qua, chairman of the committee on accounts, at a meeting of that committee last night, called attention to an old ordinance holding that all articles bought for the city and weighing over 100 pounds must be weighed on city scales. The ordinance was passed in 1896. The provision of this ordinance has not been carried out for years and the chairman thought it would be a good idea to ask the city solicitor for an opinion as to whether the ordinance was still in effect. If the city solicitor says the ordinance is still in effect the purchasing agent will be instructed to comply with the ordinance.

No bills were held up at last night's meeting and a bill held up at the last meeting was approved, the bill having been investigated and found to be all right.

THE CELEBRATION

At Tewksbury Congregational Church Closed

The second and last day of the celebration of the 176th anniversary of the Tewksbury Congregational church closed last night with a banquet, speeches and music. The exercises yesterday opened at 8 p. m., with a large attendance. The pulpit was resplendent with beautiful floral decorations. Rev. Sarah A. Dixon presided, and the speakers were Rev. T. G. Langsals of Salem, Rev. Harvey H. Bishop of North Tewksbury, Prof. William H. Ryce of Andover, Rev. Samuel French of Londonderry, Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., of Lowell, and Rev. Lyman B. Rutledge of Billerica. The celebration, as a whole, was a big success from start to finish.

FATALLY INJURED

MAN CAUGHT BETWEEN CARS IN WILLIAMSTOWN

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 7.—Cyrus W. Wheeler, aged 34, a brakeman on the B. & M. railroad, was caught between two cars in the railroad yard yesterday afternoon and fatally injured.

He attempted to pass between two cars, one of which was moving, when he was pinned between the cars and his right side crushed, every rib in it being broken. He was taken to the North Adams hospital.

He has a wife and one child. He has worked on the railroad only a short time.

DEFECTIVE LIGHT

GAVE THE POLICEMEN A BURGULAR SCARE

The flashing of a light for several minutes early this morning in the store of the Kennedy Biscuit Co. in Appleton street caused several patrolmen to believe that they were about to capture a burglar.

The light in the store was discovered about 1:30 o'clock this morning by Patrolman J. T. Kelly. He immediately summoned several fellow patrolmen and they surrounded the place. Then one of the patrolmen entered the store. An investigation showed that a defective light in the place had been the cause of the unnecessary trouble.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

James A. Garfield, W. R. C., held its regular meeting last evening. Considerable routine business was disposed of during the evening. Mrs. Mira Kilpatrick presided. One application for membership was read and upon. The annual inspection of the troops will be held on the evening of Nov. 3. Mrs. Mary Landt of Hyde Park will be the inspecting officer.

Knights of Pythias

At the regular meeting of Lowell Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held last night, the rank of page was worked on one candidate. It was announced that a number of candidates will be initiated in the rank of esquire next Tuesday night. Next Thursday night the deputy past chancellor, Alvin E. Joy, will be present and a reception in his honor will be in order.

Div. 1, A. O. H.

Division 1, A. O. H., held a well attended meeting in Hibernian hall last night and transacted a large amount of routine business. Ten candidates were initiated, and five propositions were received. At the social hour following the business meeting, there were remarks by President McMullen, John O'Heir, Terence Gray and Thomas McCann; songs by James E. Burns; readings by John O'Laughlin, and other members. Light refreshments were served.

DRACUT

The "Old Liners," an organization made up of residents of Dracut, held the first of their bi-monthly socials of the season in Grange hall last night. The attendance was very large, demonstrating the fact that the enthusiasm in these events did not lessen any during the summer season. The affair was also an enjoyable one, both from a social as well as a financial standpoint.

Hibbard's orchestra furnished music for the dancing and the program was a most satisfying one judging from the encores given.

Ice cream and cake were served at intermission after which dancing was resumed and continued until midnight.

The socials are under the direction of the following committee: Frank Huntley, Fred P. Vinal, Bert A. Cluff, Asa Stickney, William Johnstone.

WANDERERS VS. Y. M. C. A.

The Wanderers, champions of the Lowell & Suburban league, and the Y. M. C. A. team will clash at Washington park on Saturday afternoon. These two teams are considered the strongest in the city and a good fast contest is assured.

The Wanderers will present the same lineup which defeated the Cadets on Saturday last, and with Sharkey, who has been pitching for semi-pro teams in New Brunswick and Maine, on the mound, they are quite confident of taking the game. The Y. M. C. A. will have the same lineup which has been so successful of late in taking ten straight games. Doyle will twirl for the Y. M. C. A. team, with Manning on the receiving end.

The lineup for the game: Wanderers—Sharkey p., Burke c., O'Brien or Godfrey 1b., Cashman 2b., Harris 3b., Donnellan ss., O'Day ss., White lf., Buckley cf., Allen rf.

For the Y. M. C. A.—Fahy 3b., Scott cf., Grant ss., Manning c., Law 1b., McVoy 2b., Jordan lf., Doyle p., Swan and Campbell rf.

POLLING PLACES CHANGED

The list of polling places is advertised and it will be noticed that there are changes in three wards. In precinct 3 of ward 1 the booth is changed from the corner of Bridge and Jewett streets to the corner of Bridge and North streets. In ward 3 the booth for precinct 3 will be located on Pine street, between numbers 12 and 20, instead of opposite the Highland school. In ward 3, precinct 2, the booth will be on the southerly corner of Lincoln and Main streets, instead of the northerly corner.

PEACE REIGNS

Trouble in Portugal is About at an End

LISBON, Oct. 7.—The new ministers of the provisional republican government took effective possession of the ministries at 5 o'clock last night, all the citizens have returned to their normal duties and a semblance of order is being rapidly restored to the official routine. Nearly all the banks and commercial offices, together with the customs houses, have reopened in response to a request by the military government.

The large force of volunteer soldiers which was recruited at the beginning of the uprising and furnished with arms from the government's reserve supplies is being disbanded. The volunteers are returning the weapons which were served out to them. It is reported that Admiral Candido

Reyes, one of the leaders of the revolution, has committed suicide, but no details of his rumored death are available.

THE FOSS MEN

Not Pleased With Action of Ex-Congressman Thayer

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At a brief meeting this morning the committee appointed to name the substitute candidate for governor decided to select a fifth member and then adjourned until noon.

Joseph A. Maynard of Boston said

STOPS ITCHING AT ONCE

A chemist recently discovered that an extract from a particular tree possesses such soothing and curative properties that when applied to eczema and similar diseases it stopped the itching at once. Sufferers who use it are amazed at the quickness of the relief which follows its use. It heals the skin and removes all traces of the disease. The name of this new remedy is Cadum. It is sold by all druggists at 10c and 25c a box. Cadum is equally good for sores, scaly skin, chafings, psoriasis, pimples, itching piles, etc. People who have been afflicted for years with skin troubles, and who have tried everything without being relieved, should take fresh courage because this new remedy differs from anything else.

that the members of the committee confidently expected Mr. Mansfield to withdraw, although under the law he cannot be compelled to do so by reason of the agreement made at the convention conference early today.

Republican leaders professed this morning to feel extremely jubilant at the outcome of the democratic convention. They made no secret of the fact that yesterday they felt some apprehensions over republican success in the November election, but they said today that the democratic convention by its action had removed every obstacle to Gov. Draper's re-election.

Eugene Foss and Martin Lomasney refused absolutely today to discuss or comment on the action of the convention. Mr. Lomasney said he had no idea as to the candidate upon whom the committee would agree nor had he any suggestions to make concerning a candidate.

Other Foss supporters, however, were not so uncommunicative as Mr. Lomasney. These men criticised the action of Chairman Thayer, who, they claim, lost control of the convention.

Shortly before the convention adjourned this morning Chairman Thayer, in addressing the delegates, admitted that he erred in entertaining a motion to proceed with the balloting, whereas the rules provided that the balloting be continued until a nominee was selected. The Foss supporters, who were outspoken in their criticism of the chairman, contended that Mr. Thayer had no right to address the convention when he withdrew his candidacy and offered a compromise although this compromise was the result of a conference participated in by an equal representation of the Foss and Vahey factions. The Foss men declare today that their candidate would have been elected on the third ballot. Temporary Candidate Mansfield in a statement today left no doubt as to his intention to withdraw within the 72 hours provided by law. He said:

"I positively will withdraw just as soon as the sub-committee appointed by the convention selects a candidate to take my place. I will withdraw only when this happens and at the request of no other person or body of men. There is very little that can be added to the statement made by Mr. Vahey in the convention when he placed my name in nomination. Solely for the good of his party and in the interests of harmony he made the great sacrifice which is recorded in the newspapers of today. This sacrifice and the manly attitude which he took before the convention make him the first and biggest man in the democratic party in Massachusetts."

One of the developments of today was the fact that the time for filing convention nominations for state officers does not expire at 5 p. m. today, as was stated in the convention early today. One of the principal reasons advanced for the compromise candidacy of Mr. Mansfield was the claim that unless the nominations were filed by 5 p. m. today they would not appear on the ballot for the November election. At the office of the secretary of state it was said today that the time for filing nominations does not expire until Monday, Oct. 10.

A provisional candidate for lieutenant governor, who, like Mr. Mansfield will withdraw later was selected by the committee of five in the person of Clifford Loring of Medford. For two years Mr. Loring has been executive secretary of the democratic state committee.

The nominations of Mr. Mansfield and Mr. Loring, it was arranged, were to be filed at the office of the secretary of state during the afternoon.

After selecting Mr. Loring as stopgap for the second place nomination, the committee adjourned, probably until tomorrow.

Says That the Cook Well Water is Pure

There are people in Lowell who do not like the Cook well water as well as the boulevard water. Its purity seems to be under suspicion, but there isn't any reason for suspicion. Speaking of the Cook well water as compared with the boulevard water, Supt. Thomas of the water department said: "The Cook well water is a little harder and a little colder than the boulevard water, but we have no reason to believe that it isn't just as pure."

The Cook wells are running at the present time and will continue in active operation until the 12 inch pipe removed in Lincoln street because of the grade crossing work there has been replaced. It is necessary to do this in order to afford the necessary pressure for the Highlands.

The conduit carrying the water from the boulevard has been given a thorough cleaning and the water department has men working for the gas company and the textile school. The department is also putting in a new

Elevator All Right Again.

After a "lay off" of about four weeks the elevator at city hall is doing business again at the old stand. A simple little cylinder was responsible for the long spell of idleness on the part of the elevator. The elevator man had such a long rest that he developed rheumatism. City Messenger Pattee had his first ride on the elevator this forenoon; that is, his first ride since the elevator was fixed. Mr. Pattee is somewhat under the weather. He is suffering from a severe cold. The school department has offices on both the top and lower floors at city hall and the attaches of that department are among those who are sincerely glad that the elevator has renewed its ups and downs.

PAYNE TARIFF BILL DENOUNCED

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 7.—Denunciation of the Payne tariff bill and the congressman from Michigan who aided in its passage was outlined today as the strongest plank in the platform of the democratic state convention to be adopted today.

The promise of bi-partisan appointive boards and commissions throughout the state in the event of democratic victory, was expected to largely eliminate the state issues in the fight and center the contest on the tariff and other national measures.

Men of the Round Table Meet and Discussed Plans for Winter Season—Coffee Party at Grace Universalist Church

The vestry of the Worthen Street Baptist church was the scene of a very pleasant gathering last night. The event was the 7th anniversary of the organization of the church. Previous to the anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bohannon observed their 52d marriage anniversary. They had a reception previous to the supper.

The supper was given by the members of the congregation and the women of the church had general supervision of affairs. Rev. A. P. Wedge, the pastor, called to order, and talked on the anniversary.

A duet by George E. Drew and Harry Hopkins, with Mrs. Geo. E. Drew as accompanist, was so well given that an encore was demanded. Albert Wilson entertained with a cornet selection and he was followed by Mr. Bennett, who spoke on "Home Work." He said, in part: "In a way I am an optimist when it comes to the work of the Christian church. Some might call me a dreamer. I believe that there is work for the church, a lot of work. This talk that one hears on all sides, that there are too many churches, is all folly. A man ought to be ashamed to make such a statement. The intelligence and good of a community is generally judged by the number of churches and institutions it contains."

"I see many possibilities for the church to accomplish. First, the church should be full of hearers on Sabbath morning and should also have a large Sunday school membership. The Friday night meetings should have an encouraging attendance. With these conditions the finances of a church come easy. To accomplish such results the members of a church should co-operate with its pastor, listen to his advice and follow as he would have you follow."

"These are the possibilities, I say, that I see about me, and may we all live to see a realization of them in the near future. They can come, and will, if each one does his or her part."

A song by Mr. Hopkins followed, and after him, Rev. J. A. Francis, D. D., of Boston, spoke on "Christ's Way of Doing Things." He said, in part: "I have come to know your pastor well of late and, as a result, I have come to like him well. On this occasion, however, I will not divert from my subject to congratulate you on your pastor, but more to congratulate your pastor on his congregation."

"Christ possessed that irresistible power to convert to his fold many who were thought to be beyond all redemption. The same power he vests in you all. This church could be an irresistible power in the city, if its every member developed in him that power granted him. Religion is a personal acquaintance with Christ and is there for every man, if one is to accomplish things in this life. If you have a true friend, you can save a soul. You can wield power over others by your example. What Christ has done for us has, mortgaged us for life. Take up the work, then, and do something by displaying some personal interest in the work that Christ would have you do. If you do this, the world will be better for it and your church will benefit likewise."

The supper committee of the evening consisted of Mrs. G. D. Farley, chairman; Mrs. G. R. Myers, Mrs. Geo. Harris, Mrs. G. E. Brock, Mrs. W. N. Burke, Mrs. K. Gardner, Mrs. Burton H. Wiggin, Mrs. A. B. Wilson, Mrs. O. C. Ledbetter, Mrs. Albert McQuestion, Mrs. John Dunn, Miss Annie Kimball, Miss Jones and Miss A. Gertrude Siles.

The matrons of the tables were Mrs. Findley Stevenson, Mrs. E. S. Blackford, Mrs. O. C. Dodge, Mrs. A. B. Wilson, Mrs. John McQuestion, Mrs. Nutting, Mrs. Barter, Mrs. Frank Prescott, Mrs. George Huntton, Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. George L. Myers, Mrs. Garvis and Miss Ryan.

The young women who acted as waitresses were Misses Marion Farley, Emily Wiggin, Mildred McQuestion, Lillian Arnold, Fanny Morrison, Alice Tabor, Lillian Dunn and Irene Walsh.

The young men who assisted were Messrs. Carl Mason, William Leggat, Horatius Leggat, Harold Shaw, William Wiggin and Ira Goldthwaite.

Men of the Round Table
A meeting of the Men of the Round Table, of the First Baptist church, was held last night. The speaker, president, spoke of the plans for the coming season. Supper was served and there were several speakers.

Trull, "Twenty Years Ago and Today;" Benjamin O. Pillsbury, "The Social Gospel;" Rev. S. W. Cummings, "The Value of the Men of the Round Table."

Malthoid
Roofing

It is longer lasting—more fire resisting—more water and weather proof than any other known roofing.

Malthoid is made right in every detail and for that reason makes a most perfect roof covering.

No matter under what conditions it is used—what climate it is used in—the character of the building used on—

Malthoid is the best roofing that it is possible to make and we can prove it by the record of the makers—

SUITS $15

One evening last week we overheard this remark made by a young man who was looking in our suit window: "Well, I never knew they carried $15.00 Suits here before."

That remark got us thinking. It showed two things clearly: that that young man didn't read our ads. and that the showing of $15.00 Suits wasn't made often enough, or long enough to leave an impression.

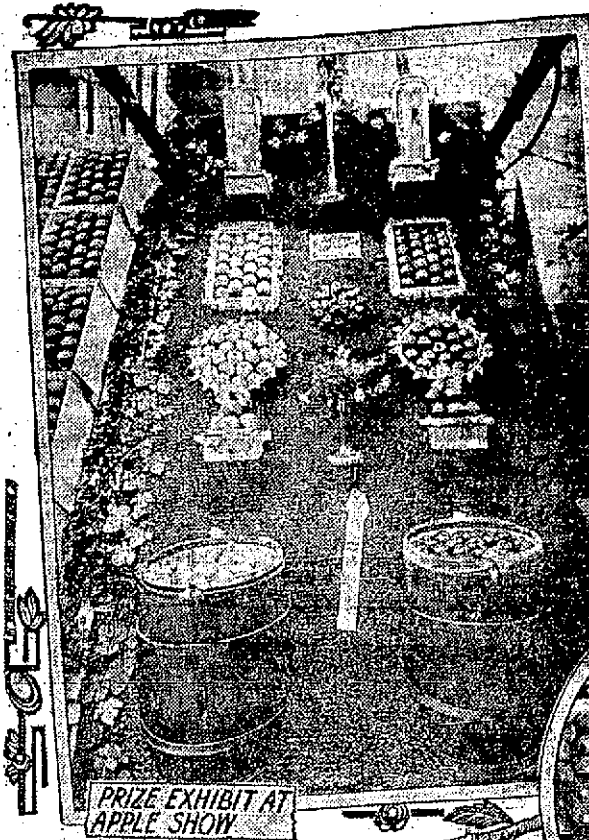

Then we wondered: how many more men are there in Lowell who don't know our strength in $15.00 Suits and Overcoats?

So we're devoting another week and another ad. to the $15.00 men—and we'd like to see them all—we'd just like them to compare our standard of $15.00 Suits with all the others in town. It would be absurd to claim to show as many styles—we DON'T—but we do claim a higher standard—a cleverer selection of models and fabrics—and better tailoring than any of the big stores.

We don't cover as MUCH ground, but we think that on the ground we do cover—the $15.00, $20.00 and $25.00 prices—we're "it."

You young men who have worn or heard of College Brand Clothes—what do you think of College Brand Suits at

ALL HAIL THE APPLE, KING OF FRUITS!

Sturdy and broad and tall,
Over the garden wall
It spreads its branches wide,
A bower on either side,
For the bending boughs hang low,
And with spouts and gay turmoil,
The children gather like bees
To garner the golden spoils.
While the smiling mother sings:
"Rejoice for the gift it brings!
For the laden apple tree
That stands by our garden wall!"
—Julia C. R. Dorr.

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

BUT, however pleasing an object the apple tree, "sturdy and broad and tall, over the garden wall," may be, according to the poet and every one else who sees it, the object that really gladdens the heart of the apple grower is the long line of orchard trees with heavily laden branches that spells "money."

The apple tree of sentiment and poetry is a good thing—no man living would deny it—but the apple tree as the source of wealth in large quantities is better.

This is the season when farmers and orchardists all over the country are finding out for themselves the fact that the golden apples of mythology were no mere figments of the imagination. Far and away above any other fruit, the apple brings good returns to the man who grows it in large quantities. We are not speaking now of the healthfulness of the fruit, as a food and of the delight it brings to its consumer, which are conceded—only of the fact that an apple orchard in good bearing, such as that shown in the illustration, is not only a sight pleasing to the aesthetic eye, but also an earnest of a fattened bank account.

Right at the outset let it be said that this is a good year for the apple grower in most parts of the country. Of course it will not equal 1896. As dates in our courts are reckoned from the year 1776, so do the memories of apple growers go back to 1896. The years 1894 and 1895 were good years for apples, but not like 1896. It may be that the future will see a better apple year than 1896—indeed, it is not unlikely that it will, for the growing of apples for the market is increasing—but it is certain that for a long time to come 1896 will stand out in red on the apple man's calendar.

That the size of the apple crop of the United States is a most variable quantity may be judged from a comparison of the figures of recent years. Last year the United States produced 22,735,000 barrels of apples; in 1908, 25,450,000 barrels; in 1907, 28,840,000 barrels; in 1906 (one of the recent "good" years), 33,280,000 barrels; in 1905, 24,310,000 barrels. This year's supply will be greater than last year's and

"Round about them orchards sweep,
Apple and peach tree fruited deep,
Fair as a garden of the Lord."

probably greater than that of the years before, but it will not reach that of 1896 and will not come within hailing distance of the product of 1906.

A recent carefully made estimate of the country's apple harvest of this year compared with that of last year is as follows: Maine, 120 per cent; New Hampshire, 200 per cent; Vermont, 110 per cent; Massachusetts, 130 per cent; Connecticut, 125 per cent; Rhode Island, 90 per cent; New York, 100 per cent; Pennsylvania, 90 per cent; Missouri, 90 per cent; Kansas, 200 per cent; Oklahoma, 125 per cent; West Virginia, 120 per cent; Virginia, 225 per cent; Maryland, 85 per cent; all fair to good quality; New Jersey, 225 per cent; Delaware, 250 per cent; Ohio, 140 per cent; Michigan, 40 per cent; Wisconsin, 20 per cent; Arkansas, 150 per cent; Iowa, 15 per cent; Nebraska, 40 per cent; Kentucky, 175 per cent; Tennessee, 100 per cent;

Indiana, 175 per cent; Illinois, 40 per cent, all poor to good quality; Colorado, 70 per cent; Idaho, 300 per cent; Utah, 200 per cent; Montana, 90 per cent; California, 115 per cent; Oregon, 275 per cent; Washington, 350 per cent; New Mexico, 90 per cent, all good quality.

Crop Estimated at 31,374,000 Barrels.

The average for the entire country is 183 per cent, which would give us 31,374,000 barrels. Some of this vast total is exported, since the Britons and other foreigners are showing a growing fondness for our luscious fruit, but the greater part is consumed right here in the various forms which are too familiar to require detailing.

While the production of apples in the northwest will be between 6,500,000 and 6,700,000 boxes this season and while the yield will be the largest in the history of the apple growing states there, it is asserted that there will be no cheap apples in the northwest this fall and winter. The cause assigned is the great demand for the fancy western fruit in other sections of the country. The law of supply and demand operates here as it does in southern California, the home of choice oranges, where they cost more than they do in some sections of the country to which they are shipped.

Despite the enormous growth of the apple industry in the northwestern and Pacific coast apple districts, it is not believed that there ever will be an overproduction of apples on this continent. The demand grows with the supply, and the splendid appearance and flavor of the northwestern fruit assure for it a favorable reception wherever it is shown. The northwestern apples are "eating" apples distinctively as distinguished from the cooking and cider apples of other sections. Fancy packing and the most careful handling add to the market value of the northwestern apple, and buyers in New York city and elsewhere do not object to paying 10 or 15 cents apiece for choice specimens, provided they are large, speckless and flawless. There are many New York millionaires who pride themselves upon the appearance of their tables and hold that one of the chief beauties of their repasts is supplied by the glorious great globes which drew their sustenance from the fertile soil of Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho or elsewhere in the west. Higher prices than those quoted are frequently paid for the choicest specimens.

Eastern fruit growers concede the beauty of the western product, but stand up valiantly for the flavor of their own fruit. Whether the eastern Northern Spy or Baldwin or Winesap is a better apple than its western brother must be left to the judgment of the individual reader. The "apple of discord" is not the topic of this story, however much it may have furnished themes in the past for poets and singers.

Prices to Be Moderate.

According to one authority: "It is generally conceded that prices for apples the coming winter will not be fabulously high. In fact, there is every reason to believe that they will be moderately low. Peaches have been plentiful, as well as other small fruits, and housewives have done considerable canning to supply their wants during the winter. Therefore they will not feel compelled to pay high prices for apples. Cranberries are a good crop, and these always compete with apples to a certain extent, notwithstanding prices." But, with all due respect to this authority and to the favorite fruit of Cape Cod and some parts of New Jersey, it may be doubted that the tart cranberry, with its inordinate appetite for sugar, can be regarded as a serious rival of the apple, the fruit of the gods.

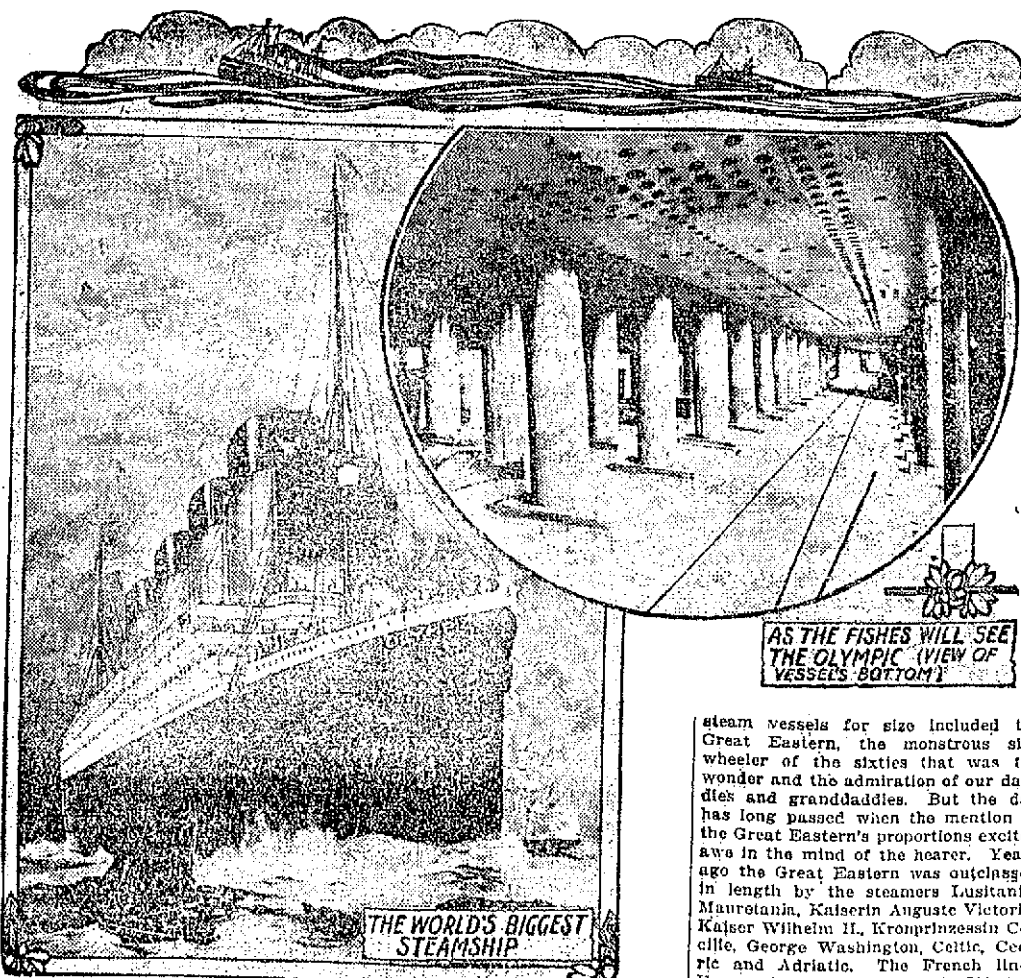

The apples which grow in Canada are justly famed for excellence. Many of them find their way across the ocean to the mother country and to other lands, where they find a ready market. England grows apples, of course, and has generally a good supply, but this year's crop will be a partial failure, owing to thunderstorms and heavy gales which shook the unripe fruit from the trees. To supply the demand arrangements have been made and are being made to ship apples from this country. The fine northwestern fruit, beautiful in appearance and carefully packed, has found favor among the Britons and commands good prices.

The apple tree in the picture, called "The world's best apple tree," is the Frazer tree, growing near Walla Walla, Wash. Its crop this year is estimated at between 150 and 200 boxes, thus breaking its record of 126½ boxes in 1907, the highest production from a single tree known anywhere in the world.

Although the apple has been cultivated since prehistoric time and has been a favorite fruit for many centuries, it seems to have escaped the notice of the famous literary folk. Excepting the poem of which the verse at the head of this article is a part and a poem on "Apple Blossoms," diligent search fails to reveal any tributes in prose or verse to the beauty and merit of the apple. Certainly it seems incredible that the big red juicy apple which rewards the insertion of one's front teeth with a flow of juice rivaling the gift of the grape should prove a worthy inspiration for the pen of an American poet or verse writer at any rate. Eugene Field sang the praises of "Apple Pie and Cheese," but neglected to tell in his delightful way of the excellence of the principal constituent of his favorite pastry.

She Will Make a Big Splash When She Is Launched

WANT to go abroad? Want to go in the very latest up to datest fashion? Don't go just yet. Wait awhile. This year's season is over anyway. Wait until next year and you will be able to cross the ocean in the very latest, biggest, finest of steamships. But get in early your request for accommodations if you want to be one of the first 600 of the first class passengers to cross the ocean from this side to the other in the Olympic. There is sure to be a rush for staterooms. No reputation for promptness is placed in jeopardy when it is stated that the passenger list of the Olympic will be full when the big ship sails for the first time from New York for England.

Nothing less expressive than slang will do justice to the Olympic's gigantism. So here goes: the Olympic will be "some ship" when she is completed. Her owners, the White Star line, might have adhered to their system of giving their vessels names ending with "ic" and might have called her the Gigantic were it not for the fact that the Olympic's sister ship, also under construction, is to be named the Titanic. Gigantic and Titanic might sound just a trifle too boastful, even for a big steamship company.

In former days all comparisons of steam vessels for size included the Great Eastern, the monstrous side wheeler of the sixties that was the wonder and admiration of our daddies and granddaddies. But the day has long passed when the mention of the Great Eastern's proportions excited awe in the mind of the hearer. Years ago the Great Eastern was outclassed in length by the steamers Lusitania, Mauretania, Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, Kaiser Wilhelm II, Kronprinzessin Cecilie, George Washington, Celtic, Cedric and Adriatic. The French liner France, launched recently, is 722 feet long. The Great Eastern was 692 feet long, 80 feet in its greatest breadth and had a displacement of 27,000 tons. With a favoring wind and using her steam engines and sails she could make from 13 to 14 knots. The Mauretania, which is slightly larger in some of her dimensions than the Lusitania, is 790 feet long, 85 feet broad and has a displacement of 45,000 tons. Her quadruple screws sent her along on a recent record breaking passage at the rate of 26.08 knots.

Now here comes along the Olympic, still bigger than the Mauretania. We say "come along" in order to introduce the paragraph, but she will not really come long until Oct. 28, when she will be launched at Belfast. Readers who are fond of big figures listen: The Olympic and her sister ship the Titanic will be 860 feet long and proportionately broad and will each displace 60,000 tons of sea water as they push their powerful way across the Atlantic. The traveling list on its first class roll, there will be room for 600 second class travelers, while the third cabin will have accommodations for 2,000 persons. To those must be added the crew of 800, making a total floating population of 3,800.

The "gadgets" in which these two big new "babes" of the sea are being constructed are in themselves marvels of hugeness. They are 1,000 feet long and 110 feet wide. Their technical name is "gantries," and they are considered by engineers two wonders of modern steel construction. The amount of material that goes to the formation of the hull of a great modern steamship is almost inconceivable. In the double bottom of the Olympic or the Titanic alone more than 500,000 rivets, weighing a total of 270 tons, are employed. The giant "boss arm" frames, as the huge brackets that support the three propeller shafts are termed, weigh 73½ tons, and the rudder holds 100 tons of material. The largest single plate employed on each vessel's side weighs 14 tons and is 36 feet long, and the largest single beam, supporting the decks, measures 92 feet in length and weighs 4 tons. An idea of the length of the vessels may be gathered by comparing them with the Metropolitan building's tower, the highest thing in New York. If the Olympic were set up on stern or bow alongside the big white building, she would overtop it by 160 feet. Historians speak of the great Spanish armada that was sent to overwhelm England in the sixteenth century. Why, if the hulls of the Olympic and the Titanic were hauled out not only a duplicate Spanish armada but also duplicates of the English vessels which sank the Spaniards could be floated within the steel walls and there would be room to spare.

The greatest single problem involved in the running of these monster ships is that of docking facilities. If the Olympic is to be up to any of the present New York piers forty or fifty feet of her stern must project into the Hudson. That noble river is wide enough, of course, to meet present demands, but the distance between the sterns of the British vessels moored on the New York side and those of the German ships lying at Hoboken is narrowing steadily. It is believed that the Olympic and Titanic may have to dock at South Brooklyn.

Big as the Olympic and Titanic will be, they are still not the last word in marine construction. The Hamburg-American line recently began work on a vessel that is to be 380 feet in length and is to exceed the dimensions of the Britishers in other respects. The art and science of modern shipbuilding move on progressive lines.

WALTER P. HUDSON.

One of the Snapshot Man's Standbys

SHE is not a freak nor a "horrible hexample." She is not the awful looking spectacle some newspaper pictures have shown over her name. She is simply a healthy, happy young American woman, filled to the brim with what the French call "the joy of living." For name she has Eleanor R. Sears, and for station in life she has membership in the Sears family of Boston, which has oodles and oodles of money and ranks with the most azure blooded folk in America. When the Winthrop and the Bradfords and the Aldens and the Quineys and the Adamases made their famous un-cooked tour in the Mayflower the Seares were towing behind in a private shallop of their own. That shows how exclusive they were in the olden days. Today Miss Eleanor Sears is not less exclusive when she is acting her role in society. On the tennis court and the baseball diamond and the polo field she is not so exclusive. She is rather inclusive—in fact, numbering among her favorite sports all the things on the sport calendar, from acrobatics to tiddlywinks, and she is good at all of them.

It is as America's premier society sportswoman that Miss Sears is known from Boston to San Francisco. Other young women with places in the elite ranks have excelled her in some lines of sport—so far as known she holds no championships—but for all round excellence she has borne off the palm in recent years. Miss Sears graces with her presence most of the events in which society takes especial interest, such as the big horse shows and the tennis matches, but she is seldom content with being "among those present." She wants to get right into the midst of things, whether the game is polo or swimming or golf or anything else that is strenuous enough to engage her overhanging activities. She knows the rules and the fine points of all the sports that there are and probably could earn a good living as a sporting editor if the family millions had not placed her above such cares.

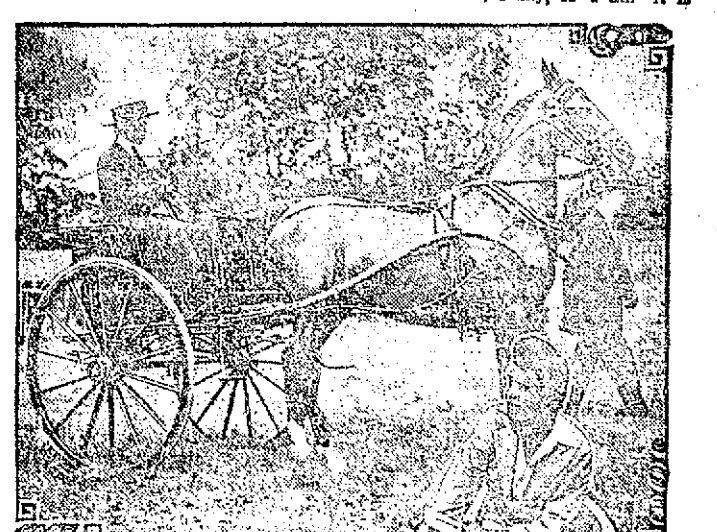

Not only is Miss Sears the best of society's sportswomen, but she could give points to most of the gladiators who follow sports as a vocation for want of something more useful to do. In various lines she has proved her ability to meet and conquer male competitors, sometimes in games that are considered peculiarly men's own. Polo, for example, is not generally, in society or out of it, believed to be a good game for women. And yet Miss Sears is almost as expert with the long handled mallet as she is with the shorter handled tennis racket. She was greatly lifted last year because the young men at Burlingame, the swapper country club of San Francisco, wouldn't let her play in a match game. They were "awfully sorry, but know," chagrined almost to death, but the possibilities of accident in a polo game are too numerous to permit of the entry of a woman in a regular match. But Miss Sears thinks they were afraid to let her play for fear of a defeat.

All this in spite of the fact that Miss Sears asked no odds and even went to the length of donning riding trousers, to the open mouthed astonishment of some British visitors to Burlingame. In England the spectacle of a young woman holding as high rank in society as Miss Sears does here—say one of the Howards or the Talbotts—wearing

"Miss May Sutton says that you are the best dressed woman in this country," was the reply.

"Oh!" said Miss Sears. "I thought I might have misunderstood you the first time. May is a very sweet girl, and I am very fond of her, but you may not know that she has a keen sense of humor. Are you sure she was in earnest? Quite sure? Well, it's a very pretty compliment, even if it is not deserved. Certainly I never have had any aspirations to be known as the best dressed woman in America. If I am—mind, I say, if I am—it is riding breeches and trying to join in a polo game with men would cause more excitement and more letters to the London Times than a bunch of suffragettes being arrested.

Let no reader, female or male, imagining that in acquiring high proficiency in sports generally regarded as men's own Miss Sears has sacrificed any of her normal feminine aspirations. Among other womanly graces which she possesses—that is, when she is not covering herself with perspiration and salt in various vigorous ways—she knows how to dress well and attractively. Miss May Sutton, the famous tennis champion, who is "in" society and who knows other things besides the proper weight of a tennis racket, declared recently that Miss Sears is the best dressed young woman in America. When this was reported to Miss Sears she said:

"Say it again, please."

CONVICTS ESCAPE

Men Made Their Way Out of Sing Sing Prison

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Five convicts escaped from Sing Sing prison early today by sawing the bars off a window on the second floor of the chapel dormitory and letting themselves down on ropes made by tearing portions of their clothing into strips. The men dropped into the Hudson river and swam down stream.

The men who escaped are Isador Bloom, Joseph White, Robert Boylan, Walter Branigan and William Green.

They were serving short terms for lesser offenses and were confined in the chapel dormitory, which although not so strong as the prison proper, has been forced into use by the crowded state of the institution. It developed that in the breakaway the two keepers in the dormitory were attacked by the desperate men, one keeper being pounded into insensibility and the other bound hand and foot and rendered helpless.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Hallet & Stack are a hit at the Academy in their skit, "The Maid and the Mutt." It certainly is to laugh. Miss Stack sings a laughing song that gets every one started and they find it hard to stop. The Brucers are a lively pair of colored entertainers, and Mlle. Chester and her dog are well named as "the act beautiful." New moving pictures complete the bill. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

THEATRE VOYONS

The human mind is a great study and eminent surgeons have devoted years to its study only to admit that there are things that are inexplicable. Today the Theatre Voyons shows a picture, "A Home Melody" which tells a pathetic story of a mother and her senses. The mother loses her mind when she hears that her only child has been drowned and for years is mildly insane. The playing of an old melody such as she and her daughter played together lets in the first ray of light and she eventually recovers her mind. "Betty is Still at Her Old Tricks" is a roaring comedy with plenty of funny incidents and clever work. A scenic subject of the Mollucca Islands is of great interest and a sterling Biograph dramatic subject completes a very fine bill.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

One of the best bills imaginable is on the program at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Bruce Morgan and his Piccadilly Johnnies head the list in an entertaining specialty in which catchy songs and some wonderful dancing prevail.

Then there is Danny Simpons—everybody knows Danny. He presents an intensely amusing sketch of imitations and parodies which keeps audiences in roars from curtain to curtain. The Aerial Maginlays have a startling trapeze act, and Miss Mitzie Atwood appears in unusual vocal imitations. The Seaside Stock company presents a laughable one act farce called "Mr. Mutt," which gives full play to the amusing.

BILLERICA

The winter arrangement of trains on the Boston & Maine railroad will go into effect next Monday. The changes are rather slight and will have no effect on the regular users of the trains. There will be the same number of branch trains, four southward and three northward daily. Where the changes occur, they only amount to a few minutes difference. The branch trains that stop at Billerica Centre are as follows: To Boston: 6:59, 9:26 a. m., 6:22 p. m.; from Boston, 10:47 a. m., 4:47, 6:09, 6:48 p. m. From North Billerica to Boston, 6:54, 6:52, 8:19, 9:53, 10:08 a. m., 12:19, 2:49, 4:37, 6:18 p. m. From Boston 7:01, 8:48, 10:55 a. m., 12:51, 2:39, 4:53, 6:15, 6:55, 11:25, 11:56 p. m.

OAKLANDS LINE

THE RUNNING TIME DURING THE BREAK BY SEWER WORK

There seems to be some misunderstanding relative to the running time of the Oakland line since the line has been "broken" as a result of the building of the new sewer in East Merrimack street. The following is the correct running schedule:

Leave "break" in East Merrimack street for Oakland—6:45, 6:16 a. m. and every 20 minutes until 7:36 a. m., then 8:00 a. m. and every 20 minutes until 11:30 a. m., then 11:52 a. m. and every 15 minutes until 8:08 p. m., then 8:30 p. m. and every 30 minutes until 12:30 a. m.

Return—Leave Oakland, 6:00, 6:28 a. m., and every 20 minutes until 7:48 a. m., then 8:15 a. m. and every 20 minutes until 11:55 a. m., then 11:40 a. m., 12:08 p. m. and every 15 minutes until 8:22 p. m., then 8:45 p. m. and every 30 minutes until 12:45 a. m.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. John J. Neylon and Miss Della T. Slattery were united in marriage at the parochial residence of the Immaculate Conception church, Wednesday, Rev. Lawrence F. Tish, O. M. I., performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Catherine F. Slattery, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Thomas McCann. A reception was held at the home of Mr. John Markham, 11 Floyd street. In the evening, Miss Marietta Markham and Miss Annie F. Crowe assisted Mr. and Mrs. Neylon.

play as "The Evening of the Third Floor Back" (in which he has appeared some 200 times in England) is likely to engender added interest in both personally and play. The Forbes-Robertson brothers early and appropriate divided their family name for stage purposes. Though Ian Robertson did not quit the school room for the stage, he first underwent what he now decries as "seven years' penal servitude" in the form of an apprenticeship to a famous firm of shipbuilders, burning his boats behind him, however, as soon as his articles had expired. He will be supported by an entirely English company, who have come over with him. The engagement here at the Opera House is for Oct. 10 and 11. Seats are now on sale.

THE SMART SET

S. H. Dudley, one of the best known and with funniest colored comedians on the stage, will head the famous "Smart Set" Company at the Opera House Wednesday, Oct. 12 next week with a matinee. The organization will present that laughable three act musical comedy entitled "His Honor, the Barber." The offering is said to be the best in which this remarkable troupe has appeared in years. Edwin Hanford wrote the book, Messrs. Brynne, Smith and Burris furnished the music and lyrics. All the songs possess a happy and catchy swing and several of the numbers are certain to be whistled before the engagement is half over. In the cast are S. H. Dudley, Ella Anderson, Lottie Grady, Andrew Tribble and last but not least, Alida Overton Walker, who will offer an entirely original specialty.

"BINGVILLE BUGLE FOLKS"

"Bingville Bugle Folks" a beautiful rural comedy drama by Newton Newkirk and founded on the comic feature of the same name in the Boston Sunday Post, will be seen at the Opera House Oct. 15th. The play has already had an extended run in Boston, and was there pronounced by press and public as the best rural drama of the past decade.

A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI

Rarely indeed have Lowell playgoers been permitted to watch a performance in which every role is adapted in such an eminently satisfactory manner as will be the case when Thomas A. Wise and his supporting company will be seen in "A Gentleman from Mississippi" at the Opera House Oct. 14 and 15. Such a performance as will be given by Wm. A. Brady's original company in support of his jolly star, Thos. A. Wise as Senator Langdon, would carry even a poor play to success, and when material of such inherent strength and such absorbing interest as is in "A Gentleman from Mississippi" is placed at the disposal of Mr. Wise and a company of such gifted players, the result is exceptional. "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will be presented here exactly as it was seen for thirteen months in New York and for sixteen consecutive weeks at the Park theatre, Boston, last season.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

The striking third act of "The Tales of Hoffman," which is being sung at Hathaway's theatre this week, bears a resemblance to "Faust" in some of its essentials. Its music, however, is entirely different in character, and possesses a charm which is compelling. Homer Lind has given the production an excellent cast, and the work is consistently played. Miss Helene Frederick, a good looking, competent soprano, has the role of "Antonia." George Crampton's "Dr. Miracle" is a well acted part.

The other acts are all good. Barnes & Robinson distribute a few songs, and Charles Montrell is far better than the average juggler. Kersey's microphone is a novel musical machine, while Helen Carmen justifies the title of "the girl with the smile." Ruby Raymond and her boy, Danny, are exceeding agile. The City Comedy Four supply music and create laughter.

Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week, with special seats at the matinees for women.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At 1 o'clock this morning the supporters of Vahey and Foss in the democratic state convention agreed to select a compromise candidate.

The nomination was offered to Dist. Atty. Pelletier, and Mr. Pelletier refused it absolutely, although he could have had it by acclamation.

Efforts were made to get in touch with Col. William Gaston, to whom it was planned to offer the nomination. At the conference Foss was represented by John F. McDonald, Martin Lomasney, Joseph A. Maynard, Malachi Jennings and William F. Murray.

Vahey attended himself and had with him Congressman Kelher, Senator Doyle, Maj. Crowley, Daniel W. Coakley and Thomas F. Vahey.

The conference followed a disturbance resembling the riot at the Springfield convention three years ago. As a result of the trouble, the candidates felt the nomination of either one would be of little value to the party.

Josiah Quincy, who had been strongly with Foss, expressed the opinion before the conference that the only way to assure a democratic victory at the polls would be to select a compromise candidate.

Major Fitzgerald is keeping in close touch with his friends in the convention, and may decide to become a candidate himself unless some other strong man can be agreed on.

Eugene N. Foss lacked six votes of being nominated on the second ballot. The first ballot stood:

Number of votes 490
Necessary for choice 245
Foss 383
Vahey 302
Scattering 5

Mr. Hamlin then authorized his lieutenants to withdraw his candidacy and throw his strength to Vahey.

On the second ballot the vote was:

Number of votes 886
Necessary to nominate 443
Foss 438
Vahey 425
Hamlin 20
Scattering 3

The convention was in tumult when the result of the second ballot was announced, and an effort was made by the Vahey supporters to secure an adjournment, but without success. A third ballot was ordered.

Mr. Hamlin's withdrawal in favor of Vahey was the result of an agreement entered into before the convention, to the effect that whichever of these two candidates proved the stronger on the first ballot should give his support to the other.

On the second ballot, however, some of his supporters still stuck to him, and this prevented the nomination of Foss.

The Hamlin Shift
The announcement of Hamlin's shift to Vahey came as the climax of an episode which threatened to embroil the Kelher and Lomasney factions in a miniature riot.

Martin Lomasney had just intimated that the Boston machine would support Vahey rather than see Hamlin nominated, and when Senator Doyle took the platform and asked his friends to vote for Vahey it looked like a shrewd ploy to get the better of the ward chief.

Lomasney was plainly taken aback by the unlooked-for development, but at once gathered his forces and proceeded to collect Hamlin's credentials.

Some of the Hamlin men were indignant at the manner of their candidate's withdrawal. They felt that he should have taken the platform and withdrawn himself, instead of leaving it to someone else.

Quite a number of them left for home, leaving their credentials with ward men. Some of Vahey's supporters, angered by what they regarded as a trick on the part of the Hamlin-Vahey leaders, also deserted to the Foss cause.

The most exciting moment of the convention, which has been in session with one 20-minute recess since 11 a. m. yesterday, occurred when the result of the second ballot was announced.

President Joseph A. Maynard of the city committee moved that a third ballot be taken. A motion to adjourn until a call from the chairman was made by McGillivuddy, a Hamlin supporter, amid the shouts of a "No! No!" from all over the hall.

The motion started an uproar that resembled a riot, almost a duplication of the famous Springfield convention of three years ago. Chairman Thayer announced that although the motion to adjourn was in order, in view of the fact that the nominations must be filed on Friday, he would refuse to entertain it, and then called for a ye and nay vote on Maynard's motion.

Mr. Thayer immediately declared the motion was passed, upon which there was a mad rush to the platform by a number of Boston delegates. Thayer pounded with his gavel until quiet was resumed, when someone doubted the result. "You cannot speak until I recognize you," was Thayer's cry.

Immediately Martin Lomasney jumped upon the platform, but the chairman pushed him back to the press tables with his gavel. "Then put 'at man off the platform, too," shouted Lomasney, pointing at Congressman Kelher, who stood upon the press tables. Thomas Vahey, a brother of Candidate Vahey, was compelled by the police to leave the platform.

Kelher Threatens Trouble
Standing on the press tables, Kelher shouted: "Give us 20 minutes, and we will straighten this thing out. If you want trouble we will give it to you." He then moved for a 20-minute recess, which was carried.

The representatives of Foss and Vahey then gathered in the ante-rooms, a most stormy session began. At this time it began to look as though an entirely new name would be presented to the convention for the nomination.

The doors had been left open and outsiders were pouring in. It was necessary for Lieut. Frohawk of station 2, a sergeant and ten patrolmen to clear the platform of the excited delegates, who were now at fever heat, the entire Boston delegation trying to mount the platform at the same time.

Balloting Proceeds Slowly
Balloting for a nominee for governor was begun at 4.30 o'clock. Beside the single-ballot box on the platform stood the officers of the convention, and two representatives of each candidate.

There was a great deal of pushing as the delegates slowly made their way toward the box. Several lines of delegates converged into one at the narrow steps to the platform. Action by the police in response to appeals from the crowd expedited matters.

The balloting proceeded very slowly. Each delegate's credential was examined closely, then checked on a list. Many were without coats and vests, and scores left the building for a few minutes' respite in the cool air of the street.

At 5.20 the balloting was still in progress, but the band had come from supper and was cheered by the swelling and impatient delegates. The musicians played "We Won't Go Home Till Morning," but refused to respond to demands for "Sweet Adeline," and the crowd uttered the refusal.

The balloting ended at 6.55, and the committee retired to count the votes. Then came a long wait. Mr. Thayer suggested that the time might be taken up by nominations for Lieutenant governor, but no one made a motion in that effect, and the crowd waited, listening to the band. At 8.35 the committee filed into the hall and made its report.

Kelher and Lomasney Differ

As soon as the result of the first ballot was announced and the cheering had subsided, Congressman Kelher was recognized and said:

"In view of the fact that the first ballot discloses that no nomination has been made, I move that we proceed to another ballot, that the several candidates duplicate their watches and counters, and that we have two ballot boxes and two lines of voters, in order to facilitate the taking of the vote."

Martin M. Lomasney jumped to his feet the moment Mr. Kelher had concluded and objected strenuously to any change in the system of voting.

"Every one knows," he said, "that the system proposed by Mr. Kelher has always resulted in trouble in Boston. Stay here a little while longer and nominate the next governor of Massachusetts, whether it is James H. Vahey or Eugene N. Foss."

Mr. Lomasney's mention of these two names in the order given was taken as an intimation that the Lomasney-Fitzgerald forces had decided to throw their strength to Vahey in order to prevent Mr. Hamlin's nomination.

Immediately the convention was in an uproar. Amid the excitement Mr. Kelher secured the floor. The disturbance was so great that at first he could not be heard, but when partial quiet had been restored he said:

"We must congratulate ourselves that we have held a convention. I advocated the idea that gave us this splendid convention. But if we have not confidence enough in ourselves to duplicate what we have done this convention will not be a deliberative convention. I do not care whether we have one box or two boxes, for under this system of voting when we get through we will not have a riot such as we had at Springfield."

Something Like Springfield Scenes
The mention of the Springfield riot so aroused a certain element of the Boston delegates that for a time it looked as if that historic episode might be duplicated in some of its features. The chairman was powerless to quiet the excited delegates, many of whom surged forward as if they intended to drag Mr. Kelher from the platform.

"It makes no difference except this," continued the congressman, lifting his voice so that it could be heard above the angry roar of his opponents. "If you want to spend the night here balloting I am willing to stay. But you know that the forces of corruption will stay all night, when honest men have got to go home."

This created another uproar, and while delegates surged upon the platform from either side, Mr. Lomasney was recognized again and shouted above the din:

"The first Boston man to take the platform was the gentleman who has just spoken. What did he say? He said it made no difference."

That was as far as the ward chief-tain got for the time. Mr. Kelher's friends took a turn at noisemaking and succeeded in drowning the speaker's voice.

Mr. Lomasney's supporters were packed in behind him like so many bodyguards. Chairman Macleod and Joseph A. Maynard were among them, trying to aid the chairman in preserving order, and Councillor W. F. Murray was there waiting his turn to speak.

"The result of this convention," thundered Mr. Lomasney, when the shoulders had tired themselves out, "shows that Mr. Foss and Mr. Vahey are in the lead. The friends of Mr. Hamlin want to give you two lines. Gentlemen, the friends of Mr. Foss would rather see Mr. Vahey nominated than Mr. Hamlin."

Police Called to Platform
Mr. Lomasney did not finish his statement, or if he did he could not be heard. Councillor Murray tried to get recognition, but the chairman was too busy yielding his gavel to pay much attention to the police who were called and succeeded in driving from the platform most of those who did not belong there.

Mr. Murray then spoke along the same line as Mr. Lomasney, reiterating the assertion that, whether it was Vahey or Foss, the convention would nominate the next governor of Massachusetts.

Dr. Sullivan of Fall River got the floor for a moment and told the delegates it was time for them to stop their nonsense and get down to business.

Kelher asked again that his motion be considered and requested the chairman to corroborate him in saying that he had suggested, before the result of the first ballot was known, that something be done to facilitate the voting.

Mr. Thayer said the congressman had stated the facts correctly.

Doyle Calls for Aid
Senator Doyle then jumped upon the platform and, amid shrieks, cheers, hisses and other manifestations of approval and disapproval, said:

"I have been a lifelong friend of one of the candidates before this convention, but for reasons of political expediency I did not think it was wise to nominate that candidate. But, my friends, I desire to announce now, as an ardent supporter and admirer of Mr. Hamlin, that I and the other Hamlin men want you to vote for James H. Vahey."

The demonstration that followed this announcement kept the convention in an uproar for several minutes. When the noise subsided, Mr. Doyle continued:

"Mr. Vahey is not a democrat of 12 months' experience. He has been a lifelong democrat. Vote for Vahey!"

The Vahey men and many of those who had voted for Mr. Hamlin cheered themselves hoarse, while the anti-Hamlin crowd was completely taken aback.

The previous question was moved and carried, although few in the hall knew what was going on, and at nine o'clock the convention proceeded to a second ballot.

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSE TODAY
The Market Showed Little Sign of Life—Drift of Prices Hardly Perceptible at the End of the Dealings

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Uniform advances of a moderate fraction were shown all through the day by the opening prices of stocks. Prominent points of strength were found in the railroad stocks in the southern region and in the copper industrials. Missouri Pacific rose 2, Wabash pfd. 1 and Louisville & Nashville, Southern Railway, Amalgamated Copper, Utah Copper, Anaconda, Western Union, and International Harvester large fractions. The dealings were well distributed but are not in large amount.

Interest in the market dwindled on fluctuations of no importance. Comparative prices showed the leading stocks ruling close to yesterday's final figures. American Telegraph & Cable was lifted 2 1/2.

The market tended to react but the declines were slight, and very few of the leaders went below yesterday's closing. The Texas company stock made a precipitate break of 4 points. Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh sold at an advance of 5 points.

The market was two sided. Prominent market leaders were pressed for sale under cover of strength in specialties. Coppers were strong in expectation of a favorable monthly report by the copper producers' association. Bonds were steady.

Small recoveries were made by the principal stocks after which the whole market became very quiet. Central Railroad of New Jersey advanced 3 points. Pacific Telephone fell 1 1/2 and Ren. Steel pfd. 5.

The market closed steady. The market was stagnant in effect. The drift of prices was hardly perceptible.

The Cotton Market
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—There was an active demand in the cotton market today with prices making new high records for the season on the strong showing of the English market following the settlement of the Lancashire labor troubles and reports that planters were holding cotton for fifteen cents. Closing prices were 3 or 4 points off from the top under realizing but the final tone of the market was firm at advance of from 20 to 24 points for the day.

the death of Mr. Rogers a larger addition to the tack factory was in contemplation. This was held up for a year, but eventually the family of Mr. Rogers, who are now the owners of the property, decided to carry out the plan, and a great addition has been made, increasing the original capacity of the works by half. This has been in operation for several months.

Meanwhile Mr. Weymouth had been living modestly in a house rented from Jos. N. Nye on Main street, north of the bridge, on the east shore of the river. His establishment was very modest for a man of his supposed means, drawing a salary of about $12,000 a year. His wife was an invalid and the family did not entertain. They kept one maid, but Mr. Weymouth apparently indulged in no extravagances. He rode to and from his office in a trolley car and was seldom seen in places of amusement. He was a member of the society of the Unitarian church, took some interest in Masonic events. He was a Mason of the 32d degree, and belonged to the Village Improvement society.

Killed in Auto Wreck
Early in September Mr. Weymouth went to Bingham, Me., on a business trip to one of the factories of the American Shoe Finding company, of which he was president. On Wednesday, Sept. 7, he went out for an automobile ride with J. J. Landers to visit a piece of property in which Mr. Landers desired to interest him, accompanied by Peter Glass and A. Dinsmore, business men of Boston. In descending a steep hill outside the town Mr. Landers lost control and turned turtle. Mr. Weymouth was instantly killed and Mr. Glass and Mr. Dinsmore were seriously injured.

At the time of his death no soul had doubted the integrity of Mr. Weymouth, and prominent manufacturers and business men came from distant points to join with the leading citizens of Fairhaven in paying the last token of honor and respect.

When came the astounding development that Mr. Weymouth had stolen thousands of dollars from the corporation. The surplus funds in the Washington set bank had been drawn from time to time and it is estimated that the shortage is somewhere between $100,000 and $150,000. The accounts of the corporation are in such a tangled mess that it is impossible to accurately estimate the aggregate of Mr. Weymouth's shortcomings, but the amount will not be less than the minimum here stated.

Atlas Tack Company Manager's Secret Bared By Death

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 7.—A shortage of between $130,000 and $150,000 was announced yesterday in the books of the late George W. Weymouth, president and general manager of the Atlas Tack company, controlled by the estate of the late Henry H. Rogers.

Mr. Weymouth, who resigned from congress, where he represented the 4th Massachusetts district from 1887 to 1891, to accept the position, was killed in the Fitchburg and Leominster street railway company and of the Orswell & Noctidge mills.

At the time of the death of Manager Garrett of the Atlas Tack works Mr. Weymouth was recommended by a business friend of Mr. Rogers for the position of general manager of the tack company. Mr. Rogers had no personal acquaintance with Congressman Weymouth at the time and relied largely upon the judgment of his adviser and the record of Mr. Weymouth's business experience. The position was eventually tendered Mr. Weymouth and he resigned from congress to accept it.

Changed Losses to Profits
The Atlas tack company was at this time at a critical period of development. The American tack company commenced business in 1857 and had been Fairhaven's lone industry for many years. Mr. Rogers was spending millions in making Fairhaven the most beautiful of New England villages and he desired to make the industry the largest of its kind. The Atlas tack company was accordingly organized with a capital of $1,000,000. Mr. Rogers owning the entire stock. The business of the Fields and other tack manufacturers was bought up, including the business of the Hobarts and the Loringes, and Mr. Rogers had achieved his ambition of building in Fairhaven the largest tack works in the world.

But the price on tacks in the market had gone by the board and in spite of economies of operation the company's business in a modern factory under one management and roof with an ideal location as to transportation by rail it was revealed that the business could not be carried on profitably at the prevailing price of labor. It was at this time that Mr. Weymouth assumed charge and his administration was inaugurated by a revision of the wage schedule.

It had been predicted he could never break down the wage schedule demanded by the union, but he succeeded and after a while the operation of the factory commenced to show profits instead of losses.

Lived Most Modestly
This showing was a source of much gratification to Mr. Rogers. During the life of the latter a handsome dividend was maintained. At the time of

Three Men Charged With a Serious Offense

Alfred Mohammed, Mohammed Shuckey and Moostafa Sooleyman, who were arrested a few days ago, charged with assaulting Arthur J. Denno, Joseph Pomeroy and Joseph Champagne, were arraigned in police court this morning and charged with having committed a very serious offense. Through their counsel pleas of not guilty were entered.

The testimony of the complainants was held in an undertone and after the government had rested its case probable cause was found and each of the defendants was held under $1000 bonds for appearance before the November sitting of the grand jury.

Robbed His Employer

Daniel McGregor was charged with the larceny of six pounds of rubber, each pound of the value of 70 cents, the property of Earl P. Bryant. He admitted his guilt and though given a chance to speak said he had nothing to say in his own behalf. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $15 within three days or be committed to jail for two months.

Mr. Bryant conducts a carriage building establishment in West Third street and McGregor had been in his employ for the past four months. From time to time Mr. Bryant missed rubber and in all claims that 250 pounds was stolen from him. The day before yesterday he went to a box which contained tools belonging to McGregor and therein found nearly six pounds of rubber used in tires. He immediately reported the matter to the police with the result that McGregor was placed under arrest.

Case Continued

The case of Nicholas Sopronas, charged with failing to provide proper support for his wife, Georgette, was continued till tomorrow morning at the request of the government.

Failed to Appear

Louis Montferand was charged with failing to remove a vault complaint having been made by the board of health. He was not present in court, however, and the case was continued.

Illegal Keeping of Pigs

Bodie L. Gray was charged with keeping swine within the city limits without permission from the board of health. At the request of his counsel the matter was continued till next Friday.

THE DEFALCATION

Not So Large as at First Expected

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 7.—The following statement relative to the defalcation of the late George Weymouth, president of the Atlas Tack company, was issued to the Associated Press today from the office of Grubb, Clifford & Prescott: "The statement in relation to the defalcation of funds of the Atlas Tack company by its late president which appeared in the morning papers is substantially correct. The sum taken is over-stated. The amount which it is absolutely known that Mr. Weymouth misappropriated is considerably less than the figure given. How much more is to be added depends upon certain investigations which are not yet completed.

"The statement that the books and accounts of the company are in confusion is absolutely incorrect. The books and accounts are in no confusion whatever as the defalcation was so managed as to have no connection whatever with the book entries.

"The statement also that the accounts were manipulated in order to warrant the declaration of larger dividends is also entirely incorrect. It also should be stated that the company is in no wise financially embarrassed by the loss due to the defalcation."

The fine was paid.

CUBAN REVOLT

MAN TOLD OF PLAN TO ARM INSURGENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Charged with forgery of a draft for $125,000 presented to the Savoy Trust company, and a check for $1000 in favor of the Hotel Martineque, a Cuban, who gave his name as Manuel Alvarez, but who later admitted that his real name was E. Aldomero Mendez, revealed to the court an attempt to arm Cuban insurgents. Mendez was indicted Sept. 27, on the charges of forgery, which is alleged to have been committed Sept. 18. On the stand Mendez said he had gone from Havana to Maracaibo and then to Porto Cabello and Willemstad, and from the latter port to New York. After he came here, he said, he had been approached by Manuel Alvarez Garcia, the agent of the Cuban revolutionary junta, and commissioned to buy arms and ammunition. This agent he declared had assured him that $2,000,000 had been deposited in the Cuban bank, and had instructed him to draw upon the fund as he found necessary. This was July 22.

He testified that he had completed one deal for arms and war supplies to be delivered Sept. 1, and had paid for them with a draft similar to the one he gave to the Savoy Trust company, where his adventure was abruptly ended.

BROCKTON FAIR

Three Governors at the Show Today

BROCKTON, Oct. 7.—Executives of three states, Gov. Draper of Massachusetts, Gov. Quinn of New Hampshire, and Gov. Weeks of Connecticut, attended the Brockton fair today as guests of the Brockton Agricultural society.

Ex-Governors William L. Douglas and John D. Long of Massachusetts, Senator Lodge and Lieut. Gov. Louis A. Frothingham were also in attendance.

A heavy rainstorm failed to dampen the ardor of the visitors.

A firemen's muster and Marathon run from Doston were features of the day. In spite of the storm the attendance at one o'clock was estimated at 35,000, the largest last day the fair has ever known.

BURNED TO DEATH

Woburn Child Perished in a Fire

WOBURN, Oct. 7.—Eleven-months-old David Lundin was burned to death yesterday afternoon after his brother John, three years old, had set fire to a tent made of boughs in which their mother had left them when she came to work in town here earlier in the day.

The tent had been constructed as a sort of playhouse for the youngsters, and was located close to the Lundin house, a story and a half cabin in an isolated part of North Woburn. The nearest neighbor is a mile away.

The baby had been strapped in his carriage by Mrs. Lundin and then wheeled out into the tent. She had then told John to look out for him and came into town, where she works, to help her husband, David Lundin.

John played around contentedly enough until he found some matches. These he lighted and with one of them he set fire to the tent, which was constructed early this summer. It was dry as tinder. The fire simply flared up before the boy's startled eye, consumed the tent and most of the wood-work on the baby carriage and then died out.

The tragedy was discovered by the mother. She is prostrated.

CANDIDATES WILL BE SELECTED BY THE COMMITTEE

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The withdrawal of the three candidates and the active participation of a formidable squad of blue coated policemen, enabled the democratic state convention which convened at noon yesterday to adjourn at 1.30 today after nominating Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston as a compromise candidate for governor with an agreement on his part that some other name shall be substituted for his within 72 hours. The convention appointed a committee to make this substitution and to select a candidate for lieutenant governor. The balance of the state ticket is as follows: Secretary of State—A. Z. F. Charest of Holyoke.

Treasurer—General B. F. Peach of Lynn.

Auditor—C. P. Paine of Barnstable.

Attorney general—John Halligan of Worcester.

The convention was in session in Faneuil hall for thirteen hours and the "crucible of liberty" shook with eloquent addresses and cheers which turned into jeers as the contest for governor became intensified until the climax was reached shortly after midnight, when half a dozen fist fights took place on the floor of the convention and flying wedges of delegates charged the stage. It required a rush line of twenty policemen to hurl back the invaders and obtain a semblance of quietness. It was then that the party leaders began to realize the danger of the situation and the necessity of eliminating all personal ambitions as well as animosities.

The convention started shortly after noon yesterday with three candidates Eugene N. Foss of Boston; former Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown, twice the party standard bearer and former assistant secretary of the treasury Charles Hamlin of Boston, all confident of winning the principal prize.

It took four hours and a half to organize, adopt a platform that denounced republicanism and republican principles and hear three nominating speeches. James B. Carroll of Springfield presented Mr. Hamlin's name. Frank Richardson of Essex placed that of Mr. Foss before the convention while former State Senator Cassidy of North Adams in a speech which appeared to have a marked influence on the convention gave to the delegates the name of Mr. Vahey. A counter-some method of balloting consumed four hours and it was 8.30 in the evening before the delegates found that none of the three candidates had a majority but that Mr. Foss led Mr. Vahey by 81 votes and later was seven votes ahead of Mr. Hamlin.

That the feeling among the delegates was unusually intense was shown immediately when Congressman John A. Kellher's effort to expedite the voting was vigorously attacked by Martin Lomasney, an ardent Foss supporter. The delegates were almost frantic at the acrimonious argument, an outcome of the ninth congressional district feud but quiet was finally restored.

Then Mr. Hamlin's name was practically withdrawn and a second ballot was ordered. This consumed three hours more and it was midnight when the convention found that although the night was practically between Foss and Vahey the race was so close that the twenty delegates who still clung to Mr. Hamlin had prevented by four votes a victory for Mr. Foss.

During the period following the announcement of the result of the second ballot the proceedings in the exhibition of physical force, rivaled the famous convention at Springfield in 1907. Mr. Kellher and Mr. Lomasney attempted to renew their debate amid the howls of their supporters, who made them the heads of flying wedges that rode roughshod over the press box and the reporters, only to be thrown back by the strong arms of twenty policemen. Incipient fights started in various parts of the hall and for a few minutes the convention was of a most turbulent character.

Fortunately, Chairman John R. Thayer of Worcester was able to finally obtain a semblance of order long enough to entertain and declare carried a motion for a brief recess.

Realizing that to prolong the fight would engender lasting bitterness and endanger party success, the Foss and Vahey leaders at once held a conference, and at 1.15 a. m. Mr. Vahey presented the conference solution of the difficulty. This involved, first and foremost, the elimination of both himself and Mr. Foss. Mr. Hamlin having retired three hours before. Secondly, it gave the law in filing a state ticket before 5 p. m. today with Frederick Mansfield, a labor lawyer, as a temporary candidate for governor. The law permits any candidate for a state office to withdraw in favor of someone else within 72 hours after the filing of the papers. The third article of the compromise was that Mr. Mansfield was within that time and that a committee, consisting of Robert J. Crowley of Lowell and William B. Hayes of Springfield, two Vahey supporters; John A. Maynard of Boston and State Com. Chairman Frederick McLeod of Cambridge, two Foss men, choose a permanent candidate for governor to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Mansfield's withdrawal. The committee also will select a candidate for lieutenant governor. If this committee, after a conference today with the state committee, cannot agree upon a candidate it will select a fifth member to break the tie.

The compromise did not meet a unanimous approval, but the cheering shouts and yells of "no" were unheeded by the chairman and after the balance of the ticket had been completed the convention was hurriedly adjourned at 1.30 a. m.

The special committee went into session with the state committee nine hours later today.

Mayor Fitzgerald does not agree with the representatives of the press who attended the convention, that the proceedings were conducted with difficulty because of disorder. The mayor in a statement issued today says that except on one or two occasions the convention was orderly and that these outbreaks were not of a serious nature. Mr. Fitzgerald praised the conduct of Messrs. Foss, Vahey and Hamlin.

Fire at the Trull Farm in Tewksbury

One of the Most Spectacular for Years—Eight Horses and Other Live Stock Lost—The Dwelling and Barn a Total Loss

One of the most spectacular fires which has illuminated the skies in this vicinity for years, destroyed the old Trull homestead and all of the adjoining farm buildings on the estate on Lawrence road in North Tewksbury early this morning. The place was occupied by Frank B. Trull, thousands saw the reflection of the blaze in the sky while many were able to see the flames for a distance of several miles from the scene of the fire.

The buildings were located on the summit of a hill and the blaze could be seen for miles around. The fire had not been burning long before it was discovered, but the flames, fanned by a stiff breeze, made such rapid headway that the efforts of those who were attracted to the scene proved to be without avail.

The fire started shortly after 12.30 o'clock and was discovered by the members of the Frank B. Trull household. At that time the fire was in the barn and was burning in a lively manner. Neighbors in the vicinity did everything in their power to stay the progress of the flames, but finding this to be useless they then directed their attention to the saving of the house and outbuildings.

Attempts to save the furniture from the dwelling resulted in getting some valuables from the house. There were eight horses and some other live stock burned. The dwelling was connected with the barn and a shed. It was a big two story house. Only one chimney and the foundation remain. There was but a slight wind blowing at the time, and the house and barn burned as if of tinder. For a time, considerable alarm was felt because of the proximity to the burned buildings of the cow barn and creamery buildings belonging to C. J. Hood. However, what slight wind there was took the flames and immense pieces of burning sticks in a northwesterly direction, away from those buildings.

The barn, which was a large structure, was filled with hay and that and all of the farm machinery were burned. The buildings, which were located near together, were valuable and it is probable that the property loss will approach between $8000 and $10,000. Mr. Trull carried insurance. The buildings constituted the old Nathaniel Trull homestead, and were very solidly built, in the early part of the last century. Word was telephoned to this city and Chief Hosmer sent Assistant Chief Norton and several pieces of apparatus to the scene, but when they arrived the

It is rather slight comfort for Butler Ames in his fight against Senator Lodge to find the latter praised in the party platform. When in addition to this Col. Roosevelt comes to Massachusetts to see that Senator Lodge shall be retained, there will be still less consideration for Mr. Ames. This endorsement of Lodge shows that the latter is afraid of Ames' opposition.

THE EAST MERRIMACK STREET JOB

Sewer work has been started on East Merrimack street, thus blocking street car traffic to a considerable extent. There are four car lines blocked by this sewer work and for that reason, Supt. Putnam should endeavor to rush the job as quickly as possible. There should be a large gang of men put on the work and a new gang should be ready to start when the first completes its eight hour day. The great inconvenience caused by the stoppage of such an important street should be sufficient to cause all concerned to push the work along.

THE COMMON DRINKING CUP ABOLISHED

The common drinking cup must go. It was outlawed in this state on October 1, although in a great many places no proper substitute has been provided. This is why Supt. Whitcomb appeals for a proper observance of this law.

The new law will remove one great danger of the communication of deadly diseases through the mouth. It is well that the young people should understand just why the common drinking cup has been abolished. The bubbling fountain will take the place of the cup but in its most common form the fountain is not as convenient or as serviceable as it might be. Time will doubtless bring improvements.

DISCUSSING THE NEW YORK BUDGET

The taxpayers of New York are hereafter to have an opportunity of judging of the department work and helping to decide upon the necessary expenditures. Each department asking for money is to present an exhibit of what it has accomplished, what it purposes to accomplish in the ensuing year and how much money is needed for that purpose. The heads of departments are required to show good cause before any money is appropriated and the taxpayers are free to oppose any expenditure they may see fit. The citizens in general are invited to offer suggestions or criticism of the work of any department, or of the amount of money sought to keep it going for another year. In this way the gathering partakes in some degree the character of the town meeting. The idea is a good one and will probably be widely copied.

THE PORTUGUESE REVOLUTION

It seems that a revolution has been effected in Portugal, overthrowing the monarchy and establishing a republic with an unusually small destruction of life and property.

The revolution has been predicted for some time past and the movement has been growing steadily since the tragedy of two years ago when King Carlos and his oldest son were assassinated. Since that time the movement for a republic has been gradually undermining the monarchy. So effectually has it worked that the army and navy turned with the revolutionists and thus deprived the king of his only source of defense.

Nothing was left for the king but to seek safety in flight. Had he been able to resist for a time he might have called for assistance from England, but his defeat was absolute, and the victory of the republicans so complete that it would be hard for any European power at the present time to find a pretext for intervention.

The republicans had openly announced their intentions, and as recently as last August when they scored a complete victory throughout the country in the elections.

Dr. Alfonso Costa, the republican leader, announced the program without the slightest appearance of dread, saying: "We have given King Manuel notice to quit. The coming revolution will be a kindly affair. We shall kill the least possible number of persons."

It appears that the king is but a mere youth, having been prematurely brought to the throne by the assassination of his father. His inexperience must have weakened the monarchy so that control of the kingdom had slipped away and the power was eventually in the hands of the revolutionists. As soon as they found themselves well prepared they proceeded to strike the final blow which sent the king to flight and brought about the establishment of the republic.

We do not see how any of the other European countries can interpose now to stop this revolution unless a reign of terror be inaugurated which appears improbable.

The example of Portugal may stir up some disturbance in Spain, but the government of Spain is prepared to handle any uprising of the kind in an effective manner. Otherwise we should see a republic in Spain as well as in Portugal. The king and the government, however, are not so easily overcome, nor are the republicans so strong, or so well organized in Spain as they are in Portugal.

King Manuel will prove a pusillanimous monarch if he does not make some effort to recover his lost power. The history of Portugal holds one or more examples of a monarch recovering power after a much worse revolution.

SEEN AND HEARD

Marshmallows or dividends, they just get eaten up.

There may be red headed angels in heaven, but how does it help things to have such tempers there?

The trouble with getting your salary raised by any amount is you raise your expense twice as much.

The negro boy was up for the fifth time on a charge of chicken stealing. This time the magistrate decided to appeal to the boy's father.

"Now see here, Abe," said he to the darkey, "this boy of yours has been up in court so many times for stealing chickens that I'm tired of seeing him here."

"Ah don't blame you, sah," returned the father, "Ah's tired of seeing him here, too."

"Then why don't you teach him how to act? Show him the right way, and he won't be coming here."

"Ah has showed 'im de right way, sah," declared the old man earnestly. "Ah has suttely showed 'im de right way, but he somehow keeps getting caught comin' way wid dose chickens."

Anderson C. Mott, the southern sociologist, discussed in a lecture in Andoverville the divorce problem.

"Woman should stand up for herself," he said. "I know a woman whose husband decided one lovely spring evening to take a night off at a pleasure park. So he rang for a messenger and wrote his wife a little message to the effect that his work would keep him at the office until midnight or thereabout."

"The messenger boy in delivering this message called attention to a slight limp."

"I got kicked across the street there, mum," he whined. "I mistook the number and delivered your letter to the wrong house. The man was so mad he kicked me."

"The wife looked up from her husband's message absently. There was a hard glimmer in her eye. Suddenly she smiled."

"Boy," she said, "here's a dime for you. Take this note back to my husband and tell him about the man who kicked you. But don't mention the mistake you made and don't let on you saw me at all."

"So the boy with the message returned to the husband, who was shining his boots for the pleasure park."

"Well," he said, "why did you bring this back?"

"Because they wouldn't take it," said the boy. "A gent came to the door and he was furious. He told me if I didn't git 'ed break my neck."

"Humph," said the husband. He closed the blacking box suddenly. He hit his lip and frowned. He was rather pale.

"He didn't go to the pleasure park after all. He changed his mind and hurried home. Entering the house softly he stole upstairs on tiptoe. His wife was reading. She gave a faint scream when he burst like a catapult into the room and glared about him wildly."

"Why, George," she said, "how late you are. Dinner's been over an hour."

LITTLE BALLADS OF WARNING.

(On Malignant Cruelty to Harmless Creatures.)

The cruelty of P. L. Brown—
(He had ten toes as good as mine)
Was known to every one in town.
And, if he never harmed a noun,
He loved to make words shriek and whine.

The "To be" family's just complaints—
(Brown had ten toes as good as mine)
Made Brown cast off the last restraint:
He smashed the "is note" into "Aints"
And kicked both mood and tenses supine.

Infinitives were Brown's dislike—
(Brown, as I said, had ten good toes)
And he would pinch and shake and strike
Infinitives, or, with a pike,
Prod them and then laugh at their woe.

At length this Brown more cruel grew—
(Ten toes, all good ones, then had Brown)
And to his woodshed door he drew
A young infinitive and threw
The poor, meek creature roughly down.

And while the poor thing weakly flopped,
Brown, in good toes he had, the brute
Got out his chopping block and dropped
The martyr on it and then propped
His victim firmly with his boot.

He raised his axe! He brandished it!
(Ye gods of grammar, interpose!)
He brought it down full force all at

The poor infinitive to split.
(Brown after that had but six toes!)
Warning.

Infinitives, by this, we see,
Should not be split too recklessly.

"Saved My Baby"

Mother and Child Owe Life to Dr. Greene's Nervura.

How many precious young lives are lost each year through nervous diseases in childhood? Is your little one weak and puny? Does it grow tired quickly when at play? Is it troubled with poor appetite or irregular bowels?

If these derangements of the blood and nerves are not overcome at once the child will be hampered through life. Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy is perfectly adapted for successful treatment of children's diseases.

Mrs. Wm. F. Robinson, 206 West 41st street, New York City, says: "My baby is now seventeen months old. Last summer, his first summer, he was terribly sick, and the doctors said he couldn't live. I gave him Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and anyone who doesn't know what a wonderful medicine that is, would be surprised how much good it did him. He plays with the other children all the time and is never sick."

"I was nursing him and doing my own work and taking care of all the other children. So before he was better my health broke down. But I thought that if Dr. Greene's Nervura helped the baby it would help me, too. So I began to take it myself. From the very first spoonful it helped me. It is a splendid tonic for young and old, and I recommend it to all who are sick. Any woman who has a case of sickness in the house and is up night and day and never gets the rest she needs, ought to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will help her over any trouble of that kind."

Dr. Greene is the well known public medical lecturer and specialist in treatment of all nervous and chronic diseases, and can be personally consulted at his office, 34 Temple place, Boston, Mass., or by mail free.

NEW REPUBLIC

Proclaimed by Army, Navy and the People

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Associated Press this morning received direct from Lisbon a dispatch from Senhor Bernardo Machado, the minister of foreign affairs in the newly constituted provisional government of Portugal, in which the republican leader sets forth the purpose and aims of the present government.

Senior Machado, who speaks at the request of Theophile Braga, the provisional president of the new republic, cabled as follows:

"The republic of Portugal has been proclaimed by the army, the navy and the people. The maintenance of order is completely assured. There is general adhesion to the government and the provinces. The enthusiasm of the public is unparalleled. The provisional government has before it a great duty. The financial budget is to be equal to a country to make over. Concerning our program I can say we will endeavor to put in operation the program of the republican party. This includes a policy of decentralization both in the local administration and in the government of the colonies.

"The financial budget is to be equalized in the general interests of the country and it will be made up with honesty and fairness. The natural wealth will be developed.

"All national alliances now existing will be respected and friendly relations with all other states are desired.

"Freedom of the press will be assured and all star-chamber methods and opportunist laws will be abolished. Public instruction will be completely secularized, relieved from religious control and the religious congregations will be suppressed. We plan the establishment of a broad system of public instruction, both primary and advanced under government endorsement.

"The reorganization of the army and navy, whose patriotic services have been beyond all praise will be proceeded with.

Interests of the country.

"The foregoing sets forth in a few words the purposes, the aims and the earnest endeavors in these moments of anxious labor of the members of the Provisional government of Portugal."

"I send the above at the request of the president of the provisional government, Theophile Braga.

(Signed) "Bernardo Machado, Minister of Foreign Affairs."

INSURRECTION AT SETUBAL IS THE LATEST REPORT

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A special despatch to the Temps from Madrid says that it is reported that an insurrection has occurred in Setubal, Portugal, where many troops are quartered. The insurrection that has gone over to the royalists engaged the royalist cavalry. The casualties are estimated at 300. A Liadajosa cannonading was heard from the direction of El Vas, where there is a fortress.

CASUALTIES IN FIGHTING ARE PLACED AT 3000

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The censorship at Lisbon has been relaxed somewhat and despatches are coming more freely from the scene of the revolution today. All confirm early reports that the revolutionists are in complete control of the capital and that the infant republic is making progress. The republic has been proclaimed also at many points in the provinces.

Three regiments deserted the colors and joined the revolutionists. The casualties in the recent fighting are placed at 3000.

King Manuel is the guest of Great Britain. He remains on board the imperial yacht Amelie, which arrived off Gibraltar last night. The British officials paid visits of respect to the Portuguese monarch today and surrounded his yacht with patrol boats to safeguard the royal family.

There are rumors of fighting between loyalists and revolutionists at Setubal and some anxiety is felt lest a civil war develop in north Portugal, where the monarchy has a stronger hold upon the people.

Boarding Machado, minister of foreign affairs in the provisional government of Portugal, cabled today to the Associated Press at the request of provisional President Braga, announcing that order has been restored at Lisbon and that the new republican government will immediately organize general reforms in the interest of all the people.

CAR TRACKS UNDERMINED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 7.—Thousands of gallons of water escaping from the watermain of the East Providence Water Co. on Riverside square shortly before noon today undermined the north-bound tracks of the trolley company and tied up the service for several hours. When the big main gave way the water forced its way up through the ground and washed out the streets about the square, causing considerable damage.

ious for Higgins.

A ballot was then ordered on motion of Simon Chaynaugh of Lowell.

A ballot committee consisting of Edward Gallagher, D. J. Donahue of Lowell and John McCarthy was appointed.

Mr. Cummings at this point desired to know from the delegate from Somerville if Mr. Irwin, the democratic candidate, was a democrat.

"All I know is that we understand he was put in the fight by a republican from Everett who is opposed to Mr. Higgins."

The balloting then took place.

A Discrepancy

The ballot committee reported that

36 ballots were cast and that John J. Higgins received 26.

John J. Devine arose and said: "Gentlemen, I don't often speak at conventions but I cast a ballot for James J. Irwin and I would like to be so recorded."

Mr. Gallagher of the ballot committee looked over the ballots and discovered the Irwin ballot.

Mr. Cummings announced that he had voted for Higgins.

Mr. Devine then made the nomination unanimous.

The usual formalities were then gone through and the convention dissolved.

The Famous Rayo

because it gives the best light of all lamps. The Rayo gives a white, soft, mellow, diffused light—easy on the eye because it cannot flicker. You can use your eyes as long as you wish under the Rayo light without strain.

The Rayo Lamp is low-priced, and even though you pay $5, $10 or $20 for other lamps, you may get more expensive decorations but you cannot get a better light than the low-priced Rayo gives. A strong, durable shade-holder holds the shade on firm and true. This season's new burner adds strength and appearance.

WANTS LETTER PUBLISHED

For the Benefit of Women Who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

We never publish a testimonial letter without the special permission of the writer, and then only when we know it is genuine.

John G. Gordon was nominated as temporary secretary.

Edward Gallagher moved the appointment of a committee of five on credentials.

At this point Lawrence Cummings arose and said: "Before we go any further I'd like to know what notice was sent out for this convention."

"Legal notice was given," said Mr. McCluskey. "I notified all delegates that I knew of."

"There are only Lowell delegates here," said Mr. Cummings.

"I didn't know that officially," said Chairman McCluskey.

"When does the time expire for filing names of candidates?" asked Mr. Cummings.

"The statutes provide for that," said the chairman.

"When is it?" demanded Mr. Cummings.

"I said the statutes provide for it," replied Mr. McCluskey.

"Mr. Chairman, I think this discussion is out of order," said Lawyer D. J. Donahue.

"I know it," said Mr. McCluskey, "but I allowed it to go along."

"Mr. Chairman, I make a motion that this convention be adjourned until Monday night," said Mr. Cummings.

"This motion is out of order," said the chairman.

"This convention is all out and dried for some purpose," said Mr. Cummings.

"and I refuse to be delivered, I want the southern end of the county represented here."

Mr. McCluskey appointed his credential committee and they in due time reported 43 delegates.

"The temporary organization was then made permanent."

"Nominations are now in order," said Chairman McCluskey.

John W. McEvoy then arose and after endorsing District Attorney John J. Higgins, the present republican incumbent, placed his name in nomination and Daniel J. Donahue seconded the nomination in remarks equally cordial.

Mr. Cummings was on his feet in an instant and he said he could agree with all the delegates named out on Mr. Higgins, but a democratic candidate has sent a letter to the delegates and he desired that the convention be adjourned until Monday and that the city committee of all the cities and towns in the county be notified that a convention is to be held.

John J. McCarthy of Somerville arose and said that the delegates in his end of the county are unanimous for Higgins. He said he knew that the democrats of Cambridge were unani-

MILIE GARYS
DESLYSPEACE REIGNS

Continued

course of events in Portugal is being followed with the keenest interest in the clubs and cafes of Barcelona and every piece of news that is allowed to filter through the rigorous Spanish censorship is eagerly discussed. Several of the newspapers, in response to the public demand for information, installed screens on the fronts of their buildings on which they intended to throw lantern slide despatches. Their plans were set at naught by the authorities and in several instances their guard was forced to charge mobs which gathered at the newspaper offices.

The official information of the Spanish officials here declares that the old government still exists in Portugal, despite the formation of the provisional government by the republicans.

ASK SUPPORT OF PEOPLE

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Despatches received here from various towns in the outlying provinces indicate that the revolutionary leaders in Lisbon are doing their utmost to secure the support of people in all sections of the kingdom.
One of the first acts of the central committee which was constituted at the beginning of the outbreak was to send out trustworthy emissaries by automobile to various distant points where it was hoped a sympathetic uprising could be produced.

The republicans appear to be masters thus far of a section within a radius of about 50 miles from Lisbon. In this district they are in absolute control and will "not" allow monarchist sympathizers go much as to stir from their home towns. The railroads are at a standstill and in the neighborhood of Lisbon most of the highways are rendered impassable.

The consensus of opinion in Lisbon appears to be that the final success of the revolutionary movement is still in doubt, depending on the attitude of the provinces.

REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT

ESTABLISHED IN OPORTO

OPORTO, Oct. 7.—The republican government has been definitely established here without a struggle. The population with unanimity received the proclamation.

The general commanding the local division of the troops obeyed the instructions of the provisional government.

THE JESUIT CONVENT

ATTACKED BY REVOLUTIONISTS

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A special to the journal says that a party of Portuguese revolutionists yesterday attacked the Jesuit convent at Campolite and that several of the Jesuits were killed.
Telegraphic service remains interrupted. The engineers officials at the points of collection along the frontier continue at their posts and are collecting the usual duties but without knowing for which regime they are acting.

The officials and the soldiers at these frontier posts maintain for the most part a discreet neutral attitude, awaiting the notification of the new government to the provincial authorities.

WILL AFFECT ALL EUROPE

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The course of affairs in Portugal is destined to have a far-reaching effect on all Europe, in the opinion of Count De Sousa, the Portuguese minister to France. The count, who takes a pessimistic view of the revolutionary movement, declares that he no longer considers himself the minister of Portugal regarding the proclamation of a republic as a formal severance of his obligations.

"I will not serve this republican government," he said. "Not because my opinions are retrograde—I lived too long in the United States for that—but because I do not believe that Portugal is ripe for the application of such liberal ideas. The population is ignorant and exposed to all kinds of political temptations."

"A republican government in Portugal would be composed of men of unsettled views, unprepared for the power entrusted to them, divided over questions of doctrine as well as by personal rivalry."

"Frankly, I consider the revolution a great misfortune. The establishment of a republic will give birth to the gravest problems, chiefly because of the juxtaposition of monarchist
Spain. The result may be either that Spain will become a republic, too, or that she will be forced in self protection to intervene."

"The triumph of republican ideas in Spain probably would result in the establishment of an Iberian republic which would introduce a new and grave factor in the European concert question."

"The question of the Portuguese colonies is still more important. Everyone knows that these have already formed the subject of diplomatic exchanges of view between Germany and England and in this connection the words 'secret understanding' have even been pronounced. Recent events bring this matter to a head. Unquestionably the new rivalries aroused by the opening of such a question and by the result of the transactions which would follow would be unfavorable to the maintenance of peace in Europe."

"Incidentally it is not hard to guess at whose expense any such transactions over the Portuguese colonies would be carried out."

DESCRIPTION OF FLIGHT
OF THE ROYAL FAMILY
LISBON, Oct. 7.—The Capital, a republican newspaper, gives the following description of the flight of the royal family:
Between 5 and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning the Duke of Oporto embarked on the yacht Amelie and sailed for Ericeira, a fishing town on the Atlantic coast 22 miles northwest of Lisbon.
At the same time the queen mother
Amelie left Cintra by automobile for Matia. She was followed an hour later by Dowager Queen Maria Pia, King Manuel, after escaping by a rear door of the palace, during the bombardment, went to Cintra and thence to Matia.
At 10 o'clock the royal yacht arrived at Ericeira. In the meantime the royal family had completed the preparations for flight and escorted by 20 horsemen

MARATHON RACE

Was Won by William Hackett

BROCKTON, Oct. 7.—William J. Hackett of the Brookline Gymnasium association won the third annual Marathon run from Boston to Brockton today, finishing at the Brockton fair grounds after covering the 23 miles in 2 hours, 27 minutes and 9 seconds. R. C. Piggott of the Cambridgeport Gym was second, and Clarence Demar of Melrose, third.

Demar led the field of thirty runners until within about three miles of the finish, when Hackett and Piggott passed him. Piggott's time, 2:32:30 2-5, Hackett won last year's Marathon in 2:35:24 4-5. Today's time was faster than in either of the two previous years of the event.

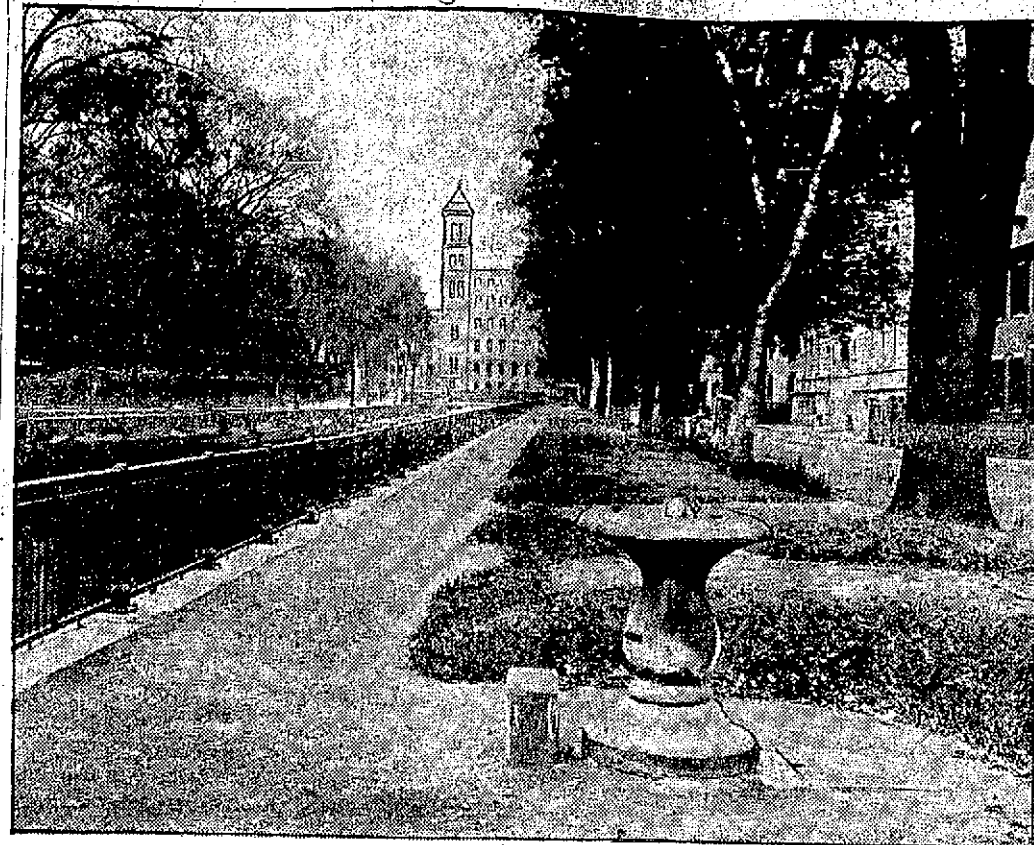

All of the runners finished in excellent condition.

RELEASED ON $5000 BONDS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 7.—Chas. A. Sawyer, local manager for B. H. Scheffels & Co. of New York, who was arrested by federal officers last week on a charge of devising a scheme to defraud by the use of the mails, was released on $5000 bonds today for a hearing Oct. 20. The bail was furnished.

AUTO RACE CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Although the international auto race for the championship honors of America and also for the grand prize gold cup, which was to have been run over the Vanderbilt cup course, has been declared off, it is possible that the race will be held elsewhere at a later date.

THE ANNE STREET PARK FRONTING ON THE CANAL

While the Anne street park is not yet quite completed it is being used more or less, especially by pupils of the High school. Anne street park will be one of Lowell's beauty spots next summer. Hundreds of tulip bulbs were set out a few days ago, and next spring the park stretching along the canal will take on a velvet coat of green decorated with carefully selected shrubbery and beautiful flowers. In the Anne street park work the park commission was hampered because of lack of funds. The city council was slow in voting the necessary money and but for this fact the park would have been completed earlier. Next spring, however, it will blossom forth in all its glory. Then seals will be placed along the canal front and also along the sidewalk on Anne street.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Despatches to R. G. Dun & Co. indicate that business is less satisfactory in the east than in other sections of the country, although the situation as a whole reflects some gain. Irregular conditions prevail in Boston, where colder weather is needed to start fall activity, especially in retail lines.

Reports from dry goods jobbing houses indicate an uneven trade during September and cotton mills are still curtailing production. Men's wear manufacturers are receiving more orders for prompt delivery and footwear sales slowly increase.

Bunk exchanges this week from all leading cities in the United States aggregate $2,886,126,557, a loss of 13.2 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.
